Beacons and sailing directions

NOTICE to Mariners No 257 of 1896, issued by the British Admiralty, is republished —

The following information, dated 13th April 1896 relating to the navigation of Delagoa bay, has been received from Captain Thomas MacGill, H.M.S. Phaet —

1 Beacons—Gibbon point beacon, in approximately lat $25^{\circ} 58' 0''$ S, long $32^{\circ} 54' 15''$ E, has been altered so as to be plainly visible in clear weather

Timpson point beacon, south end of Shesha island, in approximately lat $25^{\circ} 55' 40''$ S, long $32^{\circ} 41' 25''$ E, has been re erected, and is apparently constructed of masonry, painted white and surmounted by a pole

2 The red streak, on Inyack island, given as a mark (in line with Gibbon point) to lead eastward of Fawn shoal and other dangers, cannot be seen at the distance required except under unusually favourable circumstances

3 Hope channel—It is stated that an angle of 42° to 43° preserved between cape Inyack and Gibbon point beacon, until cape Inyack bears S 21° E, will take a vessel through Hope channel, in a least depth of $5\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms at high water springs. This channel is now most frequently used by vessels entering Delagoa bay

4 English river approach—The following directions are given for entering English river—Bring Reuben point lighthouse to bear N 77° W, when it is about 10 miles distant, and keep it on that bearing until Catembe beacon bears N 86° W, and is open northward of Catembe lighthouse, and keep the beacon on that bearing (this line giving more water than the beacon and lighthouse in line) until Lechmere point bears N 40° W, which leads to the anchorage

Caution—The depths in the channels at the entrance to Delagoa bay are not accurately known, and the channels should be navigated with caution until a thorough examination of the locality has been made

2 Area cultivated—The total area sown with jute during the current season appears from the District returns appended to this note to amount to 2,217,800 acres against 2,242,700 acres sown in 1895. The decrease in the area sown of 24,900 acres (1.11 per cent) is due to scarcity of rain at the time of sowing. The contraction is most noticeable in the districts of Rangpur and Pabna.

3 Character of the crop—Taking 16 annas to represent an average crop, 12 annas three fourths of an average crop, 8 annas half an average crop, and so on, the prospects of the crop in the most important jute growing districts of these Provinces, as now returned, are as follows—Tippera 17 annas, Pabna, Rajshahi and Purnea 16 annas, Mymensingh, Rangpur, Faridpur and Jalpaiguri, 13 to 14 annas, Dinajpur 12 annas, Dacca 11 annas, and Bogra 10 annas.

Taking into consideration the favourable forecasts received from such districts as Tippera, Pabna and Rajshahi, and the present climatic conditions in the jute growing tracts, the outturn for the Province may be estimated at 14 annas, but the actual outturn will of course largely depend on the weather during the next two months.

4 Estimated exports—If the crop be not damaged by any unforeseen circumstances, the amount available for export, including cuttings and rejections, during the jute season of 1896-97, will probably amount to 30 lakhs of bales. Last year, this Department estimated 36 lakhs of bales as the probable exportable surplus from the crop of 1895. The actual exports up to 31st May in this year have amounted to 34½ lakhs of bales, and the estimated amount will probably be reached before the expiry of the season.

| | Medinipur | 20,000 | 11,100 | 8,000 | 121 | 123 | The distribution in area is due to want of rain at the time of sowing. The estimate is likely to be better than that of last year. | |
| | Hooghly | 14,500 | 13,000 | 7,000 | 8 | 14 | The area shown in column 5 has been obtained from the reports of the four subdivisions of the district. | Presidency | 24-Parganas | 48,000 | 25,300 | 26,300 | 126 | 131 | The rain values have done much good to the jute crop and the estimate is expected to be better than that of last year. | |
| | Medinipur | 47,000 | 41,000 | 45,400 | 13 | 15 | Owing to timely rainfall in May last, a larger area has been sown with jute this year than last year. The recent rain has also proved generally beneficial to the crop. A better estimate is expected this year than that of last year. | |

ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE BENGAL METEOROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT FOR THE TRIENNIAL PERIOD ENDING
WITH THE YEAR 1895 96

The following is published for general information

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

M FINUCANE,

The 30th June 1896

Offg Secy to the Govt of Bengal

ACCORDING to the standing orders of the Government of Bengal, the present report is for the triennial period ending with the year 1895 96. The last full report was for the period 1890—93, and two brief reports have since been submitted to the Government of Bengal in 1894 and 1895. This report will hence deal not only with the facts of the past year, but also with the full details of the years 1893 94 and 1894 95.

2 During the greater part of the year just closed the Bengal Meteorological Department was under my control, Mr Pedler, the permanent incumbent, having been absent on furlough from 12th April 1895 to 20th November 1895. As stated in the previous two reports, I also officiated for Mr Pedler from 27th April to 17th July 1893, when he was absent on privilege leave, and again from 5th August to 8th November 1893, when his services were placed at the disposal of the Government of India to officiate as Meteorological Reporter to that Government.

3 The changes in the administration of the Department during the past year have been of minor importance. The principles of the working of the Department, explained in previous Administration Reports, have been steadily maintained, and no changes of importance have been introduced throughout the triennial period.

4 The number of meteorological observatories submitting reports to the Bengal Meteorological Office on the 31st of March 1896 was 71, or one less than that on the corresponding date of last year. The decrease was due to the fact that the voluntary observatory at Kalimpong, which was re opened during the year 1894 95, after having been in abeyance during 1892 and 1893, had to be closed, as Mr Sutherland, at whose instance the observatory was started, could not arrange to keep it up.

5 It was mentioned in last year's report that arrangements were made to start a voluntary observatory at the Dapoota tea estate in Tezpoie (Assam). The observatory was fully equipped with the meteorological instruments necessary for a third class observatory, and it was started on the 1st of April 1895. Mr Welsh, the manager of the tea estate, continued to send in accurate observations until September 1895, when he declined to record observations any longer and the observatory had to be closed.

6 The following table will show the number of observatories as it stood on the 31st of March 1894, 1895, and 1896 —

| | 1893-94 | 1894 95 | 1895 96 |
|---|---------|---------|---------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| 1st-class observatory | 1 | 1 | 1 |
| 2nd class observatory | 16 | 16 | 16 |
| 3rd class observatory | 38 | 37 | 37 |
| Voluntary observatory | 7 | 8 | 7 |
| Other stations reporting for the Bay of Bengal storm signal service | 8 | 10 | 10 |
| Total | 70 | 72 | 71 |

7 The following table will show the names and distribution of the 71 observatories sending in reports to the Bengal Meteorological Office at the close of the year 1895-96 -

[illegible]

8 With reference to the above table, it should be noted that the observatory at Alipore is under the direct control of the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India. The Daltonganj Observatory is in no way connected with the Imperial Meteorological Department, except that the Bengal Meteorological Office receives the observations recorded there. It is hence classed as a "Voluntary" observatory. The observer is paid for by the Government of Bengal, which also bears the cost of its upkeep. The Vizagapatam Observatory, which had for many years been under the direction of Mr. Nursing Row, and on his death under the direction of Mrs. Nursing Row, was made over to the Government of India in the year 1895. It is now under the control of a Committee of which the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India is the executive head and the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of Bengal one of its members.

9 The work at the observatories throughout the past year has, with a few exceptions enumerated below, been satisfactory. For instance Ranchi, Daltonganj, and Muzaffarpur submitted observations of very doubtful value, while the observations submitted by the observers at Sikhar, False Point, Jessore, Faridpur, Jalpaiguri, and Purnea were not of that standard of accuracy which might be expected from the observers. The details given later on of the working of these observatories, as well as of all the observatories under the control of this office, are based on the results of inspections made during the past three years, as also on the character of the observations submitted. The results of the inspections during the past year are also separately described.

10 First class observing—The only observatory of this class is at Alipore (Calcutta). It is under the control of the Imperial Reporter, and is under the direct charge of the Second Assistant to the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India, who is stationed at Calcutta throughout the year. The daily observations are sent for publication in the Bengal Weather Report, and occasional extra reports during stormy weather. These observations have been submitted with the usual accuracy and punctuality.

11 Second class of observatories—There are 16 observatories of this class under the Bengal Reporter (of those, 3 are in Assam, 11 in Bengal, 1 in Madras, and 1 in Burma). Out of these 16, 12 observatories were inspected during the past three years. Hence the work at these observatories can be judged by both the tests described above.

When inspected, the observatories at Akyab, Bankipore, Berhampore, Burdwan, Chittagong, Cuttack, Darjeeling, Dhubri, and Hazaribagh were found to be in good condition, and the observers appeared to know their work well. The observations have also been good throughout the past three years. The Darbhanga Observatory when inspected was found to be in much better condition than on two former visits, while the observations submitted have been correct. The Dacca Observatory was transferred to Narayanganj owing to the abolition of the Government Telegraph Office at the former station. The inspection was made when the observatory was in abeyance, and was about to be transferred to Narayanganj. Previous to the visit of inspection, the observations were satisfactory, and the instruments were found to be in good condition. The Sibsagar Observatory when inspected was very unsatisfactory. Since the inspection, the reports, though still at times of doubtful value, have shown considerable improvement.

The remaining four second class observatories, viz, Silchar in Assam, Coconada in Madras, and Falae Point and Saugor Island in Bengal, could not be inspected during the past three years. Their condition can hence be judged only by the character of the observations submitted. In the case of Silchar no improvement seems to have been made by the observer in the accuracy of his observations. But as the observatory has not been inspected for many years, it cannot be said with certainty whether the doubtful observations are due to the change of corrections of the instruments or to the carelessness of the observer. The observer at Coconada, Mr Gactane, continued to submit very accurate observations. The extra observations during stormy weather are also submitted with great promptness. Saugor Island and Falae Point are two of the most important stations in connection with the storm warning system, and reports received from them are of the greatest value in determining the probable paths of cyclonic storms. It is much to be regretted that for some time observations taken at both of these places cannot be relied on as certain to be correct, and I have hesitation in acting on them without support from neighbouring stations.

12 Third class observatories — There are 37 observatories of this class under the Bengal Reporter (of which 1 is in Burma, 4 in Madras, and 32 in Bengal). Out of these 37 observatories, 30 were inspected during the triennial period in question.

Arrah was found to be in good condition on both the inspections, and the observations have been trustworthy with the exception of those of the barometer, which have at times been carelessly taken. Balasore, Bankura, Bogra, Buzar, Chaubassa, Chapra, Krishnagar, Matihari, Dumka, Noakhali, Puri, Rampur Boalia, Sruggany, and Tuwog when inspected were found to be in good condition. The observations submitted have also been generally accurate. Barisal was inspected during each of the past three years. On the first and third occasions it was in an unsatisfactory condition. On the second occasion the condition was satisfactory. The observer is careless, and his observations are tainted by numerous errors. Bhagalpur was found to be in good condition on both inspections. Judging from the observations submitted, the observer seems to know his work well. Dehri was for some time past in an exceedingly bad condition. When visited in September 1893 it was not satisfactory, and inaccurate observations continued to be submitted even after the inspection. Shortly after that there was a change of observer, and when the observatory was inspected again in March 1895, it was found to be in good condition. The observations submitted since the time of the second inspection have been fairly accurate. Dinajpur was inspected in August 1894, when the observer was late in attendance and the condition of the observatory was bad. The observer was fined Rs 10. On the second inspection in September 1895 the observer was punctual in attendance, and the condition of the observatory much better. The general character of his observations is fair. Faridpur, when inspected in August 1893, was found to be in a most unsatisfactory condition. The instruments had been neglected, and the observer was extremely careless in his work. The observations are of very doubtful value. Babu Mukund Lal, the observer at Gaye, in spite of the repeated warnings, continued to be a most careless observer. The observatory was inspected in July 1894, when it was far from being in a satisfactory condition. The observer was, however, given another chance, and the observatory was again inspected in March 1896. As there did not appear to be any improvement in the condition of the observatory or in the value of the observations taken, the observer was dismissed, and, with the permission of the Government of Bengal, the Civil Hospital Assistant attached to the cholera hospital was appointed observer Jalpaiguri, when inspected in April 1894, was found to be in good condition, but on the second visit in March 1895 it was in a disgraceful condition. The observer was dismissed, and the matter reported to the Government of Bengal and the postal authorities. It was again visited in August 1895, when everything was found to be in good order. The observations submitted during December 1894 and the early part of 1895 were worthless, but since the arrangement made by the Postmaster General, Bengal, regarding the performance of the meteorological work by the head clerk of the Superintendent of Post Offices, Jalpaiguri Division, came into force, there has been great improvement. Jessore, when inspected in November 1894, was found to be in charge of a temporary observer, who appeared not to have been properly trained and who allowed the instruments to get out of order. He was fined for carelessness. In August last the observatory was again visited, when the condition of the observatory was found to have improved. The old observer has returned from leave and taken up his meteorological duties. This observer (Babu Paresh Nath Roy Chowdhury) has served in this Department with credit for a long time. Hence it is much to be regretted that during the past cold season he submitted erroneous observations of the dry minimum thermometer for days together. Maldah, when inspected in November last, was found to be in an extremely bad condition. The details of the inspection will be given later on. The observations submitted have always been of doubtful value. The observatory at Midnapore was inspected in February 1895, when the minimum thermometer was found to have a deposit of spirit in the upper part of the tube. The stem of the wet bulb hygrometer just above the bulb was encrusted, and all the instruments were dusty. The observatory, on the whole, was in a very unsatisfactory condition at the time of inspection. The observations submitted have, however, been fairly accurate. The Muzaffarpur Observatory was inspected in July 1894, when almost all the instruments were found to have been very much neglected, more especially the anemometer and the windvane. The observer was fined Rs 5. The observatory was again inspected in November last, when it was still in an unsatisfactory condition. Details of inspection will be given later on. This station has always been unsatisfactory. Purnea was inspected in August 1894. The bulbs of the wet thermometers were found encrusted, and there was a deposit of spirit in the upper part of the tube of the wet minimum thermometer. The observer at the time of inspection was a new man, and his method of taking observations was in some respects defective. In February 1896 the observer went away on leave, and the observations submitted by the officiating observer for some time were erroneous. Ranchi was twice inspected during the past three years. On both these occasions it was found in an unsatisfactory condition, chiefly owing to frequent change of observers. It is at the present time one of the worst stations in Bengal. Rangpur when inspected in March 1894, was unsatisfactory, and the observer was fined for neglecting the instruments. It was again inspected in September 1895, when it was in a fairly satisfactory condition. Raniganj was visited four times during the past three years. It appears that since the transfer of Babu Baburam Ash, the Nazir of the subdivisional office at Raniganj, who acted as observer, the observatory is gradually improving. On the first occasion of inspection in September 1893, the observatory was in an unsatisfactory condition, on the second occasion in July 1894 the condition was fair, and on the third and fourth occasions (June and November 1895) the condition was satisfactory.

The seven remaining third class observatories, viz., Comilla, Gnatong, and Mymensingh in Bengal, and Cuddalore, Gopalpur, Nellore, and Pamban in Madras could not be visited during the past triennial period. Comilla, Gnatong, and Mymensingh submitted fairly accurate observations, but the observers at the two first named observatories have been careless in respect of framing the weather telegrams.

The Observers at Gopalpur, Nellore, and Pamban have submitted fairly accurate observations. Cuddalore, however, submitted inaccurate barometric observations every now and then, and the observer does not seem to be careful in his work.

13 Voluntary observatories—Mr. Tasker, Lighthouse keeper, Shortt's Island, has continued to supply the Department with the daily observations taken by him, and has taken valuable extra observation during stormy weather. These observations proved of great value, being chiefly utilised in the discussion of the history of storms which visited that part of the Bay of Bengal. As a slight recompense for his trouble, Mr. Tasker was awarded a grant of Rs. 80 by the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India out of the Special Storm Observation Fund.

The observations received from Dallongay, especially those of the barometer, are worthless. This station being not easily accessible, could not be inspected, but arrangements are being made for the Instructor to visit this observatory shortly, when it is hoped the cause of the unsatisfactory nature the observations will be brought to light.

The observations received from the Gantak Observatory have been accurate, as also those received from Yatung. The latter observatory is now in charge of Mr. Hobson, who, like Mr. Taylor, now on leave, has readily helped the Department with his observations. The thanks of the Department are therefore due to Mr. White, Political Officer at Sikkim, at whose instance these two observatories were started, and to Mr. Taylor and Mr. Hobson for their assistance.

The observations from Tusa and Demagiri are still being received, but they are not utilised in any way by this Department. These two observatories will not be closed until the wishes of the Imperial Reporter are known regarding them.

Lungleh has continued to submit observations of doubtful value. From the repeated applications received in this office for some remuneration for the observer at that station, which this office had to refuse for want of funds, it is evident that the observer there does not take much interest in his work while not paid for.

14 The thanks of the Department are also due to the Surveyor General Ceylon, for supplying this office with the daily observations taken at Galle and Trincomallee throughout the year and to Mr. Michie Smith, the Government Astronomer at Madras, for supplying the observations taken at the Madras Astronomical Observatory daily, as also extra observations during stormy weather whenever required.

15 Awards for storm and special observations—The following observers under the Bengal Reporter have received awards for storm or other special observations taken during the past year from the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India. The amounts depend chiefly upon the value of the observations taken, and not on the number of storm observations submitted by the observers—

| Station | Amount | Station | Amount |
|-------------|--------|-----------------|--------|
| 1 | 2 | 1 | 2 |
| | Rs. | | Rs. |
| Balasore | 2 | Gopalpur | 8 |

As far as the D.H. is concerned, it is a little better than the Imperial National Defence Council, but it is still a long way from being a good one.

17 In connection with the foregoing table it may be mentioned that the allowance of Rs. 50 per month hitherto granted to the observers at Bansal, Cuddalore, Nellac, Pambun, and Tavoy for taking extra observations during stormy weather has been withdrawn from 1st April 1895 under orders of the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India. It has, however, been arranged that at the end of each year the observers at these stations will receive from the Storm and Special Investigation Fund one rupee for each telegram sent to the Bengal Reporter at his call.

18 The following observatories were inspected during the year 1899-96 —

| | | |
|-----------|------------|------------------|
| Balsore | Dhubr | Motihari |
| Bankura | Dumajpur | Murshidpur |
| Barisal | Hazaribagh | Nanhai |
| Bhagalpur | Jalpaiguri | Rangpur |
| Bogra | Tezore | Raniganj (twice) |
| Budwan | Krishnagar | Sirajganj |
| Charga | Maldah | |

With the exception of Jessore, they were all inspected by Babu Jati Lal De. Jessore was inspected by Mr. Ehot, Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

The number of observatories inspected last year was 20, Rangaj being inspected twice. Altogether 21 visits of inspection were made.

19 The following is the result of inspection of the observatories. They are arranged according to the class, i.e., second and third, and also alphabetically —

20*c* Second class — Burdwan was visited on 22nd June 1895. The instruments were all clean and in good condition. The observer was punctual in attendance. Babu Mokhoda Prosad Chowdhury, the observer, has served the Department for a long time, and has kept up the reputation of a good and careful observer.

Dhulri was inspected from 4th to 6th September 1895. The chief object of the visit was to leave a new barometer in place of one whose cistern was reported to have been cracked. With the exception of the wet minimum thermometer, whose bulb was encrusted and of the wind vane, which was in want of oil, all other instruments were clean and in good condition. The anemometer was rather shaky. An iron bed plate has since been supplied to make it steady. A new barometer was brought into use, and the old one was taken away. On the whole, the observatory at the time of inspection was in a satisfactory condition.

Hazaribagh was inspected on the 17th and 18th June 1895. All the instruments were clean, and almost all of them in good condition. There was a slight deposit of spirit in the upper part of the tube of the wet minimum thermometer. The anemometer was well oiled, but it showed signs of wearing out. The wind vane and rain gauge required slight repairs, which the Civil Surgeon kindly undertook to have effected. Babu Nathu Lal, Civil Surgeon's clerk, continues to be the observer. He also is one of the oldest observers. At the time of inspection the observatory was in a satisfactory condition.

21 Third class — Balasore was inspected from 23rd to 26th October 1895. For some time past the barometric readings appeared to be high as compared with those of the neighbouring stations. The Instructor was deputed to see if he could find out the cause of the apparently high readings. He reported — "I have examined the observer thoroughly, but did not find anything wrong about him. The barometer was tested, and was found to be in excellent condition, indeed, even better than those used as standards. The correction of the barometer has changed from + 0.10 to + 0.05. The S.A.M. readings on the 23rd, 24th, 25th, and 26th were taken by me personally. I cannot explain the cause of the high readings complained of, unless there be something wrong with the sea level elevation. There is a G.I.S. bench mark in the circuit house, and orders have been issued by the Executive Engineer, Balasore Division, to redetermine the height above mean sea level." The redetermined height above mean sea level was reported to be 48 feet. Formerly it was taken to be 56 feet. Hence the present height is 8 feet less than the previous height. This added to 0.05, the difference between the old and new corrections of the barometer makes 0.13. The application of the newly determined corrections now makes the barometric readings comparable with others. At the time of the inspection the observatory was in a fairly satisfactory condition.

Banlura was visited on the 6th and 7th November 1895. The bulb of the wet bulb hygrometer was thickly encrusted. The wind vane was in want of oil, and was found working with a great deal of friction. The rain gauge too was not perfectly level. These defects have been remedied. The observatory at the time of inspection was in a fair condition only.

Bansal was inspected on the 12th and 13th October 1895. The rain gauge has been removed to a site close to the shed. This removal of the rain gauge from its former site has resulted in the meteorological instruments being closer to each other than before. The anemometer and wind vane were in want of oil, and on comparison the barometer was found to have changed its correction. As the instrument did not appear to be in very good condition, it was replaced by a better one. At the time of the inspection the observatory was in charge of a temporary observer.

Bhagalpur was inspected on the 19th and 20th November 1895. The observatory was in a fairly satisfactory condition. The shed was in a very bad state of repair, and the fencing round the rain gauge required renewal. The repairs, though urgently needed, could not be carried out owing to the receipt of the estimate of cost of repairs too late, when there were no funds available.

Bogra was inspected from the 26th to 28th August 1895. The observatory was in a satisfactory condition, but the shed required repairs. This has since been carried out. Babu Gangadhar Barik, Civil Surgeon's clerk, continues to be the observer. He seemed well qualified to do the work.

Chapra was visited from 15th to 17th November 1895. The observatory was in a satisfactory condition. The fencing round the rain gauge has since been repaired. The only defect in this observatory is the distance between the Telegraph office, where the thermometer shed is erected, and the District Board's office, where the wind instruments are exposed. Unfortunately, the site of the Telegraph office is not so open, and hence the wind instruments cannot be removed from the District Board's office.

Dinajpur was visited from 31st August to 2nd September 1895. A new thermometer shed had to be built, owing to the old one having fallen during a storm. When building the new shed the observer, without reference to this Office, erected a bamboo jaffry fencing all round the shed, which extended from the ground to the top of the roof of the shed. This resulted in the external air being prevented from freely entering the shed. This was immediately removed, and a fence of wire netting erected in its place. The anemometer was found defective, and had to be replaced by another. The observatory was in a much better condition than that in which it was found on the previous inspection in August 1894.

Jessore was inspected on the 11th August 1895. It was a passing visit paid by the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India, who was accompanied by Babu Jati Lal De. The bulb of the wet bulb hygrometer was slightly encrusted and the anemometer required cleaning. These defects were remedied. The observer was reading the barometer about 004 to 006 low owing to his defective eyesight. He was supplied with a lens. The Civil Surgeon's clerk, Babu Parash Nath Roy Chowdhury, continues to be the observer.

Jalpaiguri was inspected on the 29th and 30th August 1895. The instruments were slightly dusty, and the bulb of the wet bulb hygrometer slightly encrusted. The anemometer and wind vane were exceedingly dirty, and had to be thoroughly cleaned. The observer, who is the Head Clerk of the Superintendent of Post Offices, Jalpaiguri Division, was reading the barometer 006 low owing to incorrect adjustment of the vernier. He read the thermometer correctly. The observer was new to the work, and had not been properly trained by the late observer, but he was found to be eager to learn the work. This observatory has been in a most unsatisfactory condition for some time.

Krishnagar was visited on the 23rd and 24th August 1895. Every thing was found to be in a satisfactory condition. Babu Piyari Lal Ghosh, Civil Surgeon's clerk, continues to be the observer. The correction of the barometer was found to have changed from—010 to—002.

Malda was inspected on the 23rd and 24th November 1895. The chief object of the visit was to leave a new barometer in place of the one which had gone out of order. The bulb of the wet bulb hygrometer was slightly encrusted. The rain gauge, which is placed in the hollow of a masonry pillar 3½ feet high, was not level. The fencing round the shed required renewal, as it was entirely eaten up by white ants. The following is a report of the Inspector—"I reached the observatory at 7.50 A.M. on the 23rd. I waited till 9 A.M., but the observer not turning up till then, I took the observations myself. The observer came at 9 A.M. On the 24th I attended the observatory at 8 A.M., but the observer was absent. I took all the observations myself except that of the barometer, which was in the office room of the Civil Surgeon's office under lock and key. He came at 8.20. He could read the instruments correctly if he liked, but he showed such a want of interest in his work that I doubt if he ever took his observations with any amount of care. The matter was reported to the Government of Bengal, and with their permission the observatory was transferred to the charge of the Postmaster with effect from 1st April 1896.

Muzaffarpur was visited from the 9th to 12th November 1895. The observatory was found to be in an extremely bad condition. The observer having neglected the instruments placed in his charge, more especially the wet thermometers and the wind instruments, the matter was reported to the Magistrate of the district, who is also the Superintendent of the observatory. Having had occasion to go to Muzaffarpur, I, at the request of Mr. Pedler, consulted the Magistrate about the future working of the observatory. He suggested that the observatory might be given to a probationer of his office who was reported to be intelligent and willing to do the work. Subsequently, however, it was reported that as the probationer could not learn the work, the old observer was allowed to remain.

Motihari was inspected on the 13th and 14th November 1895. With the exception of the wind vane, which was a heavy instrument and was not working freely, all other instruments were clean and in good condition. The observatory at the time of the inspection was in a very satisfactory condition.

Ranchi was inspected from 12th to 14th June 1895. The barometric readings were very unsatisfactory for some time, and the chief object of the visit was to ascertain the cause of the incorrect readings. On examination of the barometer it was found that air had penetrated into the upper part of the tube of the instrument. The room in which the barometer is placed was repaired, and the barometer had to be removed from the position in which it was fixed by the Instructor in December 1894. The instrument, which was new when brought into use towards the end of 1894, must have been handled very roughly. It was removed without any reference to this office, in direct contravention of the rules of this Department. The condition of the observatory at the time of the inspection was unsatisfactory.

Ranapur was visited on the 3rd September. The station was on the way to Dhubri, and hence it too was inspected. With the exception of the anemometer, which was much in want of oil, all other instruments were clean and in good order. The shed was in a dilapidated condition, and has since been repaired. The condition of the observatory was fairly satisfactory.

Rangpur was visited on 21st June 1895. It was only a passing visit. The bulb of the wet bulb hygrometer was slightly encrusted, and the wind vane, which was too heavy, was not working properly. It has since been replaced by a lighter instrument. The observatory was again inspected on 5th and 8th November 1895. The permanent observer was absent on leave, and the officiating observer, not knowing how to open the anemometer, could not clean the instrument. All other instruments were clean and in good condition. On both occasions the observatory was in a satisfactory condition.

Saagun was visited from 9th to 11th September 1895. The marine K. P. barometer in use had not been giving satisfaction for some time. The chief object of the visit was to leave a new barometer, as well as to examine the condition of the exposure of the several instruments which had to be removed from their previous position owing to the Telegraph office (attached to which is the observatory) having been removed to a new building. The following extracts from the inspection report will show the present condition of exposure of the instruments —

The present shed has been recently constructed. The old shed was on a site about two minutes' walk from the present site, the latter being almost alike to the former site as regards its surroundings. In the rainy season the whole of the low lying lands is submerged under water. But the present site of the Telegraph office is a little elevated. There is a long row of jaw and palm trees towards the south and east of the shed. The nearest tree towards the east is 21 feet off, and that towards the south 36 feet off. There are also trees to the north and the west but they are too far off. The trees are tall, and the trunks are bare of branches up to a height of about 30 feet. The wind instruments are exposed on the roof of the Mun the cutcherry. The south, west, and north are entirely open. To the east there are some trees more than 100 feet off. To the east north east there are some tall over spreading trees, which very seriously interfere with the free exposure of the anemometer. The nearest tree in this direction is 80 feet off.

The wind vane was one of the Roorkee pattern, and was too heavy to work in light winds. This has since been replaced. The old K. P. barometer was taken away, and a new Fortin instrument brought into use. The instruments were all clean, and seemed to have been well looked after. The observer, Babu G. C. Banerjee, who is a signaller of the Local Government Telegraph office, knows his work thoroughly. The observatory was in a satisfactory condition at the time of the inspection.

22 The following table will show the observatories which have been inspected in each of the three years 1893-96. Twelve observatories only were inspected in the year 1893-94. The reason for this small number of inspection visits has been given in the Administration Report of that year. In the year 1894-95, 32 observatories were inspected. In the year just closed 21 visits were paid to the different observatories. Under the arrangements sanctioned by the Government of India, the services of the Instructor were chiefly utilized in inspecting the observatories. For easy reference, the table has been so arranged as to show the condition in which each observatory was found at the time of the inspection during each year of the triennial period. —

24 The number of instruments broken or allowed to get out of order may be looked on as a test of the care with which an observer does his work. Hence a table is appended below, showing the various instruments which have been issued to has been done satisfactorily on the whole. There have, of course, been cases where the reverse has been the result, but they are few in number. Delays have occurred in the submission of returns to this Office, and in all cases where this has continued for some time, the matter was reported to the district officer with a view to make the rain registering officers punctual. The Department continues to be indebted to several gentlemen, chiefly tea and indigo planters, who regularly send copies of their rainfall records.

27 Last year the Civil Hospital Assistant of Dewanganj in the district of Mymensingh refused to do the rainfall work, which he has been doing for a long time past, unless he was specially paid for it. The matter was brought to the notice of the Government of Bengal with a view to issue general orders about the duties of the rain registering officers in the Province. The Government of Bengal in their circular No 5T—R of 25th September 1895 (addressed to all district officers) have ruled "that the duty of reporting the rainfall at each place where a rain gauge is kept should be made over by the district officer to some official who is in a suitable position to carry it out. He should be given to understand that the work forms part of his regular duty, but will not entitle him to any additional remuneration, and that neglect to report accurately and punctually will be punished."

28 The number of rainfall stations at the close of the past year was 327, or two more than the number in 1894-95 and seven more than that in 1893-94. The two new stations that have been started are—Khaigpur, in the district of Monghyr, and Dhumeole in Murshidabad.

29 The Government of Bengal in their circular No 3187Agri, dated 8th July 1895, again drew the attention of the district officers to the necessity of frequent inspection of rain gauges. But it appears from the reports received in this office that only 101 rain gauges out of a total of 327 were inspected during the past year as against 120 inspected during 1894-95. Some of the rain gauges were inspected twice, three times, or even four times during the year. In this way 141 inspection visits were made, against 174 in 1894-95. Both the number, (i.e., the number of rain gauges inspected and the number of inspection visits paid) were less than those shown in last year's Administration Report. The following table shows the number of rain gauge stations inspected during the past three years—

| Official year | Number of rain gauge stations | Number of rain gauge stations inspected |
|---------------|-------------------------------|---|
| 1 | 2 | 3 |
| 1893-94 | 320 | 19 |
| 1894-95 | 325 | 120 |
| 1895-96 | 327 | 100 |

30 The distribution of the 327 rainfall stations in the various districts, &c., is shown in the table below. The table also shows the number of rain gauge stations inspected in each district during the past year—

| District | Number of rain gauge stations | Number of rain gauge stations inspected | District | Number of rain gauge stations | Number of rain gauge stations inspected | District | Number of rain gauge stations | Number of rain gauge stations inspected |

31 From the above table it will be seen that not a single rain gauge was inspected in the districts of Hooghly, Howrah, Rajshahi, Kuch Bihar, Bogra, Chittagong, Patna, Saran, Balasore, Hazaribagh, and Lohardaga.

32 Dr Kelly, Civil Medical Officer of Sonthal Parganas, Dr Crawford, Civil Surgeon of Monghyr, and Mr Macpherson, Collector of Gaya, were especially active in inspecting the rain gauges in their respective districts.

33 The short annual report on the meteorology of Bengal in the year 1894, with two maps illustrating the actual and percentage rainfall, was prepared and submitted to the Government of Bengal on the 20th June 1895 for incorporation in the Annual Administration Report of that Government.

34 The report on the meteorology of Bengal for the monsoon season of 1895 was prepared and submitted to the Government with the usual number of illustrative maps prepared by hand. The report was submitted to the Government of Bengal on the 7th January 1896, and was published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 15th January 1896.

35 The weekly and monthly meteorological and rainfall reports for Bengal and Assam continued to be published in the Calcutta Gazette. There has been no change in these reports.

36 It appears that the Weekly Rainfall and Meteorological Report has not been of much value to the public. The reason probably is that the detailed information is given in the monthly reports, which are issued in the Gazette generally in the second week of the month next to that to which it refers. Mr Pedler has submitted a scheme to the Government of Bengal in which he has proposed to discontinue the printing of the weekly report in the Calcutta Gazette from 1st May 1896.

37 During the monsoon season the usual three sets of rainfall charts showing the actual rainfall, the variation from the normal, and the percentage rainfall, were prepared by hand each month from May to October 1896, and submitted to the Government of Bengal and the Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal.

38 The Bay of Bengal Daily Weather Report with chart was issued daily throughout the year without any exception. No change was made in this report. It was issued to the subscribers in Calcutta generally not later than 11 A.M. This report was supplied to 50 Government officials free of charge, and to 30 subscribers at the rate of Rs 2 per month. The receipts from subscribers during the year have been sufficient to cover the cost of the lithographic establishment consisting of three pressmen, and two peons. At the close of the year there was a considerable balance in hand, which is kept to provide repairs to presses, &c, when required.

39 The Bengal Daily Weather Report, dealing with the provinces of Bengal and Assam, was published last year from 29th April to 31st October. No change whatever was made in this report. The report was issued to 104 Government officials free of charge, and to 18 subscribers at the rate of Rs 2 8 per month. It was printed at the Bengal Secretariat Press and issued from the Press.

40 It will be remembered that a few years ago, at the request of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, a scheme was submitted to that body for improving the daily report issued by this Office, but as they took no further action in the matter, the subject was allowed to drop. The question of amalgamating the two reports and issuing one report only dealing with the observations taken at the coast stations, as well as at inland stations, during the monsoon period, i.e., from May to October every year, was again taken up during the year. Mr Pedler drew up a scheme showing the advantages that will be gained if the two reports were amalgamated during the monsoon period, and submitted it to the Government of Bengal on the 17th March 1896.

41 The change of class of the weather telegrams from "ordinary" to "urgent" in the case of the Bengal stations, which send weather telegrams for the second report (Bengal Daily Weather Report) issued during the monsoon period every year, was one of the chief reasons which led to the proposal by Mr Pedler of the amalgamation of the two reports noticed above. The telegrams being classed "urgent" are received in the Office before 11 o'clock, and hence Mr Pedler suggested the publication of a report containing the observations of the stations round the Bay of Bengal (which now report for the Bay of Bengal Report) and of the inland stations (which had hitherto reported only for the Bengal Report) This report can be issued about midday, and takes the place of one report issued about 11 in the morning and the second about 5 o'clock in the afternoon

42 The code introduced in the year 1892 for telegraphing weather conditions in the Bay of Bengal to outward bound vessels passing Sangor Island Light house and to vessels at certain ports on the Madras and Burma coasts was revised during the past year The code was modified to some extent, and arrangements have been made to issue additional information for later periods than 8 A M (the time to which the four flag signal telegrams had hitherto referred) A fifth flag (Pilot Jack, i.e., the Union Jack with the border of white one fifth the breadth of the Jack) has been added, and it will be hoisted only when information for hours other than 8 A M are telegraphed to Sangor Island and other places where the flags are hoisted The position of the fifth flag will indicate the hour to which the weather information refers The revised code was brought into use on the 1st March 1896

43 The daily 8 word telegrams to the port authorities at Madras, Akyab, Rangoon, Negapatam, and Coconada were continued throughout the year In the case of the port of Chittagong the telegram was sent, as sanctioned by the Government of Bengal, only during the period 16th May to 1st October During stormy weather, however, these code messages were replaced by messages in ordinary language, giving detailed accounts of the intensity, direction of movement, &c., of the storms

44 The system of forwarding meteorological information from the pilot brigs at the Sandheads by flag hoists by the pilots of inward bound vessels when passing Sangor Island has been continued, and 323 telegrams and post cards were received in this way during the year

45 The system of telegraphing a summary of the weather (by means of a code specially devised for the purpose) experienced by the Commanders of the steamers of the British India Steam Navigation Company during their voyages from Madras to Rangoon, Calcutta to Rangoon, &c., has been continued

46 A small establishment of six temporary clerks was sanctioned by the Government of Bengal during the year for a period of five months from 1st November 1895 to 31st March 1896 They were employed in calculating mean meteorological values from the available data up to the year 1895, which work was required in connection with the variation columns of the Bengal Daily Weather Report The means hitherto given in this report were the same as those which have been used for the past seven years It was hence desirable to bring them up to date by recalculating the values, using the observations recorded during these last seven years

47 The working of the system of storm signals has remained unaltered The work of informing local authorities of the formation or existence of storms is steadily on the increase The Deputy Conservator of the Calcutta Port, the Collector of Cutchak, and the Executive Engineer, Bolasore Division, have been added to the list of officers who receive warning telegrams from this Office

48 The dates of the principal storms and barometric depressions occurring during the past year are given in the first of the two following tables, and the action taken in the matter of issuing storm warnings and hoisting storm signals is indicated in the second of these tables —

Table giving a brief statement of the Storms which afflicted the Bay of Bengal Coasts during the year 1895

| Number of storm | Period of depression or storm | Character of storm | Coast affected |
|-----------------|-------------------------------|---|----------------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| 1 | April 22nd to 26th | Small cyclonic storm formed in the south or south west of the Bay on about the 22nd of April which gradually drifted northwards or north eastwards intensifying in its advance and finally crossed the coast near Akyab on the night of the 26th It gave equally unsettled weather with rain at the head of the Bay and in Lower Bengal and also caused heavy rain in East Bengal | Burma coast |

| Number of storm | Period of depression or storm | Character of storm | Coast affected |
|-----------------|-------------------------------|--|---------------------------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| 2 | June 17th to 19th | Barometric depression originating in the east of the Bay and advancing in a north westerly direction across the Bay became well defined near the Orissa coast at the 17th. It remained off the Orissa coast for two days and the centre crossed between Jalsu Point and Luni moving in a westerly direction about noon of the 19th. | Orissa coast |
| 3 | June 26th to 28th | Barometric depression formed in the east of the Bay on the 26th which advanced slowly northward and crossed the coast between Sagar Island and Balasore on the 28th giving decidedly heavy rain over the extreme south west of the province. | Orissa and Bengal coasts |
| 4 | July 17th to 18th | Small barometric depression generated off Circars coast on the 17th and developing off Canjam coast on the 18th passed inland north of Gopalpur on the 19th. | Canjam coast |
| 5 | July 30th and 31st | Small barometric depression formed in the north west angle of the Bay on the 30th the centre of which crossed the coast and moved into the east of Chota Nagpur on the 31st. | Orissa coast |
| 6 | August 11th to 14th | Diffused barometric depression which developed in the south of Burma about the 10th and after passing from the north west of the Bay across Orissa turned north over Chota Nagpur and broke up against the Himalayas. | Bengal and Orissa coasts |
| 7 | September 2nd to 6th | Small cyclonic storm formed in the centre or east of the Bay about the 1st and moved in a westerly direction passing over the Circars about the 6th. | Circars and Canjam coasts |
| 8 | September 14th to 19th | Small cyclonic storm which began to develop about the 17th and whose centre was on the 18th in the north west angle of the Bay. It crossed the coast between Sagar Island and Balasore between the 18th and 19th. | Orissa coast |
| 9 | September 28th to October 1st | Small cyclonic storm which had generated in the west of the Bay at the end of September. At first it moved in a westerly direction towards the Madras coast and then recurved and advanced in a north and north easterly direction. On 1st of October the centre was to the south east of Jalsu Point and on the evening of that day it was near to Sagar Island and on the morning of the 2nd close to Naraynagar. | Orissa and Bengal coasts |
| 10 | October 4th to 6th | Barometric depression formed off the Madras coast on the 4th on the 6th the centre was about a few miles and by the 20th it had passed inland between Masulipatam and Nellore. | Coromandel coast |
| 11 | November 5th to 9th | Barometric depression formed near Diamond Island about the 6th and moving towards Orissa coast became diffused and disappeared about the 9th. | Burma coast |
| 12 | December 11th and 12th | Small cyclonic storm formed with centre south east of Gopalpur about the 11th. At 2 p.m. on the 11th the storm centre had moved near to Gopalpur and was to the east south east of that station and had therefore continued its north westerly advance. The storm then ceased to advance towards the coast rapidly recurved and immediately commenced to advance with greatly increased velocity in a north easterly direction. At 8 p.m. of the 11th the centre was to the south south east of Sagar Island and at 2 a.m. of the 12th it was some little distance to the south west of Chittagong. Between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m. the centre had passed inland apparently between Chittagong and Nonkhali. | Orissa and Bengal coasts |
| 13 | December 28th and 29th | Cyclonic storm formed in the extreme south west of the Bay on the 28th and afterwards drifted in a westerly direction across the extreme south of the Peninsula and over Ceylon. The storm on the morning of the 29th was apparently more to the westward than on the 28th and it was to the south of the Peninsula while on the 29th it had again advanced westwards and was probably in the Arabian Sea. | Coromandel coast |

The mean pressure, temperature &c, are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86 formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

Timpson point beacon, south end of Shesha island, in approximately lat $25^{\circ} 55' 40''$ S, long $32^{\circ} 41' 25''$ E, has been re erected, and is apparently constructed of masonry, painted white and surmounted by a pole

2 The red streak, on Inyack island, given as a mark (in line with Gibbon point) to lead eastward of Fawn shoal and other dangers, cannot be seen at the distance required except under unusually favourable circumstances

3 Hope channel —It is stated that an angle of 42° to 43° preserved between cape Inyack and Gibbon point beacon, until cape Inyack bears S 21° E, will take a vessel through Hope channel, in a least depth of $5\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms at high water springs. This channel is now most frequently used by vessels entering Delagoa bay

4 English river approach —The following directions are given for entering English river —Bring Reuben point lighthouse to bear N 77° W, when it is about 10 miles distant, and keep it on that bearing until Catembe beacon bears N 86° W, and is open northward of Catembe lighthouse, and keep the beacon on that bearing (this line giving more water than the beacon and lighthouse in line) until Lechmere point bears N 40° W, which leads to the anchorage

Caution —The depths in the channels at the entrance to Delagoa bay are not accurately known, and the channels should be navigated with caution until a thorough examination of the locality has been made

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF EMIGRATION CALCUTTA ON INLAND EMIGRATION FOR THE YEAR 1895

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EMIGRATION

Darjeeling, the 29th June 1896

RESOLUTION—No 384TG

READ—

The Report of the Superintendent of Emigration, Calcutta, on Inland Emigration for the year 1895

DR R. MACLEOD held the appointment of Superintendent of Emigration throughout the year. The Report, following the prescribed lines, traces the journey of each class of emigrants from the recruiting grounds to the labour districts.

2 The amended rules under the Inland Emigrants' Health Act, I (B C) of 1889, were finally approved by the Government of India during the year under report, and were published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 4th December 1895.

3 There are four distinct methods of recruitment recognised, viz —

- (1) by contractors licensed under section 12 of Act I of 1882,
- (2) by local agents of the employers of labour, who have been specially authorised to recruit by the Superintendent of Emigration under section 62 of the Act,
- (3) by garden sardars, who have been granted certificates by their employers under section 51 of the Act,
- (4) the free emigration system, over which a sanitary supervision only is maintained under Act I (B.C.) of 1889

4 Contractors' emigrants — There were three licensed contractors during 1895. Their depôts were situated in the suburbs of Calcutta. There were six recruiters working under these contractors, thirteen less than in 1894, but the number of emigrants registered rose from 3,237 in 1894 to 3,693 in 1895. Of the 3,693 registered during the year, 3,600 were registered in the 24 Parganas and 93 in Burdwan. The high average number of emigrants collected by each licensed recruiter is accounted for by the fact that the contractors take over or rather purchase coolies collected under the so called free emigration system and get them registered by their licensed recruiters immediately before taking them to the contractors' depôts. This means that the provisions of the Inland Emigration Act are evaded, advantage is taken of them to have the emigrants' contracts registered, but the progress of those emigrants is not supervised until they enter the depôts nor are they given a chance of refusing to bind themselves until they reach Calcutta.

5 The whole number (3,693) recruited was despatched to the depôts at Calcutta, but there were 17 desertions and 3 discharges between registration at Sealdah and arrival at the contractors' depôts, so that only 3,673 arrived there, the total casualties having amounted to 0.54 per cent as compared with 2.62 per cent in the previous year. During their stay in the depôts, there was a further reduction of 123, or 3.29 per cent, owing to the discharge of 62 emigrants, the desertion of 54, and the death of 7, already 64 were in the depôts on the first day of the year, and one child was born there, so the number available for despatch to the labour districts was 3,615. Of this number, 3,507 were forwarded to Goalundo for despatch to the labour districts, and 108 remained in the depôts at the close of the year. The diminution of numbers during the period of detention in the depôts was small during the year under report as compared with 1894, the percentage being 3.29 as against 5.48, the percentage of sickness, too (0.26), compares favourably with that of the previous year (0.86), and the mortality decreased from 9 to 7. There was only one case of small pox, that of an unprotected infant. The Medical Inspector of Emigrants remarks — "Not a single case of cholera, measles, or chicken pox occurred in any of the depôts. When it is remembered that small pox and cholera were epidemically prevalent in and around Calcutta during the first two quarters of the past year, the remarkable exemption of the depôts from these diseases affords strong evidence of the vigilance which is exercised in the medical care of the coolies, and the close and constant attention paid to the sanitation of these establishments."

No coolies were rejected by the Medical Inspector as unfit to proceed from the depôts. As in the previous year, no casualty or detention occurred on the journeys between Calcutta and Goalundo, but one death from cholera took place at Goalundo. Of the 3,506 emigrants embarked from Goalundo, 2,033 arrived at their destination in Assam, having lost 2 by death and 8 by desertion on the way, and 1,462 reached Sylhet and Cachar, one coolie deserting.

6 Special Local Agents and coolies registered by them — The coolies recruited by the special local agents, without the intervention of garden sardars, have in the present Report been for the first time shown separately from garden sardars' coolies. During the year under report 9 special local agents were licensed, against 13 in the previous year. There was no recruiting under this system in Midnapore and Shauabad as in 1894, but, on the other hand, it was taken up in Burdwan. That district and Manbhum together contributed almost the whole of the coolies recruited under this system—16,502 out of 16,954, and this large number is collected by four special local agents. These facts point to a practice similar to that described in paragraph 5 with regard to the system of recruiting by contractors, namely, the illegitimate use of the free emigration system in order to avoid the restrictions imposed by Act I of 1882. In this case probably less harm is done than in the former, inasmuch as the coolies are registered at Purulia, Asansol, and Raniganj, places which are nearer to their homes than Calcutta. The number of emigrants registered in 1895, through special local agents, was 16,954, of whom 12,618 were labourers and 4,336 dependents, against 3,821 registered in 1894, of whom 2,571 were labourers and 1,250 dependents. Of the 16,954, 11,936 were registered for Assam, 945 for Cachar, and 4,073 for Sylhet. This large increase is to be attributed to the greater demand for labour, as well as to the use of the expanded free emigration system pointed out above.

The number of these emigrants that left the recruiting districts during the year under report for embarkation at Goalundo was 19,412, 2 of these were left behind on the journey and 3 deserted, so that 19,407 arrived at Goalundo. During the stay at Goalundo there was 1 birth, and there were 85 releases, 31 desertions and 10 deaths, thereby reducing the number to 19,282, of whom 12,825 were despatched to Assam, 1,770 to Cachar, and 4,684 to Sylhet, 3 remaining at Goalundo at the close of the year. Of the 19,279 embarked from Goalundo, there were 56 casualties by death and 24 by desertion, and 1 birth on the way to Assam, while there were 3 deaths and 1 desertion during the journey to Cachar and Sylhet.

One hundred and thirty nine emigrants of this class left the recruiting districts for Assam via Dhubri, no casualties occurred on the journey.

7 Certificated garden sardars and coolies recruited by them—There were 5,317 certificated garden sardars and 164 sardarnis during the year under report, as compared with 5,274 sardars and 156 sardarnis in the previous year.

| Years | NUMBER OF— | | |
|-------|------------|-----------|--------------|
| | Sardars | Sardarnis | Local agents |
| 1891 | 1 723 | 61 | 124 |
| 1892 | 3 609 | 108 | 120 |
| 1893 | 4 702 | 104 | 127 |
| 1894 | 5 274 | 156 | 138 |
| 1895 | 5 317 | 164 | 172 |

The marginal table gives the numbers for each of the last five years, and shows a continued increase. The majority (4,121) of these sardars and sardarnis were accredited to local agents of Calcutta firms, and the number of these local agents has risen in the present year from 138 to 172. It was stated in the Report and Resolution for 1894 that there had been a large decrease in number of licenses issued to local agents, due probably to employers recognising the evils of competition. But the Superintendent now reports that the number of local agents licensed in 1894 was really 138, and not 17, as erroneously shown in that Report.

This system of recruitment is reported to have worked well, and there was happily no occasion to withdraw any local agent's license, but the certificates of 8 garden sardars were cancelled during the year at the instance of managers. The number of coolies registered by garden sardars and sardarnis amounted to 8,336 and 65, against 10,762 and 218, respectively, in the previous year. Of these 8,401 emigrants, 6,070 were registered for Assam, 895 for Cachar, and 1,431 for Sylhet. These figures give an average of 1.56 coolies recruited through each sardar and 4 through each sardarni—a fact which confirms the Superintendent in his opinion that they work chiefly among their own relatives and friends.

8 The number of emigrants recruited by this method that left the districts of recruitment during the year under report for embarkation at Goalundo was 10,021, and of this number 8 deserted at Goalundo, and 2 died there of cholera. Of the remainder (10,011), 7,356 were despatched to Assam, 1,370 to Cachar, and 1,385 to Sylhet. Of the number that embarked from Goalundo, 7,316 arrived at their destination in Assam, having lost 28 by death and 13 by desertion, and 1 born on the passage, and 2,653 reached Cachar and Sylhet, with the loss of 2 deserters on the way. It must here be noted that for the numbers of coolies recruited under these two systems passing through Goalundo, the Embarkation Agent there is entirely dependent on the garden sardars who accompany them, and that consequently numbers of free emigrants travelling with garden sardars are probably included as if they had been recruited by the sardars and registered at their instance.

Six emigrants recruited by sardars started for Assam via Dhubri, there were no casualties on the way, but 2 were released at Dhubri and 2 went on from that place who had been left there at the close of 1894, so that 6 emigrants arrived in Assam by this route.

9 Free emigrants—No record is kept in the recruiting districts of the free emigrants leaving them, but the Emigration Agents at Goalundo and Dhubri supply more or less accurate information of the numbers who pass through those places. Their reports show that 42,736 free emigrants left the recruiting districts for Goalundo and 2,224 for Dhubri, giving a total of 44,960 free emigrants, compared with 31,876 in 1894. Of the coolies who travelled via Goalundo, 18 deserted, 77 were discharged, and 7 died on their way to Goalundo or during their stay at that place, the total casualties thus amounting to 102, or 0.23 per cent, compared with 117, or 0.45 per cent, in 1894. Thus 42,634 free emigrants proceeded onward from Goalundo, of these 11,254 were bound for Assam, of whom 7 deserted on the way and 16 died. The Cachar emigrants lost 3 by death on the road, and reached their destination 8,206 strong. Similarly, 23,118 reached Sylhet, 3 having died on the journey. The very large increase (3,018) in the number of free coolies imported into Sylhet is said to be due to a large area in that district having lately been placed under tea cultivation. It must be remembered that coolies for Sylhet and Cachar often go the whole way by country boats which are not under any check.

Of the 2,224 emigrants who left the recruiting districts for Dhubri, the losses on the journey numbered 177, or 7.95 per cent, against 181, or 2.90 per cent, in the previous year, so that 2,047 emigrants arrived at Dhubri. Besides this number, 10,735 free emigrants who embarked at Goalundo were landed at Dhubri for the purpose of executing contracts, raising the total number of arrivals at Dhubri to 12,782. Ninety-two free emigrants remained at Dhubri at the close of the previous year, and 509 casualties occurred at Dhubri, viz, 466 releases, 26 desertions, and 17 deaths, the percentage being 3.95, against 5.13 in 1894, so that 12,365 free emigrants remained for embarkation. Of this number, 12,345 were embarked and 20 remained at Dhubri at the end of the year 1895. Of the number embarked, 11,798 free emigrants had executed labour contracts, and the remaining 547 proceeded as free emigrants. Of the number that embarked at Dhubri, 9 deserted on the journey, 13 were landed on account of sickness, and 21 died, the total percentage of casualties being 0.34, against 0.21 in 1894, so that, there having been 1 birth on the passage, 12,303 free emigrants were landed at their destination.

10 Execution of contracts—In the following statement are set forth the figures connected with the execution of contracts under the Assam Labour and Emigration Act, 1882—

| PLACE | TWO YEARS | | | | THREE YEARS | | | | FOUR YEARS | | | | Grand Total |

During the year 20,694 contracts were executed, 0.10 per cent being for two years, 18.67 for three years, and 81.23 for four years. In 1894 the number was 11,353, and the percentage 24.4 for three years, and 75.5 for four years.

Taking the figures for Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet separately, 0.15, 4.50 and 95.35 per cents of the Assam contracts were for two, three and four years, respectively, of those for Cachar 37.95 per cent were for three and 62.05 per cent for four years, while for Sylhet the majority, viz 96.35 per cent, were for three years, and the remainder, 43.65 per cent, for four years.

11 Offences connected with emigration—Statistics of complaints made against coolies under Act I of 1882, and of complaints made by or on their behalf of such offences as kidnapping and illegal restraint or confinement, are received quarterly from the recruiting districts, together with accounts of all cases of the latter description that come to trial. These returns are reviewed quarterly by Government, and it is therefore unnecessary to dwell upon the subject here.

12 Inspection of cooly depôts and rest houses—The Annual Reports on the inspection of cooly depôts and rest houses, received from the Commissioners of Divisions and the Superintendent of Emigration, are reviewed separately. The Lieutenant Governor has not, therefore, noticed the subject in the present Resolution.

13 Summary—The following table gives a summary of emigrants registered to proceed to the labour districts, via Calcutta, Goalundo, and Dhubri—

The figures of emigrants are approximate and are given in the table as above.

There was thus a falling off in the supply of coolies obtained through certificated garden sardars, and a considerable increase in those recruited under the special local agents system and under the free emigration system. Taking all classes of emigrants together, the results of the year's operations show that the number embarked for the labour districts in Assam was 73,831 in 1895, against 49,789 in the previous year.

14 Casualties—There has been a considerable decrease in the total number of casualties during the year under report, being 1,280 in 1895, against 1,724 in 1894. The mortality from cholera, indeed, rose slightly from 118 to 123, but there has been a falling off in the number of deaths from other causes, being 32 in 1895, against 44 in the preceding year. Another change noticeable under this head is the reduction in the number of casualties among free emigrants, from 1,354 in 1894 to 860 in 1895, and the number of deaths among this class of emigrants compares favourably with that of the preceding year (76 against 103).

15 The whole question of cooly emigration to Assam and the coal mines of Bengal has been under enquiry by a Commission appointed by Sir Charles Elliott during the year. The Report of the Commission has just reached Government and is now under consideration.

16 The Lieutenant Governor desires to record his satisfaction with the efficient manner in which Dr R. Macleod, Superintendent of Emigration, performed his duties during the year, and is pleased to observe that he fully carried out the orders of Government in respect of the inspection of cooly depôts at Goalundo, Raniganj, Asansol, and Purulia.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

M. FINUCANE,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT ON EMIGRATION
FROM THE PORT OF CALCUTTA TO BRITISH AND FOREIGN COLONIES FOR THE YEAR 1895

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EMIGRATION

Darjeeling, the 30th June 1896

RESOLUTION—No 228T.—G

READ—

The Annual Report on Emigration from the Port of Calcutta to British and Foreign Colonies for the year 1895

DR R MACLLOD held the appointment of Protector of Emigrants throughout the year

2 During the year under report Rules 42 and 43 of the Rules under Act XXI of 1883 were altered, so as to define specifically the space to be provided for the accommodation of emigrants in depôts, and Rule 99 was amplified, so as to secure the thorough cleansing and drying of vessels, which carried salt on their last voyage, before embarking emigrants

3 In 1895 no emigrants were required for Nova, St Kitts, St Lucia, St Vincent, Grenada or the French Colonies. The number of adult labourers indentured for shows a large decrease of 5,151 as compared with the previous year, though the demand for Natal, Fiji and Surinam was greater, as will be seen from the following table —

| NAME OF COLONY | 1894 | | 1895 | |
|----------------|--------|--------|--------|--------|
| | Indent | Supply | Indent | Supply |
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 |
| Demerara | 6,675 | 6,743 | 1,840 | 2,282½ |
| Trinidad | 3,000 | 2,987½ | 2,000 | 1,997 |
| Jamaica | 324 | 674 | 460 | 446 |
| Mauritius | 470 | 468 | 330 | 964 |
| Natal | 1,700 | 1,816 | 1,800 | 1,411 |
| Fiji | 90 | 1,034 | 1,340 | 1,341½ |
| Surinam | 1,219 | 1,124½ | 1,617 | 1,78½ |
| Total | 14,638 | 14,865 | 9,487 | 9,976½ |

(A B—C held under ten year franchise no male adult)

No explanation has been given of the decrease in number of labourers indentured for during the year under report

4 The terms of engagement of intending emigrants for the seven colonies requiring labourers in 1895 were, except in the cases of Demerara (British Guiana), Trinidad, and Fiji, the same as in 1894. In the cases of Demerara and Trinidad, the alterations had reference to return passages, and in the case of Fiji to the supply of rations. The changes made in each case were favourable to the emigrants

5 During the year under report 838 licenses were granted to recruiters against 1,023 in the previous year, showing a decrease of 185. Of the licenses granted, 13 were cancelled for misconduct, the percentage of cancellations being 1.55 against 0.58 in 1894. The number of emigrants registered was 17,315 against 26,707 in the previous year, which, excluding those transferred from other depôts, gives an average of over 20 per recruiter against an average of nearly 26 in 1894. Of these 17,315 recruits, 1,115 or 6.43 per cent were recruited in Bengal, 1,979 or 11.42 in Bihar, 10,221 or 59.02 in the North Western Provinces, and 4,000 or 23.10 in Oudh, the percentages in the previous year being respectively 9.32, 13.89, 53.04 and 23.06, the North Western Provinces supplying, it will be seen, an even larger proportion than in the previous year. Among districts, Fyzabad, Benares and Cawnpore again take the lead with 2,471, 1,938 and 1,643 recruits respectively, and in Bengal and Bihar, Shahabad stands first with 1,231 recruits, followed by the 24 Parganas and Patna. These three districts stood first in the previous year also, but in the other districts of Bengal and Bihar there has been a considerable falling off, while in Burdwan and Cuttack there was no recruitment, against 138 and 26, respectively, in the previous year.

Classified by the locality of their birth, 6.84 of the emigrants registered were natives of Bengal and Bihar, 58.69 of the North Western Provinces, 32.97 of Oudh, and about 1.50 of other provinces. Azamgarh supplied the largest number of emigrants who were natives of the district. Among the districts in Bengal, Shahabad stands first. Of the 832 emigrants registered in the 24 Parganas, only 2 were natives of that district. The registration of Nepalese subjects was forbidden during the year by Government order, but 9 emigrants from Nepal had been registered before these orders were received by the Protector of Emigrants.

6. At the end of 1894, 400 emigrants remained in the sub-depôts and History of intending emigrants 2 births occurred subsequent to registration subsequent to registration the parents, so that adding these to the 17,315 recruited in 1893, a total of 17,717 emigrants has to be accounted for. Of these, 2,176, or 12.28 per cent, were rejected as unfit before despatch to the Calcutta depôts, against 3,181, or 11.74 per cent, in 1894, 10 died, 1,288 deserted or were otherwise accounted for before starting for Calcutta, 843 were unaccounted for, and 118 remained in the sub-depôts, so that 13,282 were despatched. There were 7 deaths and 171 other casualties on the journey, thus 13,104 recruits actually arrived at the depôts out of the 17,717 registered, the percentage being 73.96, against 72.5 in the previous year.

The total number accommodated in depôts during the year was 14,584, including 43 readmitted from outside hospitals, 1,423 remaining from the previous year, and 14 infants born in depôts. Of this number, 1,516, or 10.39 per cent, were rejected as unfit, as against 7.56 in 1894, 41 died, 201 deserted, and 1,314 were discharged for various reasons. The total number of emigrants despatched to the colonies was 10,088, or 60.1, of the number registered during the year under report, against 58.78 in the previous year, leaving 824 at the close of the year for subsequent disposal.

The evils of excessive recruitment were dwelt upon in paragraph 6 of the Resolution on the Report for 1894, and the above figures show that there has been no, but the reverse, improvement during the year under review. The Lieutenant Governor again draws attention to the necessity of closer supervision over the work of the recruiters in the mufassal, and of more frequent inspection, and trusts that the present year will show a material improvement in this respect.

With the introduction of sub-depôt registers in 1892, it was expected that every registered emigrant would be accounted for by the Agencies, but it appears that 843 registered emigrants were unaccounted for in 1895, against 927 in 1894 and 345 in 1893. The proportion of persons rejected as unfit after arrival in Calcutta was 10.39 in 1895, against 7.56 and 8.16 in 1894 and 1893, respectively. As pointed out in the Resolution on last year's report the figures indicate not only waste of money, but also distress and discomfort among the rejected recruits through the unsettlement and breaking up of domestic ties to no purpose. The Protector's attention is again drawn to the remarks contained in paragraph 5 of the Resolution on the Report for 1892, and Sir Alexander Mackenzie trusts that every effort will be made to remedy this defect in the system of registration. The Protector says that the Emigration Agents are fully alive to the evil, but the fact remains that though Government has drawn special attention to it during the past three or four years, it still remains unabated. Section 50 of the Act empowers the Protector to award compensation to rejected recruits in addition to the expenses necessary for their return.

journey The Protector should report to what extent he has awarded compensation under that section, and what amounts have been paid for the expenses of sending the rejected recruits back to their homes

7 The total admissions into hospital amounted to 582 and the total mortality to 41, as against 824 and 109, respectively, in the previous year The following table shows the admissions into hospital as compared with the three previous years —

| YEAR | Total strength | Admission into hospital | Percentage to total | Number of deaths | Percentage to strength |
|------|----------------|-------------------------|---------------------|------------------|------------------------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 |
| 1892 | 15,055 | 669 | 4 44 | 56 | 0 37 |
| 1893 | 13,220 | 354 | 2 71 | 14 | 0 10 |
| 1894 | 21,181 | 824 | 3 89 | 109 | 0 51 |
| 1895 | 14,584 | 582 | 3 99 | 41 | 0 28 |

This shows a considerable improvement over the death rate in the previous year The chief causes of sickness during the year were (a) malarial fevers, 157 cases with 6 deaths, (b) chest affections, 115 cases with 16 deaths, and (c) dysentery, 61 cases with 6 deaths It is satisfactory to learn that there were only three cases of cholera in the depôts, of which two proved fatal

8 The number of emigrants embarked was 10,688 against 15,924 in 1894 Of this number, 9,071 were conveyed to British Colonies and 1,617 to the Dutch Colony of Surinam The emigrants were conveyed in 11 sailing vessels and eight steamers, the average number of emigrants carried in each vessel being 562, and is practically the same as in the previous year The longest duration of a voyage was 105 days against 120 days in 1894, the average duration being 69 days as against 77 The aggregate mortality on the 19 voyages amounted to 119 against 336 on the 28 voyages of 1894, a satisfactory improvement Measles in an epidemic form broke out in the sailing vessels Jura and Ena, resulting in 23 deaths in the former and 14 in the latter, but no vessel had to be detained on account of epidemic disease during the year under review

9 The number of emigrants returned in 1895 was 6,514 against 3,804 in 1894 These were 8 sailing ships and 10 steamers employed to convey them against 5 sailing ships and 10 steamers in 1894, the average number carried in each vessel being 361 against 203 in the previous year The longest duration of a voyage was 164 days from Demerara and the shortest 17 days from Mauritius

The aggregate number of deaths was 127, or 1 88 per cent of the number of returned emigrants, against 2 15 in 1894 Besides these, of 28 children born on the voyage, 7 died Among the emigrants who returned from the colonies, there were 27 lepers, of whom 12 came from Demerara, 7 from Mauritius, 4 from Fiji, 2 from Natal, 1 from Trinidad, and 1 from Grenada It is said that during the past year no case of the disease in a sufficiently developed condition to be recognizable was allowed to leave this country for the colonies

In 1895 there were 10 colonies that returned emigrants to India against 6 in 1894, and the aggregate ascertained savings amounted to Rs 13,38,683 4 against Rs 5,94,960 4 1 in the previous year, giving an average of Rs 205 8 1 per emigrant embarked, against Rs 156 6 5 in the previous year The largest average savings per head, taking each colony separately, were again, as in the preceding year, those of the returned emigrants from Natal, and amounted to Rs 337 10, and the smallest were those of the returned emigrants from the French colonies, and amounted to Rs 3 13 8

10 The aggregate number of estates under administration was 434, valued at Rs 84,028 8 4, against 498, valued at Rs 83,093 3 10, in 1894 Of the number under administration, 209, valued at Rs 31,824 14, were finally administered, the sum of Rs 26,884 4 11 having been paid to the heirs traced in respect of 149 estates, and Rs 4,949 9 1 standing at the credit of the remaining 60 estates having lapsed to the Indian and Colonial Governments concerned, owing to absence of heirs in some cases, and the impossibility of finding them in others. Besides these, heirs were traced in respect of 58 estates, valued at Rs 25,008 1 6, which sum was in course of payment at the close of the year. So that enquiries for heirs were completed in 267 estates, or 81 52 per cent, against 310 estates, or 82 2 per cent, in 1894. The remaining 167 estates, valued at Rs 27,195 8 10, were still under enquiry.

The attention of the Government of the North Western Provinces and Oudh will again be invited to the Protector's remarks on the want of village directories for the nine districts in Oudh, which still remain to be published.

11 The year closed with a credit balance of Rs 1,066 13 9 against Rs 16,661 2 in the previous year. Owing to a smaller number of recruits despatched, the receipts derived from the consolidated fee of Rs 3 per head on each cooly embarked fell from Rs 48,456 to Rs 31,101, plus Rs 10 on account of miscellaneous receipts, or Rs 17,345 less than in 1894. A decrease of Rs 1,750 11 9 is also noticed in the charges which, in the previous year, amounted to Rs 31,794 14.

The Lieutenant Governor is pleased to express his approval generally of the satisfactory character of the report under review, but hopes that effective measures will be taken during the present year to put a stop to the abuse mentioned in paragraph 6 above.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the report and of this Resolution be submitted to the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department, for information.

Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to the Protector of Emigrants, Calcutta, for information, and to all Commissioners of Divisions for information and circulation to all District Officers subordinate to them.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE SANITARY COMMISSIONER, BENGAL, FOR THE YEAR 1896

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—SANITATION

Darjeeling, the 30th June 1896

RESOLUTION—No 405T—M

READ—

The Report of the Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal, for the year 1895

Read again—

The Report of the Sanitary Commissioner Bengal, for the year 1894, with the Resolution of Government recorded thereon

The report is submitted by Surgeon Captain Dyson, who took charge of the duties of Sanitary Commissioner on the 26th August 1895, in succession to Brigade Surgeon Lieutenant Colonel Gregg, whose term of office had expired. Owing to delays in the offices of some Civil Surgeons, the report was received a month after it was due, and two of the appendices are still incomplete. The reasons for this should be separately reported. Taking the Province as a whole, the past year appears to have been distinctly healthier than 1894. There was a marked decrease in the mortality from cholera and fever in Bihar, accompanied by a slight increase in these diseases in Bengal Proper. In Orissa the mortality from all causes declined, and the same may be said of Chota Nagpur. At the same time, the birth rate rose everywhere except in the Patna Division, but the registration of births is admitted to be defective, and it is impossible to say how far the variations in the rate are due to physical causes, or how far they depend upon the vigilance and activity of the registering agency. The question of improving this agency is now under consideration in connection with a general scheme for reorganizing the Sanitary Department in Bengal.

2 The number of births registered in Bengal rose from 21,32,247 in 1894, representing a birth rate of 32.81 per thousand of population to 24,58,623, or a birth rate of 34.59 per thousand in 1895. The rate varied from 31.23 in the Presidency Division to 41.06 in Chittagong, where a considerable improvement has taken place in the registration of births. Among districts, Noakhali and Backergunge stood highest with birth rates of 46.61 and 45.92, while Calcutta recorded only 16.05, and the 24 Parganas stood next lowest with a birth rate of 25.73. In 147 towns where births were registered, the rate rose from 22.77 to 23.91, and in 554 rural areas the birth rate was 35.14 as against 33.32 in the preceding year. Only four towns—Jamalpur in Monghyr, Chatra in Hazaribagh, Jamui in Monghyr, and Roserah in Darbhanga—show a birth rate in excess of 40 per thousand, and the rate varied from 44.17 in Jamalpur to 5.42 in Jhalakati in Backergunge. On the other hand, no less than 42 rural areas returned rates of 45 per thousand and over, and after full allowance has been made for the excess of males over females in some towns, and for the fact that many women who live in towns return to their homes in rural areas for their confinement, the standard of birth registration in rural circles appears to be considerably higher than it is in towns. This conclusion is to some extent borne out by the fact that the rural birth statistics show the normal proportion of 106 male births to every 100 female births, while the town statistics give a proportion of 110 male births to 100 female births, though it is not suggested that men living in towns marry later in life than men living in villages.

3 The total number of deaths registered during 1895 was 22,31,458, or 31.39 per thousand, as compared with 24,79,096, or 34.88 per thousand, in the preceding year. In urban areas the rate of mortality declined from 35.34 to 34.46, the figures varying from 59.44 in the small Municipality of Bhadreswar in Hooghly, to 12.68 in Jhalakata in Backergunge. Only sixteen towns returned a death rate

Death rate in towns

Census of India, Volume II Appendix III in excess of 44.8 per thousand, the average rate estimated by Mr. Hardy for Bengal. On the other hand, no less than 27 towns showed a death rate of less than 25 per thousand, which in most cases is probably due to defective registration. The general death-rate of Calcutta rose in 1895 from 32.92 to 30.66, or by nearly 7 per thousand. This was due to the fact that the mortality from cholera in the town increased from 2.48 to 3.07, and that from small pox from .59 to 3.25, while the fever death rate rose from 13.15 to 16.64. A comparison of the mortality by sexes shows that the general death rate of males rose from 28.83 to 34.77, and that of females from 40.70 to 48.95. The increase in either case is remarkable, and if it be true, as was assumed in last year's Resolution, that the death rate among females more truly represents the mortality caused by the actual conditions of life in Calcutta, the statistics point to a serious falling off in the healthiness of the town.

4 The death rate in rural areas fell from 34.85 to 31.24, the highest mortality for such areas being recorded in Jessore (41.32), Nadia (38.85), Darjeeling (38.41), Pabna (37.78), Rajshahi (37.71), Hooghly (37.15), Jalpaiguri (36.08), and Dinajpur (35.95). This accords fairly well with popular impressions as to the comparative healthiness of different districts, and is in marked contrast with the statistics recorded in 1894, when, owing to the prevalence of fever, most of the Bihar districts showed an exceptionally high death rate. Darjeeling owes its high place in the list to the peculiar unhealthiness of the Terai. In 23 rural areas enumerated by the Sanitary Commissioner in paragraph 17 of the Report, the death rate varied from 70.50 in Kushtia to 45.17 in Narail. It is hoped that the reorganization of the Sanitary Department and the extension of the powers of Union Committees now under consideration, will render it possible in future to deal more effectively with unhealthy tracts of this kind.

5 The death rate of males fell from 37.16 to 33.76, and that of females from 32.61 to 29.04. The following table shows the mortality according to age during the last two years —

| | In 1895 | | In 1894 | |
|--------------------------|-----------|-----------------|-----------|-----------------|
| | Deaths | Ratio per mille | Deaths | Ratio per mille |
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 |
| Under 1 year | 448,307 | 19.50 | 486,640 | 212.22 |
| 1 year and under 5 years | 325,915 | 40.81 | 357,810 | 41.80 |
| 5 to 10 years | 182,813 | 17.05 | 201,209 | 18.77 |
| 10 " 15 " | 100,879 | 13.01 | 111,906 | 14.43 |
| 15 " 20 " | 103,780 | 17.63 | 108,805 | 18.45 |
| 20 " 30 " | 222,131 | 19.13 | 242,468 | 20.88 |
| 30 " 40 " | 215,623 | 21.35 | 238,162 | 23.59 |
| 40 " 50 " | 186,352 | 27.28 | 212,684 | 31.13 |
| 50 " 60 " | 165,764 | 40.77 | 191,475 | 47.09 |
| 60 years and upwards | 279,894 | 72.91 | 328,137 | 85.48 |
| Total | 22,31,458 | 31.39 | 24,79,096 | 34.88 |

The figures show a decrease of 16.72 in the death rate among infants under one year. The Sanitary Commissioner discusses at some length the difference between the mortality of the sexes at different age periods, and observes that the results worked out by him from the Bengal statistics do not agree with those arrived at by Mr Hardy in the note already referred to. His conclusions, however, are based upon less comprehensive data than those made use of by Mr Hardy, and do not take into account the special methods employed by the latter to eliminate certain accidental and systematic errors which are found to arise in the reporting of ages in India.

6 The number of persons convicted for neglect to register births and deaths rose from 1,923 to 2,049, and the amount of fines imposed from Rs 2,657 to 3,153. The figures, however, are incomplete, as no return has been received from the district of Dacca. Twenty six persons were imprisoned, and a number of chauldars were punished by departmental fines. No cases were instituted in the districts of Singhbhum, Lohardaga and Noakhali.

On the subject of these fines, the Army Sanitary Commission, in their criticism of the Bengal Report for 1893, make the following remarks —

"No doubt the levy of fines was intended primarily to accustom or educate the people in this important sanitary matter. We have long been struck with the unsatisfactory way in which such fines were inflicted, and were much impressed by the remarks of the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces on this subject, in his orders on the Sanitary Report of those Provinces for 1893. After illustrating by the figures for that year the want of method in inflicting such fines, he says — 'The fines range from Rs 5 a head in Gadarwara to 4 annas a head in Hatta. In place of all this variety of practice the Chief Commissioner would like to see the experiment tried of making fine the rule for breaches of the municipal bye laws for the registration of births and deaths but the fines should be nominal, ranging from one to four annas. Warnings are no good, but a man remembers when he has had to pay a fine however small. The negligent citizen is not a criminal that he should be heavily punished, and fines that average five rupees a head are outrageous sentences, but it is necessary to bring all citizens to the recollection that their bye laws do impose upon them a simple duty which they must discharge.' We would commend these remarks to the authorities in all the provinces of India."

The Lieutenant Governor has no doubt that this is ordinarily a good rule to follow, but there are cases of wilful and persistent recalcitrancy in which a substantial penalty would rightly be inflicted.

7 The following table shows the mortality from the principal diseases during the year, compared with 1894 and the average of ten years 1885 to 1894 —

| CAUSES OF DEATH | In 1895 | | | In 1894 | | | AVERAGE OF TEN YEARS 1885-94 | | |
|-------------------------|---------|-------|----------|---------|-------|----------|---------------------------------|-------|----------|
| | Urban | Rural | Combined | Urban | Rural | Combined | Urban | Rural | Combined |
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 |
| Cholera | 5.44 | 2.40 | 3.40 | 5.88 | 3.59 | 3.63 | 5.50 | 2.43 | 3.47 |
| Small pox | 31 | 14 | 23 | 18 | 11 | 11 | 36 | 14 | 25 |
| Fever | 15.45 | 21.2 | 23.33 | 18.75 | 27.03 | 25.52 | 19.50 | 18.09 | 18.79 |
| Diarrhoea and dysentery | 3.53 | 0.7 | 1.0 | 2.84 | 0.7 | 0.9 | 2.07 | 0.3 | 0.74 |
| Injury | 45 | 39 | 42 | 50 | 45 | 48 | 44 | 41 | 42 |
| Other causes | 7.43 | 4.45 | 4.61 | 7.73 | 4.70 | 4.65 | 6.75 | 3.35 | 5.52 |
| All causes | 31.45 | 31.24 | 31.38 | 34.34 | 34.36 | 34.58 | 30.54 | 25.27 | 28.21 |

These figures bring out that in respect of all diseases except fever, rural areas are more healthy than urban. Their liability to fever is probably due mainly to defective drainage, impure water, and inadequate conservancy, all of them preventable causes which the people themselves may be expected to remove as soon as the requisite legal machinery has been provided. The following table, which has been prepared in the manner suggested in paragraph 11 of the Resolution on the report for 1894, illustrates the comparative mortality from the chief diseases in each of the main divisions of the province —

| CAUSES OF DEATH | DIVISIONS | In 1895 | In 1894 | In 1885—94 | Increase or decrease as compared with 1894 | Increase or decrease as compared with 1885—94 |

The value of the average for ten years shown in the fifth column is greatly discounted by doubts as to the accuracy of the statistics recorded for the earlier years of the period, nor can it be assumed that the proportion of error has been uniform in different districts or different years. The decline in mortality from fever and cholera in Bihar during the past year is remarkable, and it is to be hoped that this may indicate a cessation of the unhealthy conditions which have prevailed in that part of the Province in recent years. The relatively high death rate from cholera, dysentery and diarrhoea, and small pox in Orissa is probably due to the constant movements of pilgrims in that division. The low fever mortality, on the other hand, seems to indicate that the purely local conditions are fairly healthy.

8 The total number of deaths from cholera was 1,77,087, or 2 49 per thousand, as compared with 2,36,150, or 3 32 per thousand, in the preceding year. The districts which suffered most from the disease were Dacca (7 08), Faridpur (6 03), Nadia (5 36), Jessore (5 35), Mymensingh (4 75) and Howrah (4 51). Nearly all the districts which had the highest mortality in 1894 showed comparatively low rates in the past year, while in Pakmanu the mortality fell from 11 16 to 52, and in Shahabad from 9 41 to 2 23. An interesting diagram is given at page 20 of the Report, illustrating the seasonal incidence of cholera in the main divisions of the Province, and showing at the same time the monthly rainfall, but, as the Sanitary Commissioner observes, it proves nothing. Even the standard doctrine that cholera is least prevalent when the rainfall is at its highest seems not to hold good in Bihar and Orissa, where high rates of mortality were recorded during the rains, while in Chota Nagpur the death rate was at its lowest in December, the month of maximum prevalence in Bengal Proper. The Sanitary Commissioner has wisely abstained from discussing any of the current theories of the causation of cholera, and confines himself to the safe observation that the improvement of the local water supply in small towns and villages, and its protection from outside pollution, will bring its own reward in a reduction of the disease.

9 The number of deaths from small pox rose from 8,404, or 11 per thousand, the lowest mortality on record, to 13,020, or 18 per thousand. The highest death rates were recorded in Calcutta (3 25), Faridpur (72), Cuttack (66), Howrah (63), and Midnapore (58). Mortality was also high in the small municipalities near Calcutta, North Dum Dum registering 3 65, Barnagore 2 21, South Dum Dum 1 99, Bally 1 49, and Cossipore Chitpur 1 14. Among rural areas, Panskura and Daspur in Midnapore registered 5 00 and 3 06 respectively, and Patamundi in Cuttack recorded 2 86. No deaths occurred in Singhbhum, only two in Darjeeling, and three in Lohardaga. The subject will be treated at greater length in reviewing the Vaccination Report.

10 Fever as usual takes the first place among the various causes of mortality, and accounts for nearly two thirds of the entire number of deaths in Bengal. As the sanitary

Commissioner observes, the term is loosely construed by the illiterate agency responsible for reporting deaths, so that pneumonia, phthisis and other diseases attended with a rise of temperature, and practically nearly all diseases except small pox and cholera, come to be registered as fever. During the past year, the deaths reported as due to fever numbered 16,34,254, or 22.99 per thousand, as compared with 17,99,833, or 25.32 per thousand, in 1894. The following statement compares the death rate of 1895 with that of 1894, and with the average rate for the ten years 1885-94 —

The conspicuous feature of the similar statement which was published last year was the high mortality recorded in the Bihar districts, which now occupy a place more in accordance with the popular estimate of their comparative healthiness. Jessore (33.43), Dinajpur, (32.83), and Jalpaiguri (32.56) now head the list, while Rajshahi, Purnea, Pabna, Malda, Nadia, Rangpur and Hooghly follow with rates only slightly lower than those quoted. All of these, with the exception of Hooghly, stand high in the column showing the average mortality for the last ten years, and the substantial agreement that exists between these two columns may be taken as a fair test of the normal prevalence of fever in the districts concerned. In all the soil is alluvial and the natural drainage has been more or less obstructed by changes of level and the shifting of the courses of the rivers. At the same time, as the Sanitary Commissioner points out, malarial fever is by no means confined to alluvial areas with defective drainage, but prevails also on the laterite soils of Western Bengal and in the more rocky districts of Chota Nagpur, where surface drainage is rapid and the river channels are not liable to change. Hazaribagh, for example, shows a higher death rate than Chittagong and Burdwan, while in Lohardaga, where the physical conditions are precisely similar, the fever mortality is far lower than in Hazaribagh.

Death rates in excess of 40 per thousand were recorded in the following circles —

| DISTRICT | Circle | Death rate |
|-------------|------------|------------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 |
| Nadia | Kushtia | 55.07 |
| Khulna | Chanduria | 47.82 |
| Darjeeling | Siliguri | 46.28 |
| Pabna | Chatmohar | 45.73 |
| Jessore | Sabkha | 45.13 |
| Jalpaiguri | Falakata | 44.93 |
| Mymensingh | Phulbaria | 44.25 |
| Pabna | Dulai | 43.90 |
| Rajshahi | Barigaon | 43.32 |
| Nadia | Kumarkhali | 42.49 |
| Malda | Malda | 42.18 |
| Nadia | Santipur | 41.44 |
| Jalpaiguri | Alipore | 41.09 |
| 24 Parganas | Lohardaga | 40.47 |
| Bhagalpur | Kishanganj | 40.28 |

In the divisions of Burdwan, Chittagong, Patna, Orissa, and Chota Nagpur no death rate in excess of 40 per thousand was registered. The mortality of the Darjeeling Terai (Siliguri Circle) was again the highest (46.28), but was more than 9 per thousand less than in 1894. Another dispensary has been opened in this tract, a special Hospital Assistant has been appointed to travel about and treat the sick in their villages, and attempts are being made to induce people to boil all water used for drinking.

11. The system of selling quinine by the dose at post offices continues to make progress, and nearly three millions of pice packets were sold during the year. The following table shows side by side the number of deaths from fever in each district, and

The varying relations between the two sets of figures are curious, and doubtless depend to a large extent on the intelligence of the people themselves, and their readiness to avail themselves of the facilities afforded for procuring cheap quinine. With few exceptions, which may be explained by local conditions, the sales are largest in the typical fever districts of Bengal, in Bihar, where fever has set in only of late years, the people have been more backward, while in Orissa and Chota Nagpur the sales are comparatively small. Another aspect of the question is illustrated by the following statement which compares the demand for quinine with the fever mortality month by month during the past year —

12 The deaths from dysentery and diarrhoea during 1895 numbered 49,871, or 70 per thousand of the population, against 58,812, or 82 per thousand, in the preceding year. Calcutta returned the highest death rate (4.79), and Howrah (4.65). Darjeeling (3.90), Balasore (3.21) and Puri (3.20) came next in order. The same five districts have headed the list, though in a different order, for the last three years. In urban areas the death rate from these causes fell from 3.84 to 3.52, and in rural circles from 67 to 55. During the last two years, November, December and January were the months of maximum mortality, the December death rate being in each case the highest of the three. The number of deaths from injury fell from 30,715, or 43 per thousand, in 1894, to 29,178, or 41 per thousand, in 1895. Deaths from causes other than those noticed at length above numbered 3,28,048, or 4.61 per thousand, against 3,45,182, or 4.85 per thousand, in 1894.

The table has been prepared in accordance with the instructions given in the Resolution on last year's report, and includes capital expenditure. The bulk of the increase shown is due to the outlay incurred on the Howrah water works during 1894-95. The statement given in paragraph 57 of the report, purporting to show the effect on the public health of important works of drainage and water supply, is for the most part inconclusive owing to the doubtful accuracy of the statistics of mortality. In the town of Calcutta, however, the mortality has fallen from 37.5 to 28.37 since the introduction of drainage and a filter water supply, the health of Rangpur seems to have been appreciably improved by drainage, and the death rate of Bhagalpur has fallen from 40.4 to 36.59 since the introduction of filtered water. It is too early yet to draw any conclusions as to the influence of the improved water supply recently provided in Arrah and Cossipore Chutpur.

14 The list, given in appendix IV to the report, of improvements carried out in towns and rural areas by Municipalities, District Boards, and private individuals, is incomplete, no statistics having been furnished from ten districts. Among such improvements were included the extension of the water supply in Bardwan, water works and drainage survey in Howrah, a filtered water supply in Cossipore Chutpur, the extension of a similar supply in Maniktola, the settling tanks and a market in Darjeeling, water works in Arrah, drainage works in Patna and Muzaffarpur, extension of water works to the poorer quarters of Bhagalpur, improvement of the water supply of Purnah, and a variety of minor works of a sanitary nature. The total cost of the urban projects amounted to Rs. 10,10,508 against Rs. 3,59,771 in the previous year. No large works were undertaken by the District Boards, but a number of wells were sunk and tanks excavated, and in some districts money was spent on the improvement of road side drainage. The total expenditure was Rs 1,03,912 against Rs 1,10,731 in 1894, but as the figures are admittedly incomplete, no useful comparison is possible. The contributions of private individuals declined from Rs 2,51,453 to Rs 1,88,875. Rural sanitation can as yet hardly be said to exist. The resources of District Boards and Road Committees are at present unequal to meeting the growing demand for improved communications, and village water supply and conservation must await the creation of Union Committees, equipped with the power to raise the necessary funds, and supervised by a staff of trained Sanitary Inspectors working under the orders of the District Board. In the matter of the disposal of night soil by Municipalities, much has been done by Surgeon Captain Dyson, since he has been in charge of the office of Sanitary Commissioner, to improve the system of trenching by explaining to local authorities the theory on which the process is based, and by showing that, if properly carried out, a sewage farm may be made a profitable undertaking.

15 The Sanitary Board dealt with a wide range of subjects during the year, among which the following were the most important —

The Sanitary Board

- (1) The improvement of the Darjeeling water supply by the construction of settling tanks.
- (2) The introduction into Darjeeling of Pasteur Chamberland germ filters. This project was sanctioned by Sir Charles Elliott, against the advice of the Board, on the ground that the terms offered by the contractors were so favourable that the Municipality could not lose even if the experiment proved a failure.
- (3) A scheme for supplying filtered water to the town of Gaya. This is much wanted, and the project prepared promises to give an excellent supply of naturally filtered water at a moderate cost. The Municipality are now considering the question of funds.
- (4) The sewerage of the town of Dacca, and the provision of an unfiltered water supply for flushing drains and watering streets at a cost of Rs 14,50,000. It is doubtful whether the Municipality will be able to afford so large a sum, unless they improve their financial position by a substantial increase of taxation.
- (5) The drainage and sewerage of the town of Howrah. This is a difficult problem, and it is as yet uncertain which of several systems it will be best to adopt. The Municipality will, it is understood, hardly be in a position to deal with the matter effectively until certain questions relating to their water supply have been disposed of.
- (6) The drainage of the town of Krishnagar by the excavation of the Angona khal, a project which has been the subject of much discussion and is now under revision by the Sanitary Board.
- (7) The extension of the Bhagalpur water supply to the poorer quarters of the town at a cost of Rs 3,14,000. This scheme, which was initiated by Mr Skrine when Collector of Bhagalpur, was completely revised in the Sanitary Board's office, and was sanctioned during the year.
- (8) A scheme which owes its origin to the liberality of the Maharani Surnamoyee, CI, for supplying Berhampore with filtered water. The Lieutenant Governor is glad to be able to say that, owing to the wisdom and liberality of the Maharani, certain difficulties which had arisen as to the source of supply, and as to the instalments in which her donation of Rs 2,21,000 should be paid, have now been overcome, and there is every prospect of work being commenced within the next three months.

Besides these large schemes, a number of minor sanitary works, including schemes for supplying filtered water to Faizpur and Pabna, and surveys for surface drainage in nine municipalities, were dealt with by the Sanitary Board during the year.

16 The proceedings of the Sanitary Board also raise incidentally some obscure and difficult questions relating to the examination of water with reference to its fitness for drinking, which it will be convenient to discuss here. In order to relieve the Chemical Examiner to Government of the work which devolved upon him in connection with the analysis of samples of drinking water for municipal and local areas, arrangements were made in January 1894, with Mr Norman Rudolf, Analytical and Consulting Chemist and Assayer at Sewan in the district of Saran, for the conduct of such analyses and local bodies were instructed to send samples of water to him for examination on payment of prescribed fees. The Sanitary Board, however, represented that the analysis of water was too important a matter to be left to the accident of a private practitioner, however capable, being willing to carry it on, and that it would be a better and more permanent plan to strengthen the establishment of the Chemical Examiner, and entrust the work to him. Sir Charles Elliott agreed in this view, and as it happened that Mr Rudolf was giving up his business at the time, the opportunity was taken to adopt the Board's suggestion. Local bodies were instructed to send samples of water for analysis to the Chemical Examiner in future, and that officer's establishment was increased.

In the course of the discussion which ended in this decision, the Sanitary Board were asked to consider, in consultation with the Chemical Examiner, (a) what it would cost to make bacteriological analyses of water in selected cases, (b) whether the results of the chemical analyses ordinarily made should not be expressed on the system known as Wigner's scale, which assigns arbitrary values to the various component elements and determines the character of the water accordingly.

This inquiry elicited a lucid and valuable opinion by Surgeon Captain Evans, which is quoted at length in Appendix V to the Sanitary Commissioner's Report. On the general question of the value of bacteriological analyses per se, if conducted under the most favourable conditions, Dr Evans observed—

"I would point out that the number of pathogenic organisms which can at the present time be identified, either by their morphological characters or micro-chemical reactions, is extremely limited. In the majority of instances inoculation experiment on lower animals is the only means of deciding whether an organism possesses pathogenic properties. Given cases where disease outbreaks are attributed to the water supply, are thorough and complete investigations to be undertaken? If so it should be understood that the work requires very considerable time and a well furnished laboratory. It is enough to form the sole occupation of any one man, and he cannot be even supposed to undertake it at the proposed rate of remuneration that is to say if he has to earn his living as well.

"Bacteriological examinations of waters, undertaken in any other spirit than the thorough method which had been indicated, are less valuable than a chemical analysis. For if otherwise undertaken, it is only possible to say that one sample of water contains so many more organisms per cubic centimetre than another, a circumstance which is very trivial indeed in this climate, unless some of the organisms can be shown to possess pathogenic properties. Distilled water in this laboratory after standing a few days contains very many organisms, probably all quite harmless. The most common diseases in this part of India are malaria, dysentery, cholera and diarrhoea. Cholera has been shown to be associated with, or to proceed from, the entry of a species of comma bacillus into the intestinal tract. The etiology of malaria, dysentery, and diarrhoea is not yet established definitely. Accordingly, I can restrict my remarks to the etiology of cholera. There are apparently many species of comma bacilli, and all have not been proved to possess pathogenic properties. What steps are contemplated, suppose that comma bacilli are found in the cultures obtained from the water of a certain tank? Apart from an outbreak of the disease among persons drinking the tank water such a result may with some degree of certainty be expected, for comma bacilli will probably be found in a large proportion of the tanks in Lower Bengal and that, too, without any outbreak of cholera among the people drinking the tank water. It has lately been shown that cholera bacilli are more potent under certain conditions, and that their pathogenic properties can be exaggerated. When their pathogenic properties are not exaggerated, pure cultures have been imbibed without apparent risk.

"Accordingly, it is only fair to ask, before systematic examinations of water are initiated, whether it is contemplated to take any action on the inferences which may be drawn from the results of such examinations. Should cholera be prevalent among a community using a certain water supply probably the use of that water supply would be prohibited before bacteriological examination could possibly be carried out, as it is a matter of a few days. The examination would then be confirmative only. Should more than one water supply be in use among a community under such conditions then a bacteriological examination might serve to indicate which water supply was at fault. Under such circumstances, the individual making the investigation ought in my opinion under the conditions which prevail in this country, to visit the infected districts and collect the water samples himself.

"The object of my remarks is not to depreciate the value of bacteriological investigation, but to indicate that it should be seriously, and not lightly undertaken, nor too much expected from it. It is a science yet in its infancy practically, and hence not exact, nor applicable in many cases where exact results are demanded. Original bacteriological research is one thing, but the application of bacteriology in practical work is another.

He added that such analyses, in order to be of any use either as determining the quality of water for drinking or as indicating the cause of an outbreak of disease, must be made as soon as the sample of water has been drawn. On this point Mr. Hankin, Chemical Examiner to the Government of the North Western Provinces, writes as follows in his pamphlet on the Bacteriological test of the purity of water —

"In all cases the water to be examined must be tested as soon after collecting as possible. This is necessary because many microbes can grow and reproduce in water. Consequently if water is tested immediately after taking out of the filter well and then again some hours later two or three times as many microbes will be found in the latter case. Care must be taken to avoid this source of error especially in the warm weather, as microbes grow more quickly at a higher temperature. In the hot weather well water or other waters should be tested within an hour of collection. In the cold weather two hours may elapse without introducing any great error.

It is clear from these opinions that bacteriological analyses of water sent from a distance cannot be usefully conducted by the Chemical Examiner, for the simple reason that the condition of the water when it reaches the laboratory may and probably will be entirely different from its condition when drawn. It is shown, however, in the pamphlet already quoted that colonies of microbes may, subject to certain precautions which any intelligent layman can readily learn to apply, be collected in sterilized gelatine and counted with the object of ascertaining how many colonies occur in a given quantity of water. This process, which is understood to be in use at the chief London water works, requires no scientific knowledge to carry it out, and it is intended merely to serve as a test of the condition of the filter beds. If the number of microbes, whether harmless or the reverse, exceeds a certain standard, it follows that the water is imperfectly filtered, and that the condition of the filter beds requires to be looked into. The Lieutenant Governor is of opinion that this system might at any rate be tried in all municipalities which have a filtered water supply, and he desires the Sanitary Commissioner to make the necessary arrangements in communication with the municipalities concerned. The cost will be small, and the work can, it is anticipated, be done by the Engineer in charge of the water works.

Dr. Evans's views on the subject of Wagnor's scale and on the best means of establishing local, as opposed to general, standards by which to judge of the quality of a given water supply, are set forth at length in the extract from his report annexed to this Resolution. In the Lieutenant Governor's opinion, he shows clearly that no chemical test of the purity of water admits of being precisely formulated and universally applied, that varying local standards have been established in England, that these standards are probably not applicable to the water ordinarily in use in Bengal, that no local standards have as yet been arrived at for India, and that it will take a considerable time to establish such standards even for the few places provided with a filtered water supply, while for the country at large the attainment of such a result is indefinitely remote. All that can at present be done is to encourage local authorities to send water for chemical analysis, and to endeavour by degrees to train up a body of men who shall be capable of carrying out on the spot the initial processes of bacteriological analysis leaving the later stages to be conducted by an expert in a central laboratory equipped with the necessary appliances. Thus in course of time standards of purity will be worked out, and it will be possible to say whether a given sample of water conforms to the standard accepted as pure for the locality from which the water comes.

17 Inspections. Brigade Surgeon Lieutenant Colonel Gregg, who was in charge of the Department up to the 25th August 1895, spent 58 days on tour, and inspected 18 municipalities, most of them in the neighbourhood of Calcutta. Surgeon Captain Dyson was on tour for 45 days, during which time he inspected 8 municipalities, the Sonpur fair, several rural areas, and the Emigration Department at Goalando. In the Metropolitan and Eastern Bengal Circle, Drs Oldham, Sinha, and Deare spent 105 days on tour. The officers in charge of the Northern Bengal Circle were out for 146 days, and Dr Vaughan, in Western Bengal, made a tour of 135 days. The Sanitary Commissioner acknowledges the assistance he has received from District Officers and Civil Surgeons when on visits of inspection, but as regards municipalities, he observes—

“I have also been courteously received by non official Chairmen and Vice Chairmen of municipalities, and by those of the Municipal Commissioners whom I have chanced to meet but although I always gave due notice of my inspections, and expressed a desire to see, converse, and go round the town with the members of the Municipal Committee, I regret to say that, in no case, as yet, have any of them except the Chairman sometimes, taken advantage of my visit to discuss sanitation, or shown the slightest inclination to go round with me. The Deputy Sanitary Commissioners also complain of the want of interest taken in their inspections by the Municipal Commissioners, whom their visits most concern. This is much to be regretted, as so much practical good might result from advice given and discussed on the spot, which reams of correspondence afterwards would probably fail to effect. To me this lack of interest in Bengal, in connection with the Sanitary Officer's visits is in remarkable contrast to the eagerness with which he is received in the Punjab, where I was for six years a Deputy Sanitary Commissioner. There, as a rule, most of the members of the Municipal Committee make it a point of accompanying the Sanitary Officer when he inspects a town. The result is a maximum of work with a minimum of correspondence—an example which might very advantageously be followed in Bengal.

The Lieutenant Governor trusts that the Sanitary Commissioner will have no occasion to repeat this complaint. Municipal Commissioners should be the first to realise the advantages which they will derive from personal communication with an expert on the subject of the sanitary improvements of which all towns in Bengal stand so badly in need.

18 The Sanitary Commissioner speaks with approval of the useful inspections made by Dr Vaughan, and the good work done by Dr Deare in overcoming the opposition to vaccination offered by the Ferazi Muhammadans of Eastern Bengal, a subject which will be more fully noticed in reviewing the Vaccination Report. Dr Dyson also mentions the assistance he has derived from his Personal Assistant, Mr A A Price. The Lieutenant Governor's acknowledgments are due to these officers and to Dr Dyson himself for the impulse he has given to sanitary improvement in municipalities, especially in the matter of conservancy and the management of trenching grounds. His Honour desires also to thank the President and Members of the Sanitary Board and the Sanitary Engineer for the valuable advice given by them on a variety of difficult questions.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory) The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore and, other things being equal, reads therefore 0 08 lower The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0 5° higher, and, finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0 6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

No V of 1896

THE following Bill was introduced and read in the Council of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal for making Laws and Regulations, on the 11th July 1896 and is hereby published for information together with a Statement of Objects and Reasons and a Statement showing certain portions of the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, as proposed to be amended —

[New matter is printed in italics.]

(i) to be a demand, or

(ii) to be recoverable as arrears of a demand or as a demand, or

(iii) to be recoverable under Bengal Act VII of 1868 (an Act to make further provision for the recovery of arrears of land revenue and public demands recoverable as arrears of land revenue)

5 For the second sentence of section 8 the following shall be, and be deemed to have always been, substituted, namely —

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The principal object of this Bill is to supply omissions of a clerical character which by oversight were made in sections 8 9 and 27 of the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1890. As the sections at present stand, they do not cover the case of the Local Authorities or certain of the private individuals on whose behalf the certificate procedure may, by virtue of section 7, be used.

The Bill exempts Government officers from payment of Court fees upon requisitions to a Certificate Officer for the issue of a certificate under the Act, and authorises a Certificate Officer to direct that the costs of a successful petition against a certificate shall be paid by the person or Local Authority on whose requisition or on whose behalf the certificate was made.

The opportunity has been taken to remove difficulties which have been felt in the construction of clause (c) of section 19 of the Act and to correct certain errors of a clerical nature which have been discovered in sections 6 (2), 7 (c), 15 and 16 of the Act and in Form No 2 in the Schedule.

IRRIGATION OPERATIONS OF CANALS IN BENGAL DURING THE
RABI SEASON OF 1895 96

No 7291

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL—IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT

Dated Calcutta, the 13th July 1896

RESOLUTION

READ—

Statements Nos I, II and III showing Irrigation Operations of Canals in Bengal during the rabi season of 1895 96

OBSERVATIONS.—The area irrigated in the rabi season of 1895-96 was 123,797 acres against 63,070 acres in 1894 95 showing an increase of 60,727 acres or 196 28 per cent

2 This large increase, which occurred chiefly in the area commanded by the Sone Canals, is readily accounted for by the cessation of the rains in the month of November 1895 in all the Canal districts of Bengal, except Cuttack and Balasore, and the very scanty rainfall in the remaining months of the rabi season

3 It is noted that in the Balasore and Midnapore districts there was practically no demand for canal water during the season

4 It is, however, satisfactory to observe that irrigation in the Burdwan and Hooghly districts from the Eden Canal developed considerably during the year, the area having risen from 20 acres in 1894 95 to 1,885 acres in 1895 96 This increase was chiefly in potato and onion crops for which there was no irrigation in 1894 95

5 The principal crops irrigated from the Sone Canals in the rabi season were sugarcane, wheat, barley and other cereals, gram and various pulses, turmeric, opium, mustard and various other crops included in the class Miscellaneous Very large increases are apparent in almost all classes of crops In sugarcane the area irrigated rose from 17,725 acres in 1894 95 to 23,497 acres in 1895 96, in cereals it increased from 16,753 acres to 64,646 acres, and in pulses, mustard and the crops included in the class Miscellaneous it was 16,526, 377 and 8,897 acres in 1895 96 against 3,747, 37 and 1,352 acres respectively in 1894 95

6 There was no irrigation from the Saran Canals during the year, as they were practically closed on the 31st March 1894

7 The details of the increase or decrease in the irrigation of the rabi crops from each canal during the year 1895 96 compared with those of the previous year are given in the following statement —

WORKING OF THE ANTHROPOMETRIC SYSTEM FOR THE IDENTIFICATION OF OLD OFFENDERS IN THE LOWER PROVINCES

(3) improvements in the measuring instruments, (4) the system of search, including the margin allowed for error due to the 'personal equation' of measurers, (5) the arrangements made in all districts for the early registration of unidentified suspects, (6) the means placed at the disposal of the local police for verifying antecedents without reference to the Central Office, and lastly, figures of the criminal record up to the end of 1894, and of the cases worked out through Anthropometry. In this report, therefore it is only necessary for me to bring the statistical information up to date, and to offer some remarks on the practicability of gradually substituting for Anthropometry a system based upon classified finger prints not supplemented by measurements.

3 A register is kept at each subdivision (the unit in this Province of police administration) of persons not identified at the time of their arrest. During 1895 1,761 persons were registered as unidentified. Of these, the district police subsequently, by enquiry and by referring to their indexes, succeeded in recognizing 1,120 and ascertaining their antecedents, the number remaining unidentified being 641. These figures exclude statistics for the area under the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, which will be separately referred to. Of the 641 persons whom the local police failed to recognize, the Central Office succeeded in identifying 162, equivalent to 25.7 per cent, the figures for the preceding year being 536 unidentified, 112 recognized by Central Office, equivalent to a percentage of 21.

The figures for 1895 include 10 females and 31 juveniles who, under our rules, are not liable to measurement, and 90 non British subjects belonging to Native States, where Anthropometry has not yet been introduced, and who, consequently, cannot have been registered on anthropometric data. If these 131 persons are excluded from the total of unidentified as representing cases not recognizable by Anthropometry, the figure of success rises to 16, against 27 in the preceding year.

In addition to the 162 cases from Bengal districts, 44 persons were traced for the Calcutta Police and 1 for Assam, bringing the total of successful cases up to 207, against 143 in the preceding year.

4 In 54 of these the name and residence given by the suspect proved to be correct. But as criminals, in order to defeat enquiries, sometimes give the correct name and address of persons other than themselves, this information until verified, was of no value. Unless witnesses had been called, it would not, without the assistance of Anthropometry, have been possible to ascertain whether the name given was the real name of the suspect or of some other person. This information might, of course, have been verified by calling witnesses, but this would have entailed delay, and the Courts are averse to granting remands unless there are grounds for believing that the police have a good clue. In all cases unidentified suspects give names and residences which three times out of four prove to be wrong, and much labour, expense and delay is avoided by calling in the aid of Anthropometry, and up to the present time it has in no instance caused the wrong person to be identified. The Central Office is in a position to state with absolute certainty that the measurements and thumb impressions sent for examination belong to a person who, under the name they specify, was convicted in a certain place on a certain date. All, then, that is necessary is to get this information verified to the satisfaction of the Courts in the manner prescribed by law, viz., by obtaining an extract from the records of the Court where the conviction was had, or by producing a certificate from the officer in charge of the jail where the punishment was inflicted, together with evidence as to the identity of the accused with the person so convicted.

A specially interesting instance of the effectiveness of the system occurred during the year. Two cases of professional robbery by poisoning were reported within a couple of days of each other in the Dacca district. The detective entrusted with the enquiry had no difficulty in ascertaining that the culprit was one Rujit Dasadh alias Kokil Dasadh, registered poisoner and ex-convict, a resident of the adjoining district Muzaffarpur. He was not to be found, having absconded, and there was in consequence no further clue. Weeks afterwards some travellers were taken out of the train at Dacca, apparently so helplessly drunk that it was deemed necessary to send them to the hospital. There the drunkenness was ascertained to be dhatura poisoning. The district police, who took up the enquiry, could get little assistance from the victims, who continued for some time in a condition of incoherency, but, on chance, they arrested a stranger to the place, who had been seen in company with the drugged men. He stoutly protested his innocence and disclaimed any acquaintance with them, giving his name as Ram Saran Singh, and an address up country. Being at fault, the local police measured him and took his thumb impression, which they forwarded to the Central Office, where he was at once recognized as the missing Rujit alias Kokil Dasadh, wanted in the Dacca cases—a man who, under various aliases, had been convicted in several districts, having passed $12\frac{1}{2}$ years in jail. Upon being confronted with accurate details of his past life he admitted his identity and his guilt in the Dacca cases, and was sentenced at the Sessions there to eight years' imprisonment, and has now been forwarded for trial in the Dacca cases. Had it not been for the clue given by Anthropometry, this dangerous criminal might have escaped, for without his admission of guilt he might not have been convicted, owing to the difficulty of proving the administration of the poison. Dacca is some five hundred miles or more from Muzaffarpur, and the identity of Ram Saran Singh with the missing Rujit alias Kokil Dasadh would not even have been suspected.

6. Considering the comparatively short time the system has been working in Bengal, the results obtained must be considered satisfactory, as about 1 in 3 of possible cases are being recognized, while it is not improbable that amongst those remaining unidentified are persons not previously convicted, and whose measurements consequently could not have been taken for record.

7. But although the success achieved is as great as could have been expected, experience has brought into relief some inherent defects of the system which detract from its value. Notwithstanding the improvements effected in the instruments, both of which are automatic in their working, one being self-registering, the error due to the "personal equation" of measurers cannot be eliminated or even reduced to a negligible quantity. The measurer may take incorrect measurements through inattention to rules, or, having obtained accurate results, may read them incorrectly, or, having read them correctly, they may be incorrectly transcribed, or the measurements of A may be transcribed as B's measurements. Every check that experience can dictate has been adopted, and that these checks are fairly effective our results demonstrate. Still, the margin for error is considerable, and if the sustained attention now given to this subject be relaxed at any time, results will certainly fall off.

8. It has been claimed for the Anthropometric system that the probability of all six measurements of any two persons coinciding is so small that a fraction with a denominator of five figures is required to represent it arithmetically. The assertion would be correct if no allowance had to be made for the "personal equation" error. But, in practice, such allowance, and a considerable allowance, has to be made, the result being that coincidences in measurements are not unfrequent. In the Central Office no positive deduction as to identity from measurements is considered safe or is made, reliance being placed exclusively in determining identity upon similarity in the innumerable details which make up the pattern of the thumb impression.

9 A system of identification by means of finger impressions would have the following amongst other advantages over Anthropometry. The accessories, a piece of tin and some printers' ink, are inexpensive and procurable everywhere, the impressions are self signatures, free from possible errors of observation and transcription, any person of ordinary intelligence can learn to take them with a little practice after a few minutes' instruction, no objection can be raised on the score of religion or caste, or rank in society or even sex, their characteristics being persistent throughout life, the finger impressions of a child could be used to identify the same person when he had reached middle or old age, the patterns which appear on these impressions are easily recognisable, and are susceptible of such succinct and exact definition (under the system explained in the Police Circular, copies of which accompany this report), that the most complicated pattern can be described in four or five words with sufficient completeness for purposes of comparison, and lastly, the evidential value of identity obtainable from the scrutiny of the prints of two or three fingers is so great that no person capable of weighing it would deem it necessary to seek for confirmation elsewhere.

10 The problem which remains to be solved is whether it is possible to devise a system of classification based solely upon finger impressions, which will give sufficient power of differentiation to enable duplicates to be unerringly traced in a collection of the finger impressions, say, of 20,000 persons. This problem is now being worked at, and so far, results are not unpromising, serious difficulty being experienced in respect of only two combinations. With extended experience these difficulties may be overcome, but as, up to the present, the impressions of only about 5,000 persons have been classified, it would be premature to express an opinion as to whether a solution is probable.

11 Being impressed with the advantages which a system of identification by finger impressions would possess over Anthropometry, I have endeavoured to popularise amongst police officers a knowledge of the subject by issuing a circular which explains by means of diagrams the details of patterns, their classification, and the points to be kept in view when attempting to decipher them. I forward some copies of this circular for the information of Government, as it may prove of use in the Registration and other Departments. A number of police officers have acquired a good working knowledge of the details of finger print decipherment, and their number is being added to, as it is one of the subjects of the Training School curriculum.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 88 formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beck's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM FOR THE MONTH OF JUNE 1896

As the approach of the monsoon current takes place about the middle of June, weather during the early half of the month is usually very different from what obtains later, and the two periods require separate discussion. A comparison of the mean values of pressure, temperature and rainfall for the whole of the past month shows a very close resemblance to the corresponding quantities for June of last year. In both years pressure was above the normal in the north as compared with the south of the province. This gave rise to winds more easterly than they should be, and led to the moist current from the Bay being deflected westwards across the north of the Bay towards the Orissa Coast. The distribution of the rainfall was consequently more unequal than it would be in an average year. Orissa and the south western districts of Bengal and Chota Nagpur received from 30 to 60 per cent more than their normal amounts, and the northern districts less, especially North Bengal where less than half the normal for the month was received. In June 1895 the difference was very marked, there being in Orissa excess of 10 inches and in North Bengal defect of 10 inches. During the present year it was not so great, Orissa receiving about 6 inches excess and the defect in North Bengal being under 9 inches.

During the first half of the month the moist current gives much more rain to East and North Bengal than to other parts of the province, and it is only after the monsoon commences with a cyclonic storm that heavy rain falls in the south west. In the present year pressure was almost uniformly high in Bengal for the two first weeks, and this arrangement prevented the northerly movement of the moist air over East and North Bengal. As it was deflected towards the west, rainfall was more frequent in Lower Bengal and Orissa, being caused by thunderstorms. These thunderstorms occurred simultaneously with slight variations in the wind system, variations that were too local to affect the general movement of the air towards the west. As the air was more heavily charged with moisture than usual, precipitation was readily produced, and local showers were of almost daily occurrence in Lower Bengal.

As the sky was more cloudy in the south of the province, and comparatively clear in the northern districts, while the cooling effect of thunderstorms was of frequent occurrence in Lower Bengal, temperature was unusually low in the first half of the month at stations in the south and more especially in the central districts.

Soon after the middle of the month the first storm of the season advanced from the south of the Bay almost due north till the centre was near Calcutta. After remaining stationary there for several hours it moved away to the west, and the heavy rain which it caused was confined to the south of the province.

After an interval of only a few days a second depression began to develop in the north east of the Bay. It attained much greater depth than is usual during the monsoon season even before it began to show signs of changing its position. It then moved to the west north west passing over South West Bengal and Chota Nagpur.

After these depressions moved out of the province and the pressure distribution had become normal rainfall became more general in the northern districts, but it will be seen from what has been written above that conditions were unfavourable for heavy rain in the north for the first half of the month, and that the westerly movement of the disturbances during the latter half left little chance of the deficit being made up.

At the beginning of June pressure was in excess over the whole of the province and the Bay, but excess was greatest in North Bengal, Bihar and Assam. Winds were almost due east at all the inland stations and temperature was from 1 to 10 below the normal, the greatest defect being at Bogota, Rampur, Bodha and Serajganj. As stated above, this arrangement was favourable for rain in the south of the province, and it remained almost unchanged till the 7th, except that temperature gradually rose and became very nearly normal. On the 8th pressure began to fall slowly and continued to fall, but with increasing rapidity, till the 9th when the distribution was nearly normal. There was still, however, excess in the west and centre of the Bay. Westerly winds became general over the south west and centre of the province, and rainfall became more frequent and at times heavy in East and North Bengal. Conditions were practically normal over the whole province from the 8th to the 10th.

On the latter date pressure again began to rise over Bengal and a brisk fall set in over the south west of the Bay, the double change having a marked effect on the distribution. The winds again became easterly, and as the pressure continued to rise in the north till there was again a large excess, conditions similar to those of the early part of the month became established for several days.

During the days from the 10th to the 14th important changes were occurring in the extreme south of the Bay. Pressure was steadily falling and a considerable defect had accumulated at Colombo. The variation from the normal on the 14th ranged from excess of 1 inch at Faridpur to defect of 1.13 inch at Colombo, so that the gradient on that date was a quarter of an inch less steep than it should have been.

A decided change set in on the 15th. Pressure fell rapidly in the north-east of the Bay and in Bengal, and the gradient became much steeper in the south of the Bay, showing that the depression was moving northwards. Heavy rain began at Tavoy and Moulmein, and considerable amounts fell as far north as Akyab. On the 16th the depression was to the east of the centre of the Bay and had most effect on Diamond Island and Bassien, where there was a rapid fall of pressure. The gradient steadily became steeper, and the centre of the depression was daily more to the north. On the 18th it was close to the Bengal coast and on the morning of the 19th the centre was at no great distance from Calcutta.

While the centre was still over the sea, there was nothing to show that the depression had attained to any great depth except the steady steepening of the gradient to the south. The wind velocity was not very high at Diamond Island, the highest average for twenty-four hours being 31 miles an hour. It is probable therefore that it deepened quickly while close to the Bengal coast as pressure fell a quarter of an inch on the 19th at Calcutta and a fifth at Saugor Island to the east of which the centre passed inland. Though the gradient was then steep over the whole of the province and the Bay, unusually calm weather prevailed in Lower Bengal. Winds however strengthened considerably at a distance from the centre both to the south and the north. In the north west angle wind velocity rose to 42 miles an hour.

After remaining almost stationary for some hours with the centre near Calcutta, the depression moved rapidly towards the west, was near Chaibasa on the morning of the 20th and had left the province on the 21st, when pressure was recovering rapidly in all districts.

On the 22nd the pressure distribution was normal and on the 23rd readings were relatively higher in the west than in the east of the province. Consequently westerly winds set in and penetrated to the extreme east, causing an almost entire cessation of rainfall. But the fall of pressure in the east extended southwards to the Bay, and almost immediately another depression began to form. On the 25th the indications were not very decided—only an irregular cyclonic circulation of the winds and a rather large defect in pressure over the north east of the Bay. On the 26th and 27th the depression deepened rapidly without changing its position to any great extent, but its movement was evidently towards the north west. It crossed the coast of the Sunderbuns on the night of the 27th, and at 9 A.M. of the 28th the centre was near Calcutta where there was defect of more than half an inch.

The depression was much deeper than is usual at the end of June, the lowest reading observed being under 29 inches.

During the three days while the centre was practically stationary in the north east of the Bay, weather became very stormy, and after the centre moved inland strong winds were felt as far west as Saugor Island, but on the Orissa coast the wind never was more than moderately strong.

On the 29th the area of lowest pressure was over the north of Chota Nagpur and the west of Bihar. Pressure had risen very rapidly over Lower Bengal and the distribution was normal except in the extreme west, where there was defect of a fifth of an inch. On the 30th all trace of it had disappeared.

Stormy weather with general rain prevailed over the province on the 28th and 29th but on the 30th rainfall had to a large extent ceased, and ordinary monsoon weather obtained over the Bay.

Pressure.—As stated above, pressure was steadily above the normal during the early part of the month, excess at times being nearly a fifth of an inch. During the latter half the influence of the two depressions was the chief feature, and readings at times were very low. The greatest defect for the first depression was $\frac{3}{16}$ inch and for the second $\frac{1}{8}$ inch. Mean pressure for the whole month differs by only small amounts in North Bengal and Bihar. In the south of the province the difference was somewhat greater, but generally under $\frac{1}{8}$ inch.

Temperature.—The month began with very cool weather over the whole province, more especially in the central districts. The defect gradually disappeared, but was again restored for a time before the middle of the month. In the latter part temperature was low in the southern districts during the periods of unsettled weather caused by the depressions. Owing to the rather frequent occurrence of low daily temperature the mean temperature for the month is below the normal by 2° in Orissa, $1^{\circ} 7'$ in Chota Nagpur and $1^{\circ} 6'$ in South West Bengal. In North and East Bengal and Bihar the difference is small, and in Assam there is a mean excess of $1^{\circ} 6'$.

The mean difference from the normal in day temperature varies from excess of 3° at Jalpaiguri to defect of 4° at Cuttack. In night temperature it varies from excess of 2° at Rangpur and Dhubri to defect of 2° in Orissa.

Rainfall.—The rainfall, as in June of last year, has been, compared with the normal, much more copious in the south of the province than in the north. The average fall in Orissa was 14.91 inches with excess of 5.71 inches; in East Bengal 16.69 inches, practically the normal amount; in North Bengal 17.28 inches with defect of 8.76 inches. In Chota Nagpur and South West Bengal there was defect of about 3 inches and in Bihar defect of 1.25 inches. Over a great part of the centre of the province very nearly the normal amount has been received. The line dividing the area of deficient amounts from that where they are in excess runs almost from west to east following the line of the Ganges, except in East Bengal, where it tends more to the east instead of to the south. Over the area to the south of this line excess amounts increase slowly towards the south, but are never more than 5 inches except in Orissa and part of South West Bengal. In Orissa excess is almost always over 5 inches, and in places near the coast it is as much as 10 inches. At the mouth of the Bhamra over a small area it is more than 15 inches. Northwards defect increases to 5 inches in the north of Bihar and in North Bengal it increases very rapidly, being more than 6 inches over a great part of the division, and from 15 to 25 inches in the Darjeeling, Jalpaiguri and Cooch Bihar districts, with the exception of the station of Darjeeling, where there is excess of 10 inches.

The heavy rainfall in the southern districts, being caused chiefly by the cyclonic storms in the latter half of the month, is in the area over which the centres of the disturbances passed In a tract of country extending westward from the Balasore and Midnapore districts, the falls are between 15 and 20 inches In Orissa they are between 10 and 15 inches, except in the Kendrapara, Jajpur and Cuttack districts, where they are from 15 to 20 inches Over a great part of Lower Bengal the falls vary from 10 to 15, but in places as in the neighbourhood of Calcutta they are more than 15 inches In the north of the province falls are generally under 10 and in parts of Bihar under 5 inches In North Bengal the only fall of more than 20 inches is at Darjeeling, where it is 32.7 inches

Bills of the Bengal Council

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT

BILL TO FURTHER AMEND THE BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, 1884

THE following Report of the Select Committee, together with the Bill as amended by them, is, by order of the President, published for general information —

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE

WE, the members of the Select Committee appointed to consider the Bill to further amend the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, have the honour to submit the following report —

Papers Nos 1 to 37

1 We have considered the marginally noted reports on the Bill

2 We have amended section 3 of the Bill referred to us so as to confer the right of voting at municipal elections on all persons who have paid or been assessed to income tax, and we have also extended the franchise given by proviso (2) to section 15 of the Act to licentiates of Government Vernacular Medical Schools and revenue agents. As some of the opinions indicate that section 15 in its present form is liable to be misunderstood we have added an explanation which expresses in popular language the extent of the power which the Government possesses under the present law of prescribing by rule the qualifications required to entitle any person to vote.

3 At the instance of the Magistrate of Dacca and the Municipal Commissioners of Dacca and Naranganj, we have introduced a section amending section 39 of the Act so as to provide a remedy if a Chairman or Vice Chairman fails to call a special meeting when required to do so.

4 We have amended section 69 of the Act by providing that the Municipal Fund shall not be applied to the training and employment of female medical practitioners or to veterinary purposes unless the Commissioners are satisfied that the other objects of Municipal expenditure which they consider more important have been sufficiently provided for.

5 To the same section we have added a clause enabling the Commissioners to pay from the Municipal Fund the travelling expenses of delegates attending meetings held under the Indian Councils Act, 1892, for the purpose of recommending persons to be nominated as Members of the Lieutenant-Governor's Council

6 We have adopted a suggestion made by the Commissioner of Patna that a separate account shall be kept of receipts and expenditure relating to hospitals and dispensaries, as is done in the cases of water rate, lighting rate and house service fees

7 On the strong representation of several Municipalities, we have amended sections 142 and 147A of the Act, and have added an explanation to those sections, with the object of removing the difficulties which have been felt in interpreting the word "habitually" in section 142

8 In order to legalise a practice which has prevailed for some time past in the town of Nasirabad, and which other municipalities are understood to be anxious to adopt, we have amended section 279 of the Act so as to admit of water rate varying with the distance of houses or lands from the nearest stand pipe or other source of supply, and of a higher rate being levied from premises to which communication-pipes are attached

9 We have amended section 322 of the Act in order to enable the Commissioners to debit to the house service fees a reasonable proportion of the cost of their general collecting and supervising staff

10 At the suggestion of several municipalities, we have added to section 350 a clause empowering the Commissioners to make bye laws prohibiting the letting off of firearms, fire works, fire balloons or bombs, except by permission and on payment of a fee

11 In section 101(f) we have corrected an error of drafting which occurred in Bengal Act IV of 1894, and have added the power of firing municipal servants to the other powers conferred

12 In order to legalise a practice which has prevailed for the last thirty years in Patna, and with the concurrence of the majority of the District Officers and municipalities whose opinions have come before us, we have added to the Bill a section enabling the Commissioners to charge fees at such rates as may be sanctioned by the Commissioner of the Division for the use of music in the streets on the occasion of festivals or ceremonies not being of a religious character

13 We have made some verbal changes in the Bill, to which it is not necessary to refer, and we recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed

CALCUTTA,
The 17th July, 1896

I sign this report with this note of dissent. I do not see why the Legislature shall not definitely provide for the qualifications of voters. Who are the persons entitled to vote at elections is the most important point, so far as the constitution of the Municipality, based on the principle of Local Self Government, is concerned, in a Municipal Act, and this point it is proposed to leave to the Executive Government to settle, with the power, not only of lowering the qualifications as to the payments of rates, but also with the power of declaring that any persons who are not even referred to in the Act shall be entitled to vote. I do not in the least mean to imply that these extensive powers that it is proposed to confer on the Local Government shall not be wisely exercised in furtherance of real Local Self Government, but I submit that if our legislative enactments are to be of any use, they should definitely provide for all important points and leave only the merest details to be fixed by subsequent rules. If rules were to be the guide there was no use whatever in bringing this matter of amendment of the Municipal laws before the Legislature. If, however, any materials for a definite enactment be wanting, there is nothing, I believe, to prevent such materials being sent for. There is certainly no hurry about the measure.

In this connection I suggested the following amendments in the Select Committee, and I reserve my right of moving for their adoption in Council. At the end of section 3 (1), I shall move for the addition of the following words — “in the Municipalities of Howrah, &c, and not less than one rupee eight annas in any other municipality.” I shall add a fourth clause to section 3 (1) thus — “(iv) has paid not less than Rs. 20 as rent, during the year immediately preceding such election, in respect of the occupation by him of a holding which is assessed with the rate under section 85, clause (b).”

I shall omit the explanation now added to section 15 of the Act.

I shall also omit clause (2) of section 3 of the Bill. A large class of persons, unless they too are to be brought in by the second clause of the Explanation, will otherwise be disenfranchised, the class who have now a vote because they pay the fee for registration of carts. I am sure they are a more intelligent class of men than the fishermen of Monirampur, who, on the testimony of Hon'ble Babu Surendranath Banerjee, exercise their right of voting intelligently, and set a value on it.

I find a strong body of weighty opinions coming from such high officials as Messrs Westmacott, Bourdillon, and such Associations as Bihar Indigo Planters, &c, &c, opposed to the expenditure of municipal funds on clauses (vii), (ix), (x) (xi) (veterinary hospitals, &c, &c) of section 6 of the Bill. I reserve my right of moving in Council for the omission of these clauses, and also for moving further amendments on some other minor points.

GURU PROSHAD SEN

I sign the Report subject to my note of dissent. I am of opinion that the franchise should be given to all undergraduates who have passed the First Arts Examination of the Calcutta or any other Indian University. I would claim for them that they would be at least as intelligent a class of voters as Mukhtars and Revenue Agents, and the safeguard provided by the Rules of Election that no one shall be entitled to vote who has not attained the age of 21 years would preclude voters who might be supposed to be too young to exercise the franchise. The amendment which I suggest would be in entire accordance with the spirit of the Bill, which undoubtedly represents an important step towards the admission of a large class of intelligent voters who hitherto did not possess the franchise.

Further, I hardly think the establishment and maintenance of veterinary dispensaries is a matter which will be within the financial competence of most municipalities. They will not have the requisite funds for the purpose, and the clause will probably remain a dead letter. It seems to me to be a distinct disadvantage to clog a legislative enactment with a provision which is likely to remain inoperative. I quite recognize the fact that this and the other clauses providing for expenditure on veterinary purposes are permissive in their character, and that there is the additional safeguard provided by the condition which has been introduced into the section at the instance of the non-official members, that it is only after adequate provision has been made for what may be regarded as the primary needs of a municipality, can funds be devoted to veterinary purposes.

STATEMENT OF BUSINESS

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said —“Gentlemen, the list of business that demands the exercise of your legislative faculties to day is certainly not large, and, whether judged by its length or the importance of the subjects, it seems a priori hardly sufficient to justify the summons which has drawn you away from your ordinary pursuits to this Council Chamber. It consists, as you will perceive, of mere formalities, but though the motions to be brought forward are of a purely formal nature, they are absolutely necessary by the rules which guide our proceedings, in order to smooth the way for the enactment, later on, of those measures to which they refer. It is a fortunate circumstance that the work before us is of this light description, seeing that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, who presides over our debates, is unable to be present on this occasion, and that we are also deprived of the assistance of several other members of this Council, including the Hon'ble the Advocate General, who watches over our proceedings and keeps them from wandering off the legal track. It is perhaps well, then, that all disputatious points, all contentious questions, and all that is comprehended under the term ‘the weightier matters of the law,’ should be reserved for the forensic skill of the learned Advocate General, while we ourselves should accept with a thankful heart the small measure of anise and cummin that forms our frugal portion to day. It is a different story when we come to the formidable array of questions prepared for us. They are of wide range, varying interest, and of greater or less importance, and I rejoice that it does not devolve on me to frame replies, though the first question relating to river sanitation is one that would naturally interest me as a former magistrate of the riparian districts concerned, and I have a presentiment that it is a sort of question that may at any time come home to me as Chairman of the Sanitary Board. At any rate it is a question of extreme difficulty, and involves important issues. The rest of the paper consists of no less than seventeen problems, with many riders attached, and were I to attempt to solve them I should most assuredly be plucked, but I have no doubt that my hon'ble friends Mr Risley and Mr Finucane, upon whom all difficulties sit so lightly, will be able to completely satisfy the examiners.”

POLLUTION OF THE RIVER WATER

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE asked—

(a) Whether the attention of the Government has been called to the complaints which have appeared in the Newspapers regarding the pollution of the river water by the discharge of objectionable matter into the river by the Mills on both banks of the river?

(b) Is the Government aware that Dr Simpson, the Health Officer of Calcutta, reported on the 12th June, 1894 —“This is a matter I think that should be taken up by the Bengal Government or the Sanitary Commissioner who should prevent pollution of the river. The drainage of such objectionable matter ought not to be allowed” and that again on the 12th September, 1894, Dr Simpson reported as follows —

“I take it that the river is used, because it is a simpler and cheaper mode of disposal of the waste matter of the Mills than the construction of proper drains and the purification of lands in their own districts and if one or two Mills are to be allowed this privilege, it is difficult to know on what grounds other Mills may be disallowed, and there can be no doubt that such a multiplication would be at the expense of the public health of all the inhabitants who may have to take their drinking water from what must ultimately become, notwithstanding the volume of the water, a most potent cause of ill health.”

(c) Whether in view of this expression of opinion by the Health Officer of Calcutta, and of a similar expression of opinion by Dr Mahendralal Sircar on the Calcutta Journal of Medicine for March, 1896, and having regard to the fact that the riparian municipalities on both sides of the river, which largely make use of the river water for drinking purposes, suffered severely from the recent outbreak of cholera, the Government will be pleased to consider the propriety of taking necessary steps to prevent the pollution of the river by the discharge of sewage into it from the Mills.

(d) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the factories lying on both banks of the river, the factories which have been built since September, 1894, the date of the last report of the Health Officer quoted above, the industry carried on in each, the arrangements existing in each factory for the disposal of its refuse, both liquid and solid, and complaints, if any, that have been made in regard to them

The Hon'ble RAI ESHAN CHANDRA MITTRA BAHADUR asked—

Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table all the papers in connection with the abandonment of the proposal for a special legislation to put an end to the pollution of the water of the river Hooghly by the discharge of noxious matter from certain Mills (vide page 18 of the Administration Report of Bengal for the year 1894-95)

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state if the opinion of the Sanitary Commissioners or of other competent medical authorities was taken on the subject?

(b) If that was not done, will the Government, in view of the general alarm caused by the recurrence of cholera year after year in the riparian municipalities of Calcutta, Howrah, Serampore, Hooghly and Naihaty, &c, and attributed as due, in a great measure, to the aforesaid pollution of the water, appoint a Commission consisting of competent official and non official medical authorities to enquire and report on the matter?

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY replied —

"In reply to the questions asked by the Hon'ble Babu Surendranath Banerjee and the Hon'ble Babu Eshan Chandra Mittra regarding the pollution of the river Hooghly, I have the honour to lay on the table a collection of the correspondence on the subject which is still proceeding, and to say that the question, which is one of considerable difficulty, particularly in view of the provisions of the English law in regard to the pollution of rivers, will be referred to the Sanitary Board for opinion."

INSPECTOR GENERALSHIP OF REGISTRATION

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE asked—

Whether the attention of the Government has been called to a statement which has appeared in the public press, to the effect that it is under contemplation to abolish the office of Inspector General of Registration on the retirement of the present incumbent, and to amalgamate it with the office of Director of Land Records, which is held by a covenanted officer, the pay of the latter office being raised, upon the amalgamation taking place, from Rs 1,800 a month to Rs 2,250 a month, the pay of a first grade Magistrate Collector? Is there any foundation for this statement?

The Hon'ble Mr FINUCANE replied —

"No such step is in contemplation."

FLOGGING OF TWO YOUNG CHIEFS OF ORISSA

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE asked—

Whether the attention of the Government has been called to a statement which has appeared in the public press, to the effect that Mr Hallward, the Principal of the Cuttack College, caused two young Chiefs of Orissa, the Rajkumars of Narsingpur and Pal Lehara, to be flogged, because on the preceding evening they had neglected to salaam him when the Principal was playing golf at the Cuttack maidan? Is there any truth in this allegation? If so, what orders have been passed by the Government regarding the conduct of the Principal? If the above allegation is true, does the Government consider Mr Hailward to be a fit person to remain in charge of a College like the Cuttack College? Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table all the papers in connection with this matter

The Hon'ble Mr A M Bose asked—

Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the statements in the Newspapers about the flogging of two young Chiefs, who were students in the Ravenshaw Collegiate School, under the orders of the Principal for the alleged offence of not having salaamed him when they were out riding the previous afternoon? Is it the fact that no enquiry of any description was held previous to the flogging being inflicted, and that it was of a severe character and not administered in the way of school discipline? Is there any truth in the statement that, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the Division, almost all the minor Chiefs of the Tributary State, including the two Chiefs referred to above, have been withdrawn from the school in consequence of this proceeding on the part of the Principal? Will the Government be pleased to communicate the result of any enquiry which it may have held into the matter, or to order one if none has been held? Does it approve of the conduct of the Principal, and if not, what notice does the Government propose to take of it?

The Hon'ble Mr FINUCANE replied —

“The Lieutenant Governor has already dealt adequately with the case as a matter of departmental discipline, and declines to lay the papers on the table.”

SUBJECTS FOR GOVERNMENT AND UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE asked—

Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a list of subjects prescribed for the various examinations from the Lower Primary to the B A Examination with the books prescribed for each in 1895-96, together with the prices of these books, the number of pages which each book contains, and the number of pages which the students are required to read. Having regard to the multiplicity of books and subjects, does not the Government consider that quality is being sacrificed to quantity with serious injury to the best interests of the rising generation? If so, will the Government be pleased to take such steps as to the Government may seem fit with a view to reduce the number of subjects and books, and fix them for a definite period at least, as the frequent change of books is a serious hardship to poor students in this country

The Hon'ble Mr FINUCANE replied —

“The Statement asked for by the Hon'ble Member is laid on the table

“The courses and standards for the higher examinations named in the question, namely, those from the Entrance to the B A, are settled by the University, and are in no way under the control of this Government

“As regards those examinations which are under the Lieutenant Governor's control, the standards fixed for them have been before the public for many years, and no complaint has reached the Government that they are open to objection either in the extent of the course or in the cost of the necessary books. The number of pupils in all classes of schools, from the lower primary to the middle, goes on steadily increasing. Having regard especially to the reductions that have recently been made in the middle scholarship course, the Lieutenant-Governor, from the information at his command, is not prepared to say that, in the prescribed courses, quality is being sacrificed to quantity with serious injury to the best interests of the rising generation

"The books are read during a two years' course, and, in so far as they are fixed by the Department, they are changed, either wholly or partially, from year to year, so as to encourage meritorious authors and text books, and to avoid anything like a monopoly. The frequent change of books involves no hardship to students, unless they happen to fail at a particular examination, and have to take up a new text book in literature for the following year."

STATEMENT in connection with the Answer to the last preceding Question of the Hon'ble BABU SURFENDRANATH BANERJEE

[Unless otherwise stated, the whole of the prescribed text book is to be read]

I — For the Lower Primary Examination the only text books prescribed are (1) Nutan Path (the new Reader substituted for Bodhoday), 75 pages, price 3 annas, and (2) one of two alternative books on Sanitation, 40-42 pages, price 1 anna each. The remaining subjects of the course are—

Arithmetic (first four rules)
Subhankari
Mental Arithmetic, European and Native
Zamindari accounts and easy mensuration
Hand writing, and reading of manuscript

These are the subjects of the old pathsala course. There are many cheap text books covering the whole ground, but the teachers are generally enjoined to teach the subjects without putting text books into the hands of the boys.

II — For the Upper Primary Examination each Inspector used to select for his own circle the text books in language, and sometimes in other subjects, with the exception of certain text books in History and Sanitation, which were fixed by the Government. The subjects and text books for the Presidency Division in 1895-96 were the following —

Bengali Language—

For 1896-97 no text books are named, except those in the Bengali language, the History of Bengal and Sanitation.

III — For the Middle Vernacular Examination no text books are prescribed, except in Vernacular language (by the Department) and in Sanitation (by the Government). In selecting text books in the Vernacular language, Bengal

Proper is divided into two portions, with different text books for each. Those prescribed in 1895-96 for the Presidency Circle and the Burdwan Division were—

Charupath, Part III, 170 pages, 10 annas
Padyaprakash, Part III, 132 pages, 6 annas

In Sanskrit there is one permanent text book, 147 pages, 6 annas

The other subjects were—

History, Indian and Foreign Geography, General and Physical Arithmetic, Native and European Euclid, Book I
Mensuration
Physics, or Botany or Chemistry

No text books were prescribed in these subjects, but managers of schools were at liberty to choose their own books from the authorised list of text books for middle schools.

IV.—The course for the Middle English is the same as that for the Middle Vernacular Examination, with the addition of English as a language. The text book in English for 1895-96 was—

Leithbridge's Easy Selections, 303 pages (103 read), Re 1 2
English Grammar—No text book prescribed

For the examinations (Middle English and Middle Vernacular) of 1897 and subsequent years, the course has been considerably reduced by lessening the amount of literature, by the omission of foreign history, of one of the books on sanitation, and of botany and chemistry, and by reductions in other subjects.

PUBLIC ENDOWMENTS IN BENGAL

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE asked—

Will the Government be pleased to lay the following information on the table in connection with endowments of a public character, religious or other wise, in these Provinces, after making such enquiries as the Government may think fit—

(1) Names of the endowments and shrines, (2) their character, (3) the districts in which they are situated, (4) the average income of each from invested property during the last three years, (5) the average income of each from offerings and other sources during the same period, (6) total income, (7) average expenditure during the last three years in the bond fide service of the shrine or in fulfilment of the objects of the endowment, (8) average personal expenditure during the same period of the trustee, (9) savings up to date to the credit of the trust fund, (10) character, qualifications, and mode of living of his predecessors, (11) original strength of the Committee constituted under section VII of Act XX of 1863, (12) their present strength, (13) number of meetings held by them during the last five years, (14) how often the accounts and receipts of disbursements of the trustee were inspected by them during that period, under section 13 of the Act, (15) how many years accounts of such receipts and disbursements can now be produced by them, (16) whether in the opinion of the District Officer the trustee is making a proper use of the trust funds, and is fit for his place.

The Hon'ble MR. FINCHAM replied—

"The Government cannot undertake to collect the information or make the enquiries desired by the Hon'ble Member."

CIRCULAR ORDER REGARDING EXCISE CASES IN SARAN

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE asked—

Whether the attention of the Government has been called to a statement which has appeared in the Behar Herald of the 27th June last, to the effect that a Circular Order has been issued by the Magistrate of Saran, addressed to all Deputy Magistrates under him, drawing their attention to the leniency with which excise cases are treated by them and urging them to inflict exemplary punishment on the parties concerned? Is there any truth in this statement? If so, whether the Government will be pleased to direct the withdrawal of the Circular as interfering with the Judicial discretion of Magistrates subordinate to the District Magistrate of Saran?

Is it the case that this officer, who has been placed in charge of such an important district as Saran, is only of four years' standing? If so will the Government be pleased to devise measures to prevent comparatively young officers being placed in responsible charge of important districts?

The Hon'ble MR RISLEY replied —

"The reply will be given hereafter when the result of certain enquiries now being made is known"

JURY COMMISSIONERS' REPORT.

The Hon'ble RAI ESHAN CHANDRA MITTRA BAHADUR asked—

With reference to the Report of the Jury Commission, paragraphs 39 and 40, Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette, page 686 of the year 1893, will the Government be pleased to state what enquiries, if any, have been made on the representation made to the Jury Commissioners, that sufficient attention is not paid to the convenience and comforts of those summoned as jurors, and which was left to Government for settlement after due enquiry? If nothing has been done in this connection, will the Government be pleased to cause an enquiry to be made, and take steps for providing proper accommodation to jurors

The Hon'ble MR RISLEY replied —

"The question of accommodation for Jurors was not taken up after the Jury Commissioners' report, but the Lieutenant Governor will now cause enquiry to be made, with the view of deciding on the action which should be taken in the matter"

MAINTENANCE OF ROADS OUT OF PROVINCIAL REVENUES

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SEN asked—

Will the Government be pleased to state how many miles of roads, metalled and unmetalled, existed in each district, the maintenance of which was a charge on the Provincial Revenues when the Road Cess Act came into operation, and how many miles of these roads, metalled and unmetalled, are now maintained out of the Provincial Revenues?

The Hon'ble MR RISLEY replied —

"Owing to the form in which the accounts relating to these roads were kept by the Public Works Department, the statistics required for the reply to this question are still incomplete"

SUPPLY OF RUSSADS FOR ARMY MARCHES

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SEN asked—

Is the Government aware that the present practice is to issue requisitions for the supply of the aggregate quantity of russads on the occasion of army marches to each one of the proprietors in one estate or estates in the line of army marches, calling on them individually to supply the whole quantity, thus if there are 20 proprietors in an estate or estates through which the army marches, and all were to comply with the requisition, the supply would be 20 times over? Will it be pleased to direct that an apportionment of the quantity be made in such cases, in proportion to the shares in the estate or state of those who are required to make the supply

The Hon'ble Mr FINECANE replied —

“Reports have been received from the Officers in charge of Districts through which troops ordinarily march, and it appears that in some of these Districts the practice described by the Hon'ble Member is in force. Although where several zamindars are liable to provide supplies, the whole amount needed is requisitioned from each of them, practically it is not found that much more than the amount needed is supplied, though a margin is allowed to meet emergencies. It must obviously be difficult to proportion each zamindar's contribution to the share he holds in the estate, and all attempts at such apportionment have failed. In certain of the districts most often traversed by troops, the zamindars have co-operated amongst themselves, and the existing system has been found to work satisfactorily. The Lieutenant Governor is advised that no change in that system is necessary. The zamindars understand that they are jointly and severally liable for the whole quantity of russad required and they arrange for the apportionment of it among themselves. No instance has ever occurred where each and every one of a number of co-shruti zamindars separately supplied the whole quantity required.”

ROAD AND PUBLIC WORKS CESSES

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SEN asked—

Will the Government be pleased to state what amount was expended during the year 1894-95 for collecting the Road cess, and what amount was contributed to the District Road Fund out of the proceeds of the Public Works cess collected jointly with the Road cess by establishment paid from the District Road Fund, under section 10, clause 1, of the Cess Act, IX of 1880 (B C)

The Hon'ble Mr A. M. BOSE asked—

Will the Government be pleased to state what are the total charges for collecting the Road cess and the Public Works cess incurred by the District Boards, and how much out of this amount is paid by the Government for the collection of the Public Works cess?

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY replied —

“The cost of collecting the Road and Public Work Cess in Board districts in the last year, for which final accounts are available, amounted to Rs 2,87,186, of which Rs 2,42,680 were charged to the District Funds and Rs 44,500 to Provincial Revenues. The latter amount was fixed once for all in 1879 in relation to the collection charges as they then stood, and has remained unaltered in view of the fact that Government pays for all the superior establishment concerned in the supervision and control of the collection of both cesses.”

RESERVE FUND FOR PREVENTION OF FAMINE

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SEN asked—

In introducing the Public Works Cess Bill, the Hon'ble Mr Reynolds stated — "It was necessary for the Government of Bengal to do something more than this (payment of interest on Irrigation and Railway works), and to have a surplus and a reserve fund in hand. It had been laid down by the Government of India that it was necessary to introduce a system of Provincial and Local responsibility, for the provision of local relief in the event of a famine" (Vide Proceedings of the Council of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, Volume X, Part I, page 28)

Is there any such surplus and reserve fund in hand for the prevention of famine? Is not this reserve fund available for the prevention of scarcity of water?

APPLICATION OF PUBLIC WORKS CESS

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SEN asked—

Will it please the Government to state how is the Public Works cess applied, under clause 2, section 10, of the Cess Act? Is any separate account now kept of the receipts and expenditure of the Cess?

The Hon'ble MR RINNEY replied —

"A reply to the Hon'ble Member's questions will be found in my speech reported at pages 469 472 of the Proceedings of the Meeting of the Council held on the 3rd August, 1895."

TREATMENT OF DISEASES OF BOVINE SPECIES IN VETERINARY SCHOOLS

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SEN asked—

Will the Government be pleased to state whether the present curriculum of studies in the Veterinary School of Bengal includes the treatment of the diseases of the bovine species?

The Hon'ble MR FINUCANE replied —

"The answer to the Hon'ble Member's question is Yes. The treatment of diseases of cattle is an important part of the curriculum of studies in the Bengal Veterinary School."

COMMISSION'S OPINION OF CATTLE DISEASES IN BENGAL

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SEN asked—

Whether there was not a Commission appointed some years ago to examine the question of cattle diseases and the improvement of the breed of cattle in the territories then comprised under the Lieutenant Governorship of Bengal? What, in the opinion of the Commission, were the causes for the decay and diseases of cattle in Bengal, and what were the remedies suggested?

The Hon'ble MR FINUCANE replied —

"A Commission was appointed to enquire into cattle diseases, known as the Indian Cattle Plagues Commission, which submitted its Report in 1871. This Commission did not deal exclusively with Bengal, nor, except cursorily, with the subject of the improvement of the breeds of cattle

"The causes of cattle diseases were summarized by the Commissioners on pages IX to XII of their Report, of these the chief in their opinion were improper feeding, improper watering, promiscuous herding, and over crowding. The remedies suggested are summarized in paragraph 47 of their report. An extract containing that paragraph is laid on the table. Among the recommendations of the Commission were the opening of veterinary schools for training a skilled native veterinary agency and the attachment of skilled veterinary agents to municipalities and collectorates."

[Extract para 47 It will be convenient, before closing this general sketch of the results of our inquiry, to recapitulate the principal recommendations which we have been induced to make. They are as follows —

I — Whenever murrain breaks out, it should be made a subject of special local inquiry by committees or skilled agents

II — In order to test the effect of epizootics upon stock, an accurate census before and after the outbreak is absolutely necessary, or, if this be not attainable, an approximate census of the cattle of districts should be made to serve as a basis upon which the extent of loss from any outbreak may be estimated

III — As a means of exhibiting the fluctuations of value of stock, market prices of different kinds of stock should be periodically published in local Gazettes

IV — The systematic storing of fodder and jealous preservation of pasture land, where it exists, and its provision where it does not exist, are important considerations as regards the welfare of stock generally

V — Herding and droving cattle should be watched and regulated, especially in times of murrain

VI — Large fairs should be subject to skilled inspection and sanitary precaution, and smaller fairs carefully watched, especially in murrain times

VII — The hide trade is a source of danger, and should be watched and regulated. In times of murrain, hides should be destroyed or thoroughly disinfected

VIII — A law should be enacted for India regulating and restricting the sale of poisons

IX — Slaughter houses should be under skilled supervision

X — Government cattle should, if possible, be placed under the veterinary charge of skilled men

XI — A law should be enacted embodying rules for the repression and prevention of spread of murrain, and capable of ready application to any locality when the necessity arises

XII — A veterinary school for the training of a native skilled agency should be organized

XIII — Such skilled agents should be attached to municipalities and collectorates to investigate and report on murrains, and apply preventive and remedial measures

XIV — A yearly summary of all the information which has been collected during the year regarding cattle murrains should be prepared and published, and the subject should constitute a point of attention in administration reports of provinces

XV — The collection of such information and preparation of such reports should be assigned as a duty to some particular individual, office or department]

FEEES PAYABLE BY PLUCKED MEDICAL STUDENTS

The Hon'ble Mr A M Bose asked —

Is the Government aware that the sanction of the Senate to the rule requiring for her attendance at lectures on the part of students who had failed at the medical examinations of the University, was obtained on an assurance given by the authorities of the Medical College that such students would be allowed to attend the additional courses at the College without payment of fees, and that this promise has been hitherto carried out (vide pages 2 and 3 of the University Minutes for 1891-92—Statement of Dr MacLeod, President of the Medical Faculty) ?

Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the fact that under the rules of the Medical College recently promulgated, students who have failed at the University Examination are now required, except in special cases, to pay fees for attendance at the additional courses prescribed by the regulations of the University (vide Rule 16 of the Medical College Prospectus, page 642, Part I, Calcutta Gazette of 3rd June, 1896) ?

Will the Government be pleased to consider the propriety of altering this rule in accordance with the promise referred to in the first paragraph of this question

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY replied —

"In sanctioning the new rules for the Medical College, the attention of the Government was not drawn to the statement made by Dr MacLeod at the meeting of the Senate of the Calcutta University on the 20th April, 1891 (Minutes for 1891-92 pages 23), to the effect that 'this matter had been considered by the College Council, which had decided that students should not, under the circumstances, be required to pay a fresh fee for additional courses' It now appears on inquiry that Dr MacLeod had not full authority for making this statement. The Resolution of the Council, passed on the 9th April, 1891, declared that students who had failed at the final examination should not be called upon to pay additional fees for extra courses, but no mention is made of any other examination. Nor does it appear that this Resolution was ever communicated to, or received the sanction of, Government. It cannot, in any case, be admitted that the proposed concession was a condition precedent to the passing of the rule by the Senate. The recent decision by the Government was based on the unanimous recommendation of the College Council in August, 1895, that re-admitted students should be required to pay fees. As, however, the College Council and the Director of Public Instruction then recommended that only half fees should be charged to such students, the Lieutenant Governor is prepared, on reconsideration, to modify the rule to that extent."

MAXIMUM NUMBER OF ADMISSION TO FIRST YEAR CLASS OF MEDICAL COLLEGE

The Hon'ble Mr A M BOSE asked—

Will the Government be pleased to state what is the maximum number which has been fixed for admission to the first year class of the Calcutta Medical College under the new rules for the present session, and how many out of those admissions are cases of re-admission of students who have failed to satisfy the College test at the end of their first year's course? In case the number of applications should exceed the limit so fixed, have any rules been laid down in accordance with which the Principal is to proceed in selecting those who are to be refused admission?

Having regard to the fact that the Calcutta Medical College is the only institution of its kind in these provinces for imparting superior medical instruction to the people of the country, will the Government be pleased to consider the propriety of removing the restriction to the number of admissions now for the first time introduced? Has the Government considered the hardship of practically shutting out all possibility of a medical career, at least in the superior grade, to a young man whose capacity or fitness for that career has not at all been tested?

Should the Government not be pleased to remove the limitation referred to, will it lay down for the information of the public the principles on which candidates for admission will be selected when their number exceeds the prescribed maximum, and also to announce beforehand the maximum so fixed from year to year?

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY replied —

"The number of students to be admitted annually to the Medical College is determined by the capacity of the class rooms, in some of which all students of the first and second years (with some failed students of the third year) are taught together. The number admitted to the first year class at the beginning of the present session was provisionally fixed at 100, including 20 students re-admitted after failure at the test examination of the previous session. Eighty-seven new students applied for admission, in accordance with the rules, at the beginning of the present session, and though the number was thus raised to 107, all were admitted. Should the number of applicants for admission at any time largely exceed the prescribed maximum, preference will be given in accordance with their previous University qualifications, as determined by the results of the Arts Examinations which they have passed.

"The Chemistry class now consists of 244 students, which is fully up to, if not beyond, the capacity of the class room. The Lieutenant Governor is not prepared to remove the restriction on the number of admissions, as overcrowded class rooms are not conducive to efficient study."

BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, 1884, AMENDMENT BILL AND BENGAL LOCAL SELF GOVERNMENT ACT OF 1885, AMENDMENT BILL

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY moved that the Hon'ble Mr PRATT be added to the Select Committees on the Bill to further amend the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, and the Bill to amend the Bengal Local Self Government Act of 1885.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY also moved that the time for the Select Committee to present their report on the Bill to further amend the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, be extended to the 18th of July next. He said —

"It will be remembered that this Committee was appointed on the 11th of April last with instructions to report within three months. It only commenced its sittings in the beginning of the present month and has unfortunately not been able to complete the consideration of this Bill. I have mentioned the matter to my colleagues on the Committee, and I trust there will be no difficulty in having their Report ready for presentation on Saturday next, the 18th instant. I take this opportunity of stating that it is not proposed to proceed with the Bill to amend the Local Self Government Act during the present session of the Council. Hon'ble Members will remember that this Bill, like the Bill of which I have been speaking, was referred to a Select Committee on the 11th of April last, with instructions to report within three months. Since then the imperative necessity of providing ways and means for the improvement of the water supply of rural villages throughout Bengal has been urged upon the Government by all classes of society and all organs of public opinion. In response to these pressing demands, a scheme has been prepared for greatly extending the sphere of Local Self Government through the agency of Union Committees invested with enlarged powers, including the power of permissive local rating for local purposes, and more especially for the provision of wholesome drinking water. A Bill embodying the provisions necessary to give legal effect to this scheme has been prepared and submitted to the Government of India, and has been circulated for the opinion of District Officers, District Boards, and Public Associations. It is not proposed to take any further action until the orders of the Government of India on the subject have been received and the local opinions have been considered. I hope to be in a position to bring the matter before the Council during the next cold weather."

The Motion was put and agreed to

PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, 1895, AMENDMENT BILL

The Hon'ble Mr. FINUCANE moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895

The Motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble Mr. FINUCANE also applied to the President to suspend the Rules of Business for the purpose of introducing the Bill

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT having declared the Rules suspended—

The Hon'ble Mr. FINUCANE introduced the Bill, and moved that it be read in Council. He said —

"This is a small and, it is hoped, a non-contentious Bill. The object of it is to correct some mistakes of a clerical nature, and to supply some omissions which by oversight were made in Act I of 1895. It will be in the recollection of Hon'ble Members who were in the Council in that year that a Bill was passed towards the close of the winter session to amend the law relating to the recovery of public demands. Certain errors and omissions were made in that Act which it is now proposed to rectify. They occurred in this wise. The Bill of 1895, as it came from the Select Committee, contained two sections relating to appeals which were numbered 19 and 20. Just as the Bill was about to be passed an Hon'ble Member (Maulvi Seraj ul Islam) proposed, without previous notice, that these sections be placed at the end of the Bill, where they would, it was thought, come in more appropriately. The motion was accepted, the sections were transposed and numbered 32 and 33, and the Bill was passed at that meeting of Council. But the fact was overlooked that one of these sections, 19, was referred to in other sections of the Bill, and that its transposition entailed changes in the numerical references made to it in these other sections. It is now proposed to correct this mistake by providing that for the word 'nineteen', wherever it occurs, in sub-section (2) of section 6, and in section 15, the figures 32 shall be deemed to have been always substituted. Another mistake of a clerical character was made in section 16. This section in the Bill as amended by the Select Committee made reference to section 13. On the day the Bill was brought before the Council to be passed, the Hon'ble Mr. R. C. Dutt moved an amendment in section 13. That amendment necessitated a consequential amendment in section 16, but the fact was not observed at the time. Another mistake in the Act which requires correction occurred in respect of requisitions for, and the realisation of, demands by local authorities. It will be remembered that at a late stage in the discussions connected with the Bill of 1895, it was suggested that Local Authorities should be empowered to recover, under the certificate procedure, certain demands of a public nature in respect of which the persons liable to pay the same had agreed by a duly registered instrument that they should be recoverable under the Public Demands Recovery Act. The suggestion was accepted, and the words 'Local Authority' were accordingly introduced by the Select Committee in section 7(g) of the Bill, the intended effect of their introduction being to empower Local Authorities to apply to the certificate officer for the issue of certificates in the cases mentioned. But it was overlooked that the introduction of these words in that section necessitated their introduction in certain other sections also It is now proposed to supply the omission by introducing these words in the appropriate sections from which they were omitted by oversight The effect of the omission of them is that, under the Act as worded, Local Authorities cannot make a requisition for a certificate, and the various provisions of the Act relating to the procedure in connection with these certificates have no effect in the case of Local Authorities although the right to obtain a certificate is given to them by section 7 The case of private individuals in whose favour a certificate may be issued under the Act stands in the same position The introduction of the words 'Local Authority' and 'private individual' in the sections from which they were inadvertently omitted are intended to remedy these defects, and to carry out what was the intention of the Council when it passed the Act Section 9 (2) of the Act is so drawn as to make Government officers liable to pay court fees on requisitions for a certificate But it is quite unnecessary that they should pay such fees, since their doing so would merely result in the transfer of money from one Government Department to another Section 19 of the Act introduced for the first time into the law for recovery of Public Demands the principle of redemption That section gives to a debtor whose property has been sold a right of redemption on payment of the demand with a penalty and interest analogous to the right which is given to judgment debtors by section 174 of the Tenancy Act The section is so worded, however, that difficulty has been felt in the construction of it Subsection (c) of that section, as it stands, requires the judgment debtor, before the sale is annulled, to pay up all outstanding charges that are payable to the District Collector under any Act for the time being in force This subsection is so wide that it may render the privilege of redemption a nullity The owner of the property sold may have other properties in the same district or in other districts, and it would appear that the annulment of the sale might be voided unless he had, before such annulment, paid up all outstanding charges of every sort and description, not alone in respect of the property sold, but in respect of all other properties of which he may be the owner Again, the owner of the property sold may not himself know of all the outstanding charges against him, and though he may have paid up all such outstanding charges as are known to him, he may still find that the annulment of the sale is void To obviate this it is proposed to restrict and specify the charges which must be paid, by providing that they are charges in respect of the property sold, and that they must be certified by the Collector to be due I should mention that clause (c) of section 7 of the Act was an attempt to get rid of the long list of enactments which is contained in section 7(1) of Act VII of 1880 But the clause as it now stands has left the law in a confused and imperfect state, in consequence of its framers having overlooked the fact that the references in those several enactments to Act VII of 1868 were all repealed by the Act of 1880 The clause has been redrafted so as to cover all the demands which its framers intended it to cover

"I think I have now enumerated all or nearly all the changes in the Act of 1896 which it is proposed to make by this Bill It will be seen that they are of a formal character, involving no question of principle, and that their object is merely to give effect to what was the intention of this Council when it passed Act I of 1896 I ought perhaps, in conclusion, to explain that in the edition of the Act published by the Board of Revenue the erroneous numerical references to sections have been corrected, so as to make the Act more easily intelligible to officers who have had to work it, but such corrections are technically unauthorised till this Bill is passed into law I now beg leave to introduce this Bill"

The Motion was put and agreed to

The Bill was read accordingly

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 18th instant

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE LUNATIC ASYLUMS
IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1895

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL

Calcutta, the 17th July 1896

RESOLUTION—No 2960Medl

READ—

The Report on the Lunatic Asylums in Bengal for the year 1895

Read also—

The Report for the year 1894, and the Resolution recorded by Government upon it

The Report, which was due to Government on the 1st May, was not received till the 15th June, the delay being caused by the absence on privilege leave for three months, from the 8th February, of the Inspector General of Civil Hospitals, Surgeon Colonel G C Ross

2 The following statement compares the number of patients in the five native asylums during the past two years, and gives a summary of the main facts regarding them —

| | | |
|------------------------------|-------|-------|
| | 1894 | 1895 |
| Remaining on the 1st January | 916 | 928 |
| Admitted and re admitted | 200 | 184 |
| Total | 1,116 | 1,107 |
| Discharged cured | 80 | 81 |
| " improved | 29 | 22 |
| " not improved | 3 | |
| " otherwise | 6 | 8 |
| Died | 75 | 75 |
| Total | 193 | 186 |
| Remaining on 31st December | 928 | 921 |
| Daily average strength | 915 | 919 |

3 The total number of admissions was 162 against 180 in the previous year, a decrease occurring in all the asylums except Dullunda, where the number of admissions rose from 49 to 61. The number of re admissions rose from 20 in 1894 to 22 in 1895. Thirteen of these occurred in Dacca, and included ten criminals, eight of whom were sent back after trial, and two re admitted from jail, and three non criminals, two of whom had been discharged from the asylum after temporary recovery, while one had been made over to his friends as harmless, and had been found by them unmanageable. Of the 184 lunatics admitted and re admitted in the five native asylums during the year, 102 were criminal and 82 non criminal, against 108 and 92 respectively in the previous year. The number of criminal lunatics remaining in confinement on the 31st December 1895 was 470, against 463 at the end of the previous year, the number of non criminal lunatics being 451 against 460. Of the total number of criminal lunatics in confinement, 185 had been tried and acquitted on the ground of insanity, 255 were detained as incapable of making a defence, and 30 were persons who, while undergoing imprisonment in jail, had become insane and had been transferred to an asylum. The numbers under each of these categories in 1894 were 185, 252 and 26, respectively. The statistics of the last eleven years, which are given in the report, show that the daily average strength of criminal lunatics has risen since 1885 from 372 to 463.

4 The number of patients discharged from the asylums was 111 against 118 in the previous year, Patna and Berhampore alone showing an increase under this head. At Dullunda the number discharged fell from 43 to 36, and it is explained that in several cases where lunatics might have been discharged their friends could not be found or were unwilling to take charge of them.

5 No change was made in the capacity of the asylums during the year, and the accommodation was found sufficient in all asylums except that at Dacca, where, notwithstanding the four new cells which have been constructed, the female wards were occasionally slightly overcrowded. Accommodation is provided on the standard scale for 1,187 patients, and the maximum number confined on any one night was 945.

6 In statement VII, which shows the alleged causes of insanity, 21 cases out of the 184 admitted are entered as due to ganja smoking, 1 to bhang, 5 to alcohol, 1 to other intoxicants (including dhatura), 8 to heredity, 3 to epilepsy, and 9 to other physical causes. Twenty-two are ascribed to moral causes, and 114 are included in the column "Unknown." The reduction of 19 in the number of cases attributed to ganja smoking is said to be the result of the more careful enquiries and diagnosis suggested by the Hemp Drugs Commission. Only those cases are now put down to ganja in which indulgence in this drug is found to be the predominant factor, and not merely one among several possible causes of insanity. The descriptive rolls of lunatics are also, it is stated, prepared with greater care.

7 The average daily number of sick rose during the year from 55.41 to 58.81, and the number of admissions to hospital increased by 276. The number of deaths, however, was no higher (75) than in the previous year, the death rate being 8.15 against 8.19 in 1894. This proportion, as the Inspector General points out, is not only less than in any other province of India, but even compares favourably with that of the borough and county asylums of England. Sicknes was most prevalent in the Dullunda Asylum, where the number of admissions to hospital rose from 238 to 540, the chief causes being malarial fever and influenza. It is satisfactory to note that, with the exception of a single case in each of the asylums of Dullunda and Patna, cholera, though prevalent in the surrounding areas, was practically absent from the asylums, and that no case of small pox occurred. Reference is made in the report to an opinion expressed by Surgeon Colonel Hutcheson, while officiating as Inspector General, as to "the unsuitability of certain kinds of labour exacted from the insane in Bengal." This opinion does not appear to have been communicated to Government, and the Lieutenant Governor desires that the subject may now be dealt with in a special report. Lunatics should certainly not be called upon to do anything that can be properly described as penal labour, and the chief, if not the only object of requiring them to work at all, is to provide them with some sort of occupation which will keep them from moping. In order to meet the case of lunatics of filthy habits, the system of spreading a thick layer of dry earth over the entire floor of all sleeping wards was introduced at Patna and Dullunda. At the former place, where the climate is dry, it appears to have worked well, at the latter the visitors raised objections, and the practice has been discontinued, pending consideration of an alternative proposal for levelling the asphalt of the floors and pointing the walls so as to enable the wards to be properly cleansed with water, which was laid on for this purpose some years ago.

8 The number of injuries and accidents rose from 17 to 22, eighteen of which occurred at Dullunda. At this asylum one lunatic was drowned and another died from rupture of the spleen caused by ill treatment by a warder assisted by two lunatics. The warder was convicted by the Sessions Court, and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for four years. One case of suicide occurred at Dacca and another at Patna, and in each the warders on duty were punished for carelessness. Towards the end of the year two criminal lunatics escaped, one from Dacca and the other from Berhampore, and had not been recaptured. One warder was dismissed and several others fined.

The increase in the amount drawn from the treasury and the decrease in the value of the articles received from the manufacturing department are due mainly to a change in the system of accounts, by which the cost of raw material used in manufactures is included in the sums drawn from the treasury, and excluded from the value of the articles manufactured as shown above. Apart from this, however, the net profits of manufacture show a decline of Rs 1,648, which occurred chiefly at Dullunda. The total expenditure decreased by Rs 4,410, mainly under rates and taxes and public works.

10 The following table compares the gross cost of each lunatic at the different asylums, and the cost per head of average strength, for the past two years, taking all charges into account —

11 The dairy farm at the Dullunda Asylum is reported to have yielded a net profit of Rs 1,092 4 9 against Rs 1,108 6 1 in 1894, and a similar dairy at Dacca, besides affording a sufficient supply of milk to the inmates of the asylum, realized Rs 550 10 9 from the sale of milk to the public. The calves were also used for the supply of vaccine lymph to the asylum, the jail, and the outside population. The proposed dairy at Berhampore was not opened during the year, while the dairy at Cuttack, which had been working at a loss, was closed.

12 The number of patients in the European Asylum at Bhowanipour was 54 against 64 in 1894. Of these, 39 were old patients and 15 were admitted during the year. Three of the latter were criminal lunatics. During the year ten persons were discharged as cured, compared with four in the previous year, two were deported to Europe under the Merchant Shipping Act, five were made over to the care of friends, one was despatched to Europe as a civil pauper lunatic, and four died, leaving 32 under confinement at the close of the year. The daily average strength was 37 63 against 40 37 in 1894. There was no overcrowding in the asylum, the accommodation being just sufficient for the number of patients under detention. Only eight persons were admitted into hospital during the year. The total expenditure was Rs 22,838 against Rs 23,350, but owing to the decrease in the number of patients and also in the receipts from paying patients, the net cost of each lunatic was Rs 313 against Rs 240 in the previous year. The amount contributed by Government was Rs 11,901 against Rs 9,624. The unusually large sum of Rs 1,391 remained outstanding on account of paying patients at the close of the year, and of this amount Rs 945, due in a single case, is irrecoverable. In cases of this kind the Superintendent should see that formal bonds are taken, and should satisfy himself that the persons executing them are in a position to fulfil their obligations. When default is made the patients should, after due warning to their relatives, be transferred to the pauper ward.

13 The question of amalgamating the asylums and of forming a single Central Asylum for all lunatics in Bengal, under the management of a specially qualified officer, is at present under the consideration of Government. In such an institution more attention could be given to the systematic treatment of mental disease than is possible under the present system, and the Lieutenant Governor hopes that a practicable scheme will soon be drawn up.

14 All the asylums were visited by the Inspector General of Civil Hospitals during the year, and the inspection notes recorded by him have done much to improve the management of these institutions. The thanks of the Lieutenant Governor are due to Surgeon Colonel G. C. Ross and to the Superintendents of the several asylums for the efficient and economical manner in which these institutions have been managed during the year.

RESOLUTION—No 2977Medl

Paragraphs 10—14 of the Report of the Committee appointed to consider the questions of the pay, position and prospects of Assistant Surgeons, dated 19th December 1893

Paragraph 5 of the letter from the Government of India in the Home Department, No 671, dated the 20th September 1895

Rule 9 of the Dispensary Manual permits local authorities to appoint medical subordinates of the Government establishment to dispensaries in Class II, and requires them to do so in the case of dispensaries situated at the head quarters of districts or subdivisions. Under the existing rules these subordinates, whether Assistant Surgeons or Civil Hospital Assistants, are entitled to promotion after seven years' service in their grade, on passing a professional examination. When such promotions occur, local authorities are usually unwilling to accept the increased charge for salary, and Government is asked either to replace the medical officer by one of a lower grade, or to meet the difference in pay from Provincial Funds. The transfer of officers on promotion causes, however, much hardship to them, and more especially affects those in the higher grades, while at the same time it interferes greatly with the efficient management of dispensaries.

2 In order to avoid these disadvantages, it was decided in 1893 that the increased pay to which a medical subordinate in charge of a local fund dispensary becomes entitled on promotion to a higher grade, would be met from Provincial revenues, if the local body could show to the satisfaction of Government that they were really unable, owing to financial pressure, to bear the increased charge. This policy is still pursued in dealing with such cases, but experience has shown it to be wanting in finality, and to cause much inconvenience to Government, the local bodies, and the officers concerned. The Government of India have now expressed their approval of the introduction of a system which is in force in the North Western Provinces, and under which the contribution by a local body of a fixed sum calculated on the average pay of a particular class of medical officer entitles it to the services of an officer of that class without reference to grade. This system was also recommended by the Committee appointed to report on the questions of the pay, position and prospects of Assistant Surgeons, and the Lieutenant Governor, after carefully considering the subject, is of opinion that it promises to work more smoothly than the one already in force in Bengal. It will equalise the demands on local authorities, and will secure them from those frequent changes which are unpopular in themselves and disastrous in their effect on dispensary administration. At the same time it will enable Government to provide permanent appointments for senior officers of the service, and thus to remove a long felt grievance of the subordinate medical services. His Honour accordingly directs that the following clause be added after clause 2 of rule 9 of the Dispensary Manual —

“For the purposes of this rule the mean pay of an Assistant Surgeon will be assumed to be Rs 150 per mensem and that of a Civil Hospital Assistant Rs 38 and local authorities will be required to pay these sums into the treasury half yearly in June and December irrespective of the actual pay of the officer appointed.”

3 This rule will come into force from the 1st April 1897, and District Boards and Municipalities should frame their budgets accordingly. The actual pay and leave allowances of these officers will be a direct charge against the Provincial Revenues in the first instance, and as the allowances of such officers during privilege leave are payable by the local bodies, these should also be calculated for the periods of such leave on the average rate now fixed. Cases where the application of this rule will cause hardship or inconvenience, or will conflict with pledges already given, will be specially considered. The sums annually due on account of the pay and privilege leave allowances of medical subordinates should be paid into the local treasury half yearly.

4 In view of these orders, Rule 17 of the Dispensary Manual will be cancelled.

At 41 of these the Brigade were in attendance, and 8 were extinguished by the residents of the localities

Of the above fires that occurred during the year under review, three call for special notice —

(2) On the 24th March 1896, at 11 45 A M, a fire broke out in an extensive busti in Nulwiparah, Watgunge Owing to the extremely inflammable material of the huts and a high wind, the fire spread with great rapidity One thousand two hundred and twenty seven tiled and golputta huts were destroyed, and nine lives were lost The estimated damage to property was Rs 81,000 This fire was extinguished in 4 hours and 15 minutes by the Fire brigade

3 In addition to the 49 serious fires already noticed, 91 other petty fires occurred—27 in the Town of Calcutta, 54 in the Suburbs, and 10 in Howrah The Brigade attended 14 of these fires the remaining 77 were extinguished by the residents of the localities

The average value of property destroyed at these fires was Rs 7

The mean pressure, temperature, &c, are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 24h

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 88, formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

Amended position of Pearu reef

With reference to Notice to Mariners, No 71, dated 7th May 1895, issued by this office, the British Admiralty has given further notice (No 834 of 1896) that telegraphic information has been received from Lieutenant and Commander W V Howard, H.M.S. Dart, dated 28th June 1896 that he has found a pinnacle rock with a depth of 10 feet on it at low water and 12 fathoms close around, in a position with the centre of Halfway island bearing N 27° E, distant 3½ miles

Approximate position, lat 11 25 39 S, long 142° 56 2' E

This is most probably the shoal reported by Captain Pearu in 1876, which has hitherto been searched for in vain in the position assigned to it, and also the patch on which the steam vessel Duke of Buckingham touched in 1895, marked "reported 1895" on Admiralty Chart

NOTE—The "track recommended" has been expunged from the Admiralty Chart in the vicinity of Pearu reef, pending the receipt of further information

MR WHEELER'S CASE

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY said — "The Council will remember that at the last meeting the following question was asked by the Hon'ble Babu Surendranath Banerjee —

'Whether the attention of the Government has been called to a statement which has appeared in the Behar Herald of the 27th June last to the effect that a Circular Order has been issued by the Magistrate of Saran, addressed to all Deputy Magistrates under him, drawing their attention to the leniency with which excise cases are treated by them and urging them to inflict exemplary punishment on the parties concerned? Is there any truth in this statement? If so, whether the Government will be pleased to direct the withdrawal of the Circular as interfering with the Judicial discretion of Magistrates subordinate to the District Magistrate of Saran?'

'Is it the case that this officer who has been placed in charge of such an important district as Saran is only of four years' standing? If so, will the Government be pleased to devise measures to prevent comparatively young officers being placed in responsible charge of important districts?'

"I said at the time that a reply to this question would be given hereafter when the result of certain enquiries then being made was known. Since then the enquiries have been completed, and I am now in a position to reply as follows —

"It has been ascertained that the Officiating Collector of Saran finding, on reviewing the 1 year. Returns, that breaches of the Law were not being adequately dealt with, 'draw the attention of the Deputy Magistrate to the question of the amount of punishments in excise cases,' and remarked that 'the general tendency is to be far too lenient, especially in fair cases.' This was a perfectly legitimate criticism on the part of the District Magistrate, and to describe it an interference with Judicial discretion is a perversion of terms.

"The Lieutenant Governor would be very glad if the state of the service enabled him to secure a senior officer for the charge of every district, but he must make the best use of the staff actually at his disposal, and Mr Wheeler's management of the Saran district, of which he is temporarily in charge, has been very creditable to him."

ALLEGED UNSATISFACTORY RESULTS OF THE RAVENSHAW COLLEGE, CUTTACK

The Hon'ble Mr M S DAS asked —

In the Annual Administration Report for 1894-95 Mr H G Cooke, the Commissioner of Orissa, in speaking of the Ravenshaw College at Cuttack, made the following remarks —

"On the 31st March, 1895, there were 59 students on the roll against 68 on the corresponding date of the preceding year. At the B A Examination held in 1894, 29 candidates appeared, of whom only 7 passed. At the F A Examination 5 passed out of 31. The result is not at all satisfactory. Though the College had an able Principal in Mr Hallward, there appears to be something wrong with the institution to account for such poor results. If the evil admits of a remedy, I would strongly advocate that the remedy should be sought for and applied. The College is the only institution of the kind in Orissa, which, as a division, is admittedly backward in higher education."

(a) Has any enquiry been directed to find out why the results at the University Examinations have been unsatisfactory since Mr N L Hallward's appointment as the Principal of the Ravenshaw College?

(b) Has any step been taken to remedy this state of things as suggested in the above quotation from the Commissioner's Administration Report?

The Hon'ble MR FINUCANE replied —

“As the results of the University examinations for the Ravenshaw College in the three years 1894 to 1896, for which alone Mr Hallward can be held responsible, were in fact more favourable than those of the three preceding years, 1891 to 1893, when the College was under the control of his predecessor, the Lieutenant Governor does not think it necessary to take any steps of the kind suggested.”

ALLEGED INEFFICIENCY OF THE RAVENSHAW COLLEGE AND COLLEGIATE SCHOOL

The Hon'ble MR M S DAS asked—

- (a) Is the Government aware of the fact that out of 17 boys who went up from the Ravenshaw College for the B A Examination of the Calcutta University in 1893 only 2 passed, and at the F A Examination of the same year only 5 passed out of 40 sent up?
- (b) Is the Government aware of the fact that Mr Hallward did not teach any subject in the F A classes during the years 1893, 1894 and 1895, though the former Principal, Mr S Agar, used to do so?
- (c) Is the Government aware of the fact that Mr Hallward only taught English in the B A classes, and in doing so he taught the 3rd and 4th year classes together?
- (d) Is the Government aware of the fact that out of the boys who were sent up from the Ravenshaw College for the B A Examinations in 1892, 1893 and 1894, the largest number failed to secure the pass marks in the English language—the subject taught by Mr Hallward?
- (e) If the Government is not aware of the facts referred to in the questions (a), (b), (c) and (d), will the Government be pleased to cause an enquiry to be made with a view to ascertain the correctness of these statements and place the result of such enquiry on the table for the information of the Council?
- (f) Will the Government be pleased to take such steps as may restore the Ravenshaw College and the Collegiate School to that condition of efficiency which they had before Mr Hallward's appointment as Principal, seeing that, to quote Mr Cooke's words, “it is the only institution of the kind in Orissa, which as a division is admittedly backward in higher education”?

The Hon'ble MR FINUCANE replied —

“(a) Mr Hallward cannot be made responsible for the results of the examinations of 1893, as he had been in charge of the College for only a few months prior to the close of the course.

“(b) and (c) These are matters of departmental routine with which the Lieutenant Governor does not think it necessary to interfere. The Director of Public Instruction's attention will be called to them. The question appears to ignore the fact that Mr Hallward for the first time established and taught M A classes in English in the Ravenshaw College.

“(d) The fact referred to is not peculiar to the Ravenshaw College. The records of the University show that throughout Bengal, generally, more students fail in English than in any other subject.

"(e) In the Lieutenant Governor's opinion the facts are not such as to call for any special enquiry

"(f) See answer to Question No. I. The Lieutenant Governor does not recognise the justice of the attempt to fasten upon the Principal the sole responsibility for shortcomings of the Ravenshaw College pupils at the University examinations. The College is conducted upon very inexpensive lines, with one European Principal and a staff of Native graduates, the Principal teaches only one subject out of many. Uriya students as a rule are more backward than those of Bengal, and many of the best of them—those who win scholarships—pursue their further studies in Bengal Colleges."

PROHIBITION OF LEAVE IN COLLEGIATE SCHOOL, CUTTACK

The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das asked—

The minor Raja of Baramba was a student of the Ravenshaw Collegiate School at Cuttack. The Commissioner of the Orissa Division as the ex officio Superintendent of the Tributary States is the guardian of the minor. The Superintendent of Tributary States sanctioned the minor Raja's visit to his State on the occasion of his sister's marriage, and for that purpose leave was obtained from the Head Master of the Ravenshaw Collegiate School. His leave expired on 29th November, on which day the Raja's mother reported to the Superintendent of Tributary States that the Raja could not start back for Cuttack till 2nd December, as his presence at home was necessary in connection with some religious ceremonies. On 5th December the Superintendent of Tributary Mahals wrote to the Head Master for an extension of four days' leave, but the Head Master replied that "under its rules no retrospective leave can be granted". The minor Raja was fined and had to undergo 15 days' drill for having overstayed his leave by four days.

(a) Have these facts been brought to the notice of the Government? Does the Government approve of the punishment inflicted on the minor Raja under the abovementioned circumstances?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to direct the authorities of the Ravenshaw Collegiate School to revoke this sweeping rule against granting retrospective leave, which is allowed even to Government servants in cases of unforeseen emergencies?

REFUND OF EXCISE FINES LEVIED IN RAVENSHAW COLLEGIATE, SCHOOL

The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das asked—

Is the Government aware of the fact that in the Ravenshaw Collegiate School boys who absented themselves at the end of holidays were, till last week, fined at the rate of six annas a day, though under the rules framed by the Director of Public Instruction they could not be fined at a higher rate than two annas a day?

Will the Government be pleased to direct the Ravenshaw School authorities to refund the excess amounts thus extorted against rules?

The Hon'ble Mr. FINLCANE replied —

"The punishments to be imposed on pupils for unauthorised absence is a matter that Government has left largely in the hands of Principals of Colleges. The Lieutenant Governor does not think it necessary to take up the time of the Council with a discussion on details of these matters."

BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, 1884, AMENDMENT BILL

The Hon'ble Mr. RISLEY presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to further amend the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884.

PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, 1895, AMENDMENT BILL

The Hon'ble Mr FINUCANE moved that the Bill to amend the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr BOLTON, the Hon'ble Mr PRATT, the Hon'ble RAI DURGA GATI BANERJIA BAHADUR, the Hon'ble MAULVI MUHAMMAD YUSUF, KHAN BAHADUR, the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE, and the Mover, with instructions to report during the next session of the Council

The Hon'ble BABU GURU PROSHAD SAIN said —“Some of the processes by which we arrive at the amendment of our Acts are known outside this Council as ‘tinkering’ I hope I shall be excused for referring to an expression which I hold as very disrespectful to the dignity of this Council. But while I object to the expression, I am afraid there will be some justification for its use if we allow such amending Acts as the present one, which in effect proposes to amend a small Act of 32 sections by an amending Bill of 12 sections. It would be a puzzle to the uninitiated if they are asked by a reference to the two Acts, to gather the meaning of the amendments made by the amending Act. This Bill will, moreover, be a waste of time and mental labour to the initiated, for while they can finish the reading and understanding of the original Act in ten minutes, they will have to gather the meaning of the amendment by a laborious comparison of the two Acts for hours. I find that by section 3 of this Bill it is proposed to change the figures 19 into 32, and that in another place it is proposed to change the figure 6 into 13.”

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY rose to a point of order. He said —“The remarks which the Hon'ble Member was now addressing to the Council should either have been made when leave was taken to introduce the Bill, or should be brought forward at a later stage when the details of the Bill come under consideration. At the present stage of the Bill I submit that it is not in order to criticise the details of the Bill, nor is it convenient or in accordance with the practice of the Council.”

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said —“I took a similar objection on a former occasion, but I was overruled. As far as I have heard the Hon'ble Member, his comments though they may be pertinent when the Bill comes up for consideration of its clauses, are not in order now. But if he has anything to say against the principle of the Bill, this is the time to bring forward his objections. Minor details can be set to right by the Select Committee to whom the Bill is referred, and if the Hon'ble Member thinks any minor details are susceptible of correction or improvement, it will be open to him to send in his views to the Secretary, and I feel sure they will be carefully considered by the Committee.”

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRANATH BANERJEE said —“If I may be permitted to interpose, I wish to say that when sometime ago the learned Advocate General raised a point of order as to the criticism of minor details on a motion to refer a Bill to a Select Committee, it was held that questions of principle might be discussed at this stage of the proceedings. That indeed is the rule which regulates our proceedings. It may happen that criticisms in respect of details might involve the consideration of questions of principle, and in that case my hon'ble friend would be within his rights in making his comments now.”

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said —“I can only leave it to the good taste of the Hon'ble Member in introducing details in support of his arguments on questions of principle. I do not wish to dictate to him in the slightest degree.”

The Hon'ble Mr RISLEY said —“I invite attention to Rule 33 of the Rules for the Conduct of Business.”

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said —“ I raised that very question sometime back against the Hon'ble Mr Ghose, and it was ruled by the President, Sir Charles Elliott, that it was open to Hon'ble Members to attack the principle of a Bill at this stage of the proceedings. I was overruled, and I had to submit to the overruling power, as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill must submit to my ruling now ”

The Hon'ble BARU GUPTA PROSHAD SEN continued —“ I do not intend to touch on forbidden ground. I was simply going into the question of the principle of the Bill. I was going into the question, not on the ground that the Bill was not necessary, but on the ground that the amendments would make the Bill perfectly useless to be uninitiated as a guide. What I was going to submit with due deference was that in the interests of the public the Act ought to be repealed and a new Act passed incorporating all the amendments which are found to be necessary and useful. As I find from the motion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that the report of the Select Committee is to be submitted during the next Session of the Council, which probably means the next cold weather I do not see why, as there will be no loss of time, the whole Act cannot be recast in the meantime. That, I submit, will make it more easy of comprehension to the general public who will suffer by having to read two Acts together and in the end remaining as ignorant of their meaning as they were at the beginning ”

The Hon'ble MR FINUCANE said —“ If the Hon'ble Member was not in his remarks questioning the principle of the Bill, then it is admitted that he is out of order. He has raised no question of principle, but merely objects to the form which the Bill has taken, and which, as the matters with which it deals consist of mere details, the Bill must take. It is not denied for one moment that the Bill is necessary, and as the Hon'ble Member does not found his objection on any question of principle, but has only commented on the form which the Bill ought to take, I submit that the motion before the Council ought to be passed. As to the suggestions made for repealing the Act of 1893 altogether, and passing a consolidating and amending Act, it seems to me that the adoption of that course would be objectionable, as it would necessarily re-open a general discussion upon all questions connected with the recovery of public demands—questions which were fully discussed in this Council last year. If I were to bring in a Bill repealing the Act of 1893 and embodying in a new Bill, the existing Act and all the amendments now proposed, the result would be that the time of the Council would be wasted, unless it was understood that questions which were settled last year should not be re-opened. This is a Bill merely of details, and it is quite unnecessary, as far as I can see, to re-open the general questions connected with the law for the recovery of public demands.

‘As to the objection raised to the Bill on the ground of the inconvenience that will be caused by having to refer to two Acts on the same subject, I would submit that if the Bill is passed, its provisions can easily be incorporated in and printed with the Act of 1893 for the use of the officials and others whose duties necessitate a reference to the law for the recovery of public demands. I cannot therefore see that any inconvenience will result from the shape which the Bill has taken, while on the other hand it would cause serious inconvenience and waste of the time of the Council to re-open questions which were discussed at length and settled last year ”

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said —“ It appears to me that no question of principle is involved in the observations which have been made by the Hon'ble Member, and that what he referred to is altogether a question of convenience. The questions of principle connected with the law for the recovery of public demands have been considered by the members of this Council on previous occasions, and if there is a tacit consent on the part of every member of the Council that he will not raise any question of principle, but only consider matters of form, there will be no difficulty in bringing in and passing a consolidating measure. But as the Hon'ble Mr Finucane pointed out, if we attempt to do so, it would lead to a fresh discussion of the whole Act, and would re-open questions which have been thoroughly discussed and settled. Therefore this Bill is to be passed only for correcting certain mistakes which have crept in and for the purpose of introducing certain improvements in the law. It will always be the case that such Bills will be required. Human ingenuity is not capable of devising a measure which will apply to all sorts of circumstances. That was supposed to be done by the Code Napoleon, but nevertheless a French Law Library is as large as an English one. We have large numbers of volumes of case law, but the French have numerous commentaries on their Code—almost as large in number as our Law Reports. No one is wise enough to be able to draft an Act which will provide a remedy for all possible contingencies, and that being so, this Bill is the necessary outcome of the further consideration which has been given to the Act since it was passed, and it has been found necessary to correct the mistakes which have occurred.

The Motion was then put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 1st August 1896.

(a) Includes 17 analogous cases

These figures show that there was a slight increase in Government litigation as compared with the previous year. The results, however, were less favourable to Government.

4 In the High Court, four cases were decided against Government, as compared with two in the preceding year. One judgment of the Court decided 17 analogous cases which were brought for setting aside the proceedings of the Settlement Officer appointed to prepare a record-of rights relating to a Government khas mahal in pargana Singergaon. The Settlement Officer, acting under section 104 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, of his own motion settled what appeared to him to be fair and equitable rents. No appeal was preferred to the Special Judge under the Bengal Tenancy Act, but those suits were instituted in the Munsif's Court. The Munsif held that the Settlement Officer's decision had the force of a decree, and that the question tried by him was res judicata. On appeal, the Subordinate Judge reversed this decision, and remanded the suits for re-trial on their merits, and this order was upheld by the High Court. The effect of this decision, if it is treated as establishing a general principle, is to do away with the finality which has hitherto been held to attach to orders fixing rents in proceedings under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act. In the Lower Appellate Courts, 15 cases were decided against Government, and the percentage of cases decided in favour of Government fell from 78.9 in 1894-95 to 57.1. This unfavourable result is attributed by the Legal Remembrancer, as in the report of the previous year, to the fact that in most of the cases his sanction was not taken as to the grounds on which the appeals were to be argued. As the Civil Court Rules do not distinctly prescribe that this should be done, the Legal Remembrancer states that the Collectors are not to blame. This omission is being rectified in a revised issue of the rules, now under the consideration of this Government. The Lieutenant Governor cannot, however, regard this explanation as altogether satisfactory, and is not satisfied that sound judgment was in all cases exercised by the local officers or sufficient care taken in setting out the Government case. In Courts of first instance, the results of litigation was much the same as in the preceding year, 74.6 per cent. of the cases having been decided in favour of Government, as compared with 75.5 per cent. in 1894-95.

5 The following statement shows the results of Court of Wards' litigation during the past three years in all Courts —

| | 1893-94 | 1894-95 | 1895-96 |
|--|---------|---------|---------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| Decided in favour of Court of Wards | 1,322 | 1,461 | 1,839 |
| Decided against Court of Wards | 138 | 215 | 119 |
| Compromised, remanded or withdrawn | 56 | 49 | 188 |
| Percentage in favour of Court of Wards | 90.8 | 87.8 | 92.1 |

There has again been a very large increase in the number of Court of Wards' cases, which has risen from 1,510 in 1893-94 to 1,825 in 1894-95 and 2,176 in 1895-96. The increase occurred chiefly in cases in the Courts of first instance, which have risen from 1,432 in 1893-94 to 2,061 in the past year. It has not been explained in the report. Of 17 cases decided in the High Court, only 3 were decreed against the Court of Wards. In the Lower Appellate Courts 34 cases were decided against the Court of Wards, being mostly suits for recovery of rent, and zamindari dak and other cesses, for establishment of occupancy rights, and for setting aside sales held under the certificate procedure. In 20 of these cases the Court of Wards appeared as Appellant. In the Courts of first instance the percentage (94.1) of cases decided in favour of the Court of Wards was very satisfactory, being the highest recorded since 1882-83. Out of the 110 cases decided adversely, the Court was plaintiff in 64 and defendant in 46 cases. Most of these suits were of a Small Cause Court nature, and below Rs. 500 in value.

6 The following Table shows the extent to which decretal amounts, due to Government, have been realized in 1895-96 and the two previous years —

| | 1893-94 | 1894-95 | 1895-96 |
|-------------------------------------|---------|---------|---------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| | Rs | Rs | Rs |
| (1) Amount under realization | 47,190 | 34,726 | 67,188 |
| (2) Amount realized during the year | 8,943 | 6,034 | 25,763 |
| (3) Percentage of recovery | 18.9 | 17.3 | 38.3 |

It is satisfactory to observe a marked increase in the percentage of recovery in the past year, but there is still much room for further improvement. It has been suggested that the Collectorate Nazir should be allowed a commission of 20 per cent on the amounts realized by him, and that when all the necessary steps prescribed by the rules have been taken, and the amount is still found to be irrecoverable, the decree may be sold by auction in the Collector's office, after due publication. These proposals have still to receive the consideration of Government, and attention will be given to the Legal Remembrancer's remarks deprecating the sale of decrees, in which the Lieutenant Governor is disposed to agree. The largest outstanding balances on the 1st April 1896

|-------------|----------|
| 24 Parganas | Rs 7,971 |
| Lohardaga | 6,530 |
| Darbhanga | 4,888 |
| Gaya | 2,112 |
| Faridpur | 2,670 |

are shown by the districts noted in the margin. In Lohardaga, Darbhanga and Faridpur, the amounts are chiefly made up of a few heavy decrees, the non-realization of which has been explained, but in the 24 Parganas and Gaya energetic measures appear not to have been adopted. The Lieutenant Governor is pleased to find that the large balance reported from the Sonthal Parganas last year, and referred to in the Resolution of this Government, was wholly realized during the year.

7 The realisations in cases of Wards' decrees during the three years are shown in the table subjoined —

| | 1893-94 | 1894-95 | 1895-96 |
|------------------------------|-----------|----------|----------|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| | Rs | Rs | Rs |
| 1 Amount under realization | 10,80,794 | 8,83,083 | 9,59,451 |
| 2 " realised during the year | 2,00,671 | 1,51,139 | 2,54,422 |
| 3 Percentage of recovery | 18.56 | 17.11 | 26.5 |

These figures are satisfactory in so far as they disclose that an effort has been made to improve on the very poor returns of the previous year, which were animadverted upon by Government. The percentage of recovery, though still very poor, has reached a higher figure than has been attained for many years past. Many of the estates, however, have made little progress in this very important respect. The largest balances are shown, as usual, by the Burdwan and Feroz Raj Estates, in which the sums outstanding at the close of the year were Rs 2,24,667 and Rs 2,06,051, respectively. In 15 other estates, among which the Deo and Dharm Kumar's Estate in Shahabad, the Khagra Estate in Purnea, and the A. C. Roy's Estate in Backergunge, are prominent, the realisations are shown to have been exceptionally unsatisfactory. This subject still demands the special attention of the Board of Revenue.

The mortality in Calcutta and Howrah during the year 1895 was exceptional. In Calcutta the death rate rose from 32.9 to 39.6 per thousand, in Howrah from 2.9 to no less than 42.84. A comparison with the figures available, for Calcutta from the year 1889, and for Howrah from 1885, shows that these rates have been unapproached of late years. In Calcutta the small pox epidemic, breaking out at the end of 1894, reached its height during the early months of 1895 and increased the number of deaths under this head from 405 to 2,220, the mortality from fever rose within the same period from 8,963 to 11,345, and the deaths from cholera numbered more by 404 than in the previous year. In Howrah the deaths from cholera rose from 513 to 1,295, and those from small pox from 11 to 65, while the mortality from "other causes" increased from 64 to 1,044.

2 The numbers of in-door and out-door patients treated during the last two years in the hospitals of Calcutta and Howrah are compared in the following table—

3 The number of out-patients, 266,672 against 264,041 in 1894, shows an increase of 2,631. The attendance at the Medical College rose by 580, owing to the growing popularity of the out-door ward at the Eden Hospital, and of the special department for the treatment of diseases of the throat, ear and nose, under Surgeon Captain O'Kinealy. The increase of 216 at the Presidency General Hospital is ascribed to the fact that the out-door department worked throughout the year, instead of for nine months only. At the Campbell

Hospital an increase of 1,127 is reported, but the accuracy of the statistics is open to question owing to the issue in some cases of duplicate tickets. The numbers at the Mayo and Chandney Hospitals rose by 2,004, at the Chitpur Dispensary by 1,505, at the Bhowanipur Dispensary by 317, and at the Howrah General Hospital by 578. Against this the Park Street Dispensary shows a falling off of 1,819, the Sukes Street Dispensary of 1,112, and the Dufferin Victoria Hospital of 720.

4 The number of in-door patients rose from 24,912 to 26,879. The increase of 1,967 was shared by all the hospitals except the Medical College, where the number fell by 94, and was most marked at the Campbell and Police Hospitals, owing to the admission at the former of a large number of small pox cases, and in the case of the latter to the unusual prevalence of malarial fever among the police.

5 Including out-door and in-door patients, 178,982 men, 40,764 women, and 68,805 children were treated during the year. The total number of men rose by 7,898, and that of women by 50, while the number of children treated was less by 3,300 than in 1894, the net increase, taking all classes together, being 4,958. Of the whole number treated, Hindus formed 49.3 per cent, Muhammadans 32.1, Eurasians 11.9, and Europeans 2.9. The number of Muhammadans decreased by 1,499, that of Eurasians rose by 3,132 and that of Hindus by 4,239.

6 Excluding the cases treated in the Lye Infirmary, the death rate for all the institutions rose from 14.0 to 14.3, the highest mortality recorded for 11 years. Depending as this does to a great extent upon the class of patient and the condition in which he is brought to the hospital, the rate varies within wide limits. Thus the death rate for men ranged from 6.7 at the Police Hospital, where the bulk of the patients are men in the prime of life, to 22.25 at the Campbell Hospital, which receives all the waifs and strays of Calcutta, and at the Howrah Hospital, where an unusual number of moribund cases, many of them pilgrims, were admitted, it reached 24.11. Similarly in the case of adult women, the Dufferin Victoria Hospital shows a rate of 8.6 and the Campbell Hospital of 32.71. At the Presidency General Hospital the death rate among female children rose from 3.75 to 10.83, the reason assigned being the emaciated condition of many of the children who were brought for treatment.

7 The epidemic of small pox, which commenced in December 1894, continued to increase in virulence till March 1895, when the mortality began to diminish. During January, February, and March there were 104, 239 and 260 cases in the Sealdah Small pox Hospital, which necessitated the erection of temporary sheds to supplement the existing accommodation. The number of Europeans and Eurasians among the patients was unprecedented, being 213 against 32 in 1894, while the number of natives increased from 144 to 552. Altogether, 765 patients were treated at the Sealdah Hospital of these, 239 were said to have been vaccinated, among whom 27, or 11.29 per cent, died, but of these only 4 had distinct scars. Among 480 cases that were unprotected either by vaccination or inoculation, 244, or 50.83 per cent, died.

8 The number of admissions for cholera rose to 600 against 567 in 1894, 349 cases, or 58.16 per cent, proving fatal, against 323, or 56.96 per cent, in the previous year. The death rate fell among Europeans and Eurasians from 72.72 to 56.81, and rose among other classes from 56.34 to 58.27. Five cases, of which no explanation could be furnished, originated at the Campbell Hospital, of which three were fatal. Although this compares favourably with the 14 unexplained cases of 1894, the fact of cholera showing itself in a hospital on such a scale in two successive years seems prima facie to indicate that the sanitary arrangements must be defective. Although cholera was extremely prevalent in Howrah during the year, no case occurred in the hospital. It may be hoped that the recent provision of a supply of filtered water for the town of Howrah will materially reduce the mortality from this cause, and it will be interesting to observe the effect of the new water works on the mortuary statistics for the present year.

9 The admissions to hospital on account of dysentery increased from 8,383 to 9,206, and the death rate from 30.17 to 32.17. Sixty per cent of the cases were treated in the Campbell Hospital, where the rate of mortality under this head reached 42.96, while among native patients at the Howrah Hospital it amounted to 53.94. Both of these hospitals always receive a large number of moribund cases, and at Howrah the majority of these are said to have been pilgrims. Diarrhoea cases fell off by 99, and the death rate decreased from 35.86 to 32.37. The number of in patients treated for malarial fever rose from 4,009 to 5,107, and of out patients from 49,676 to 54,149. In the Presidency General Hospital the number of Europeans and Eurasians admitted increased from 181 to 437, and the Superintendent observes that the increase was most marked among residents of Calcutta. The total death rate, however, fell from 12.21 to 8.73. The number of persons treated for venereal diseases increased by 255, but the more serious cases show a decrease. Leprosy patients numbered only 17, half the number of 1894. The new Lèper Asylum has not yet been built, but a site has been selected at Gobra, and the plan is under consideration.

10. Major operations numbered 3,775, against 3,643 in the previous year, 124 ended fatally, giving a death rate of 3.15, as compared with 3.4 in 1894. The Campbell Hospital showed an increase of 112 major operations, but such an increase was to be expected, seeing that a separate surgical ward had been opened in the hospital during the year, and the Lieutenant Governor hopes that the surgical work of the current year will show a further improvement. At the Medical College Hospital 2,117 major operations were performed, being 18 less than in 1894, the death rate was 3.33 against 3.44. At the Dufferin Victoria Hospital there was a decrease of 14 in the number of major operations.

11. The total number of women and children admitted at the Eden Hospital fell from 1,462 to 1,453, of whom 718 were Europeans, 581 Hindus and Muhammadans, while 154 belonged to other classes. The death rate for Europeans was 6.23 and for the others 12.56 and 7.59, respectively, the figures for the previous year being 5.48, 10.59 and 6.80. The mortality among Hindu and Muhammadan children was remarkably high, 46.15 against 33.89 in 1894, the lower rate of 15.67 among European children is explained by their being brought to hospital at an earlier stage of disease. Confinement cases decreased from 618 to 546, but of these only 34 proved fatal, against 23 in the previous year. There was an increase of 2 in cases of septicæmia, but out of the 25 cases which occurred, only 7 originated within the hospital, against 14 in the previous year. The Inspector General has no doubt that septicæmia is to a certain extent introduced into the hospital by persons admitted with septic symptoms. A separate ward for such patients was opened in June 1895, and it is hoped that the segregation of these cases will have a good effect. There were 357 major operations performed in the hospital, 30 of which ended in death. This compares unfavourably with the figures of the previous year—392 with 26 deaths. Minor operations rose from 2,747 to 4,803, and at the out door department the number of patients increased from 3,990 to 7,083. Since the close of the year under review, attention has been drawn to certain defects in the structural arrangements of the Eden Hospital, and a Committee has been appointed to consider and report on the subject.

12. In the Shama Churn Law Eye Hospital the number of in door patients decreased from 506 to 452, that of out patients, on the other hand, rose from 11,964 to 13,725. Operations for extraction of the lens numbered 328, of which 252, or 76.82 per cent, were successful.

13. The Ezra Hospital showed a decrease both in in door and out door patients: the number of the former fell from 287 to 199, and of the latter from 1,674 to 1,624. Although beds for 20 patients were provided, the daily average of sick was only 13.20. The total cost of the hospital was Rs 8,107.12, to which Government contributed Rs 5,231.12, or 64.53 per cent.

14. The work of the nurses at the Medical College and the Presidency General Hospitals, under the supervision of the Clewer Sisters, is favourably reported on by the Inspector General. At the Campbell and Howrah Hospitals nurses locally selected appear to have given satisfaction. Seventeen nurses and eleven dharms passed out of the Eden Hospital during the year.

15. The invested capital of the Calcutta and Howrah Hospitals shows an increase from Rs 5,93,300 to Rs 5,99,400. The Howrah Hospital invested Rs 4,500, the Campbell Hospital Rs 100, and the Governors of the Mayo Hospital invested Rs 3,34,921, which represents the sale and reinvestment of Government securities held by them, but also included a donation of Rs 1,500 from the Maharani of Mysore and Rs 1,986 saved from their ordinary income. The following statement compares the main heads of receipts and expenditure for all the hospitals during the year —

16 Excluding the opening balance and the receipts from securities sold, the total income of the year amounted to Rs 2,09,797, or Rs 11,621 more than in 1894. The cost to Government increased by Rs 8,799, owing to additional expense having been incurred under Salaries of Medical Officers, European Medicines, Diet, and Special Allowances. Receipts from paying patients show an increase of Rs 5,986, mainly due to the admission at the Campbell Hospital of a large number of European paying patients, who had been attacked with small pox. Miscellaneous receipts fell off by Rs 422, subscriptions showed a rise of Rs 3,119, and there was a slight increase in the receipts from municipal funds. The total expenditure rose from Rs 5,12,955 to Rs 5,38,770. The amount spent on buildings and repairs increased by Rs 11,753, quadrennial repairs at the Presidency General Hospital absorbing Rs 8,947. The cost of diets increased by Rs 5,930 owing to the larger number of patients under treatment. During the year the sum of Rs 3,39,528 was invested, almost entirely by the Mayo Hospital, against Rs 6,300 in 1894 and Rs 4,029 in 1893.

17 The report contains an interesting comparison of the cost per patient, under the chief heads of expenditure, at each of the different hospitals. As was remarked last year, such statistics do not necessarily afford a final test of hospital management, and they require to be judged with reference to the special circumstances of each institution. After making full allowance for these considerations, the Lieutenant Governor is disposed to accept the Inspector General's opinion that the numbers of the compounders at the Howrah Hospital, and of the compounders and dressers at the Mayo Institutions, are capable of being reduced, and that a disproportionate number of menial servants are employed at the Sukea Street Dispensary. The establishment of the General and Campbell Hospitals seems also to be unduly high as compared with that of similar hospitals at Bombay, and the Lieutenant-Governor will be glad to consider any definite proposals for reducing it which the Inspector General may submit. It is satisfactory to find that the high cost of medicines at the General Hospital, commented on in last year's Resolution, has been reduced. At the Mayo Hospital, however, the expenditure under this head came to Rs 43 5 3 per patient, as compared with Rs 36 5 8 at the General Hospital and Rs 34 12 2 at the Medical College. The Inspector General states that there is great room for economy at this hospital, and intimates a doubt whether proper supervision is exercised over the issue of medicines. The Lieutenant Governor will await the report on the subject which Dr Ross proposes to submit.

18 Last year the Inspector General recommended that medical officers of the Presidency might be allowed to purchase their drugs and instruments from England. It is now, however, reported that medicines are supplied by the Government Medical Store Depot cheaper than by private firms in England. No change will, therefore, be made in the existing system.

19 The new hospital in Bhowanipur, which is intended to accommodate native patients in the south of Calcutta, has been completed since the close of the year at an approximate cost of Rs 1,30,000, and will be open soon. It will form a valuable addition to the medical institutions of the city, and will meet a want which has been greatly felt. The Municipal Commissioners have contributed a substantial proportion of the cost of construction and also make a grant towards its maintenance. It will be managed by a Board of six Governors, of whom four will be appointed by Government and two by the Corporation.

20 Surgeon Colonel R. Harvey was Inspector General of Civil Hospitals up to 23rd March 1895, when he was succeeded by Surgeon Colonel G. C. Ross, who remained in charge till the end of the year. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to Dr Ross for his frequent and careful inspections of the Calcutta Hospitals and his energetic endeavours to introduce reforms in their structural and administrative arrangements. Sir Alexander Mackenzie recognises that, owing to causes for the most part beyond the control of the medical officers in charge, several of the Calcutta Hospitals fall conspicuously short of the standard of comfort and efficiency which the advances of medical science demands. Steps are now being taken to ascertain how the special needs of each institution can best be met, and if the Provincial finances continue to prosper, the Lieutenant Governor hopes that it will be possible within a reasonable period to remove many of the chief defects.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

TEXT BOOKS IN MIDDLE SCHOOLS

THE following Note and Extracts from the Proceedings of the Central Text Book Committee are published for general information

CALCUTTA,

The 3rd August 1896 }

A. CROFT,

Director of Public Instruction

(1) A Note on Bengali Grammar prepared by the Central Text Book Committee

VARIOUS superfluous matters have, of late, been introduced into text books on Bengali grammar intended for boys. This has tended to render the subject complicated, and to increase, unnecessarily, the bulk of the books. Bengali grammar means the art of speaking and writing the Bengali language correctly. It is, therefore, undesirable to include in it any detailed rules of Sanskrit grammar relating to words and expressions which never, or but rarely, occur in Bengali. Nor does the practice of making rules and classifying words, in imitation of the method followed in text books on English grammar, appear to be well adapted for teaching the elements of Bengali grammar. A few points are, accordingly, noted below as instances of matter that should not find a place in books on the subject—

I. A minute and elaborate classification of letters, such as বোব, অযোব, বাব, বিবার, স'বার, &c., should be avoided. There is no objection, however, to make a distinction between অস্পর্শান and স্পর্শান letters. The vowels should be classified as long and short, and the prolation of vowels should be omitted.

II. Rules showing the different parts of the mouth, from which different letters are pronounced, should avoid such complex forms as কণ্ঠ্যোষ্ঠ and দন্তোষ্ঠ :

III All attempts to give rules for the various pronunciations of the same letters should be avoided in an elementary work on grammar Boys are to learn these from practice

IV Rules of সন্ধি relating to forms, which either do not occur, or but rarely occur, in Bengali, should be avoided

V Detailed rules as to the use of ব and ব্ should be avoided

VI The classification of শব্দ as অব্যয় and সব্যয় should be omitted

VII A minute and elaborate classification of parts of speech, such as the classification of nouns into common, proper, &c, and the classification of adjectives into বিশেষণীয় বিশেষণ, &c, should be avoided

VIII Declensions should be taught more by paradigms than by elaborate rules

IX It is not desirable that অন্যত্ and তৃত্বত্ should be treated as the nominal bases of the first and the second person respectively

X Detailed rules of inflection, such as “এই সমস্ত বাক্যবাক্য শব্দ, এই দ্বারা, অকৃত ও লাক্য শব্দ পু লিঙ্গ” should be avoided

XI Minute and elaborate rules for sandhs should be avoided

XII There is no necessity for framing rules in a Bengali grammar for একদেশী সমাস, আদি সমাস, উপস্থিত সমাস, রূপক সমাস, &c, but as regards cases of কর্ম ধারয় সমাস like বুধচন্দ্র, &c, it would be enough if the meaning be explained as বুধই চন্দ্র বা চন্দ্রের ন্যায় বুধ, the first being called রূপক and the second উপস্থিত সমাস।

XIII In lieu of rules for the formation of irregular sandhs compounds, such as ময়ূরবাক্য শব্দ, a list of such words in common use as অকিঞ্চন, অকৃতোক্ত, অর্পিত, অন্যত্র, সহস্রাক, কানুক্য, গোষ্ঠে, গোপদ, হরিশচন্দ্র, আশ্রয়, &c, should be given, with a bare statement that they are irregularly formed (নিপাতনে লিঙ্গ)

XIV With regard to কৃত and উপস্থিত, detailed rules should be avoided, but the words in common use, not covered by general rules, should be given in a নিপাতন list
